The Messiah is now come, and the Jews would not know Him but rejected Him, and spitefully used Him for which their obstinacy that 'great and dreadful day of the Lord' is also come upon them, and He 'hath smitten the earth, that I them and their land, with such a curse so terrible a destruction as makes good all that I here spoken, and shews that not one word of this prophecy is fallen to the ground. They now remain in example to all others, who shall despise or neglect as they did the offered means of grace. All the admonitions addressed to them and all God's methods for preparing them for the day of His coming here mentioned, equally concern us in respect of that other day of His coming typified by the former, and it will be necessary for us to apply them to our own concerns, and to make use of them for our benefit without expecting another Elias, to forewarn and convert us. We have no promise of any such, and it would be to no purpose if we had. We have Moses and the Prophets: we have the admonitions of John the Baptist, and of Christ Himself, and have the example of the Jews, who were punished for not hearkning to them: and if we will not hear and be warned by them, neither will we be persuaded though Elias or John the Baptist should rise from the dead, or Christ should come again in the flesh to convert us. Sufficient to induce us to prepare ourselves or to leave us without excuse if we do not, are those admonitions of His extending to all generations, 'Watch therefore for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come' and again

Therefore be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh. Matt xxiv 12, 44 Dr Pocock

PREFACE

TO THE APOCRYPHAL BOOKS.

THE books which are admitted into our Bibles under the description of Apocryphal books, are so denominated from a Greek word which is expressive of the uncertainty and concealed nature of their original, and which seems to have been at first applied only to books of doubtful authority, but afterwards to have been employed to characterize spurious and pernicious books. These books have no title to be considered as inspired writings, and though in respect to their antiquity and valuable contents they are annexed to the canonical books, it is in a separate division, and by no means upon an idea that they are of equal authority, in point of doctrine with them, or that they are to be received as oracles of faith, to sanctify opinions, or to determine religious controversies. It is universally allowed that these books were not in the canon of the Jews, to whom alone "were committed the oracles of God" Rom. ix. and, indeed, that they were composed after the closing of the sacred catalogue though some writers, without a shadow of authority, have pretended that some of them, as Tobit, Judith, Ecclesiasticus, Baruch, and perhaps others, were received by the Jews into a second canon and to be made by a council assembled at Jerusalem in the time of Eleazar the high priest, upon the occasion of sending the seventy-two interpreters to Ptolemy king of Egypt, and that the rest were canonized by a third council assembled in the time of Simon and Hillel. But of these councils, the Jews, tenacious as they are of traditions, have no account or memorial and the books in question were composed after the cessation of the prophetick spirit, by persons who displayed no characters of inspiration, and some of whom seem to have disclaimed pretensions to it, (1 Mace ix. 27, 2 Mace. ii. 30, 31, xv. 38) and therefore they were regarded by the Jews as among the writings which they termed sacred, in an inferior sense of that word. The books of Tobit and Judith were, indeed, supposed by the rabbinical conceits to have been derived from lower inspiration. But this was an absurd fancy and none of the books are cited either as prophetick or doctrinal by our Saviour or His Apostles, and though some writers have pretended to discover a coincidence between certain passages contained in them, and others in the New Testament, it will be found that the evangelicall writer on these occasions only incidentally concur in sentiment or expression with the authors of the Apocryphal books or that the resemblance results from imitation of passages in the sacred writings of the Old Testament, which the Evangelicall and Apocryphal writers might equally have had in view. But indeed if any occasional allusion, or borrowed expressions could be proved, they would by no means establish the authority of the Apocryphal books, which might be referred to, as were other books, by the sacred writer, without any design to confer on them a character of Divine authority, 2 Tim. iii. 8, Heb. xii. 21, Jude ver. 14.

These Apocryphal books constituted no part of the Septuagint version of the Scriptures, as set forth by the translators under Ptolemy. It is supposed that many of them at least were received by the Jewish synagogue established at Jerusalem which possibly might have derived its origin from the period of that translation. From the Hellenistick Jews they were probably accepted by the Christian Church but by whomsoever, and at whatever time they were communicated it is certain that they were not received as canonical or enrolled among the productions of the inspired writers since they are not in any of the earlier catalogues and are excluded from the sacred list by the fathers of the Greek and Latin church who flourished during the four first centuries though they are often cited by them as valuable and instructive works, and sometimes even as divine, and as Scripture in a loose and popular sense. In the language of the primitive Church they were styled ecclesiastical as distinguished from those infallible works which were canonized as unquestionably inspired, and also from those erroneous and pernicious writings which were stigmatized and proscribed as Apocryphal. Abundant testimonies have been produced to prove that they were not received as canonical during the four first centuries, and they have never been generally admitted into the canon of the Greek church. In the fifth century St. Austin and the council of Carthage appear to have admitted (rather in deference to popular opinion, and in compliance with that reverence which had arisen from use) most of the Apocryphal books as canonical meaning however canonical in a secondary sense as useful to be read and still with distinction from those sacred and inspired books which were established on the sanction of the Jewish canon, and on the testimony of our Saviour and His Apostles. After this time other fathers and councils seem occasionally to have considered these books as canonical, and inferior only to the sacred writings, but always with distinction and with express declaration of their inferiority when that question was strictly agitated, till at length the council of Trent notwithstanding the testimony of all Jewish antiquity, and contrary to the sense of the primitive Church thought fit to pronounce them all (except the Prayer of Manasses, and the two books of Esdras) together with the unwritten traditions relative to faith and manners as strictly and in every sense canonical and of the same authority as those undoubted books which had been copied from the Jewish into the Christian canon and received the attestation of Christ and His Apostles of which the inspiration was manifested by the character of their composition and proved by the accomplishment of those prophecies which they contain. This canon was confirmed by severe anathemas against all who should reject it. And from this time the Roman Catholics have endeavoured to maintain the canonical authority of these books though their most strenuous advocates are obliged to allow that they were not received into the canon of Trent. They are compelled to allow a superiority as to external sanctions to those uncontroversial books which are exclusively canonized in the earliest and most authentick catalogues of the Christian Church and they labour to defend the decision of the council of Trent as to the Apocryphal writings by appealing to the authority of preceding councils of which the canons were never generally received and which admitted the contested books as canonical only in a subordinate and secondary sense. It is therefore upon the most just and tenable grounds that our Church has framed her sixth article where, in agreement with all Protestant churches she adheres in her catalogue to those writings of which there never was any doubt and, agreeably to the doctrine of the four Paternal churches of Jerusalem Alexandria Antioch and Constantinople rejects those books which are styled Apocryphal in our Bible though she read them as St. Jerome observed did the Western church for example of life and instruction of manners. And it must be confessed in general that notwithstanding some passages of exceptionable tendency and some relation of improbable circumstance, they are books entitled to great respect written by persons who being intimately conversant with the sacred writings, had, as it were, imbibed their spirit, and caught their pious enthusiasm. Whoever reads them with attention, must occasionally be struck by the splendid sentiments, and sublime description which they contain. They sometimes likewise present us with passages borrowed from the sacred writings, and with the finest imitations of inspired eloquence; they include perhaps some scattered fragments of Divine wisdom, and some traditional precepts derived from men enlightened by a prophetick spirit. They occasionally illustrate the accomplishment of prophecy, and throw light on the Scriptures by explaining the manners, sentiments, and history of the Jews. They bear then an indirect and important testimony to the truth of our religion, they are venerable for their antiquity, recommended by long established approbation, and in some measure consecrated to our regard by the commendations of the church, and by being annexed to the inspired writings. Where they are defective they may have been perhaps injured or corrupted by subsequent additions, as not being watched over with such religious care as the sacred books. Those who are disposed to profit by their perusal, will find it not difficult, by the light of the inspired books, to discriminate and select what is excellent and consistent with truth, and to reject such objectionable particulars as prove them to be the production of unassisted and sometimes mistaken men. Dr Gray

PREFACE TO THE APOCRYPHAL BOOKS

It is worthy of remark, that the Roman Catholics find in the Apocryphal books a colour for some few points in their religion, for which they can find no support in the real Word of God: and this seems to be a principal reason why they have maintained the authority of these books as equal to that of the writings of the Old and New Testament. Humphreys

In conformity to the general practice of the early Christian Churches, the Church of England still continues the use of the Apocryphal books in her publick service, though not with any design to lessen the authority of canonical Scripture, which she expressly affirms to be the only rule of faith, declaring that "the Church doth read the other books for an example of life and instruction of manners, but yet doth not apply them to establish any doctrine." Nor is there any one Sunday in the year, that has any of its lessons taken from the Apocrypha: for, as the greatest assemblies of Christians are on those days, it is wisely ordered that they should then be instructed out of the undisputed word of God. Wheatley

INTRODUCTION.

THE first book of Esdras, or Ezra, (for the name is the same,) was certainly not written by Ezra, whose authentick work it contradicts in many particulars: and it has no pretensions to be revered as the production of an inspired person, although great part of it be extracted from the sacred writings.

It is generally supposed to have been the work of some Hellenick Jew, that is, of a Jew resident in some country where the Greek language was spoken. It is uncertain at what time it was composed: but, since the particulars contained in it are related by Josephus, it was probably written before the time of that historian, who died about the year 93 of the Christian era. The book, though in its style it has much of the Hebrew idiom, was probably never extant in that language, at least, it was certainly not admitted into the Hebrew canon. It was annexed however to some copies of the Septuagint, or authorized Greek version, and placed in some manuscripts before the book of Ezra, that of Nehemiah being inserted between the two. Standing in that order, it was called the first book of Ezra, and the authentick work of Ezra together with that of Nehemiah, which seems to have been joined with it, was called the second book of Ezra. This arrangement was probably adopted with reference to the chronological order of the events described. In some Greek editions, however, this book is placed, with more propriety as to its character, between the Song of the Three Children, and the Wisdom of Solomon.

This book was publickly read in the Greek Church: and was considered by many of the ancient fathers as a respectable work, but never as of equal authority with the canonical books.

The name of Ezra, it should be observed, was at all times particularly revered by the Jews, who were accustomed, in honour of his memory, to remark that he was worthy that the law should have been given by his hands to Israel: if Moses had not been before him. In consequence of this reputation, numberless suspicious works were published at different times under his name, which were received as authentick by the credulous and unlearned.

The first book of Esdras begins by a description of the magnificent passover celebrated by king Josias: it afterwards relates the death of that prince, and the history of his successors till the capture of Jerusalem, taken from the two last chapters of 2 Chronicles. In the third and fourth chapters is related a contest for a prize held before king Darius between three of his governors. Zerubbabel is declared the conqueror: and being in consequence permitted to ask whatever he pleased, humbly implored Darius to fulfil the promise he had made of rebuilding Jerusalem and the temple; Darius immediately complied, and afforded the Jews every assistance in the accomplishment of the work.

The rest of the work, which is chiefly compiled from the histories of Ezra and Nehemiah, contains some circumstances of an improbable and contradictory character. There is nothing in it exceptionable with respect to doctrine or precept, but much doubtful matter is mixed with its account: and many particulars are introduced which cannot be reconciled with chronological order, and the relations of authentick Scripture. Dr Gray Calmer

In the sixth Article of our Church the first and second apocryphal books of Esdras are called the third and fourth books of Esdras, the canonical books of Ezra and Nehemiah being there called the first and second books of Esdras.

1 Josias his charge to the priests and Levites 7 A great passover is kept 32 His death is much lamented 34 His successors 53 The temple, city, and people are destroyed 56 The rest are carried unto Babylon.

AND Josias held the <sup>a</sup> feast of the passover in Jerusalem unto his Lord, and offered the passover the fourteenth day of the first month;

2 Having set the priests according to their daily course, being arrayed in long garments, in the temple of the Lord

3 And he spake unto the Levites, the holy ministers of Israel, that they should hallow themselves unto the Lord, to set the holy ark of the Lord in the house that king Solomon the son of David had built

4 And said, Ye shall no more bear the ark upon your shoulders now therefore serve the Lord your God, and minister unto his people Israel, and prepare you after your families and kindreds,

5 According as David the king of Israel prescribed, and according to the magnificence of Solomon his son and standing in the temple according to the several dignity of the families of you, the Levites, who minister in the presence of your brethren the children of Israel,

6 Offer the passover in order, and make ready the sacrifices for your brethren, and keep the passover according to the commandment of the Lord, which was given unto Moses

7 And unto the people that was found there Josias gave thirty thousand lambs and kids, and three thousand calves these things were given of the king's allowance, according as he promised, to the people, to the priests, and to the Levites

8 And Helkias, Zacharias, and Syelus, the governors of the temple, gave to the priests for the passover two thousand and six hundred sheep, and three hundred calves

9 And Jeconias, and Samuirs, and Nathanael his brother, and Assabias, and Ochiel, and Joram, captains over thousands, gave to the Levites for the passover five thousand sheep, and seven hundred calves

10 And when these things were done, the priests and Levites, having the unleavened bread, stood in very comely order according to the kindreds,

11 And according to the several dignities of the fathers, before the people, to offer to the Lord, as it is written in the book of Moses. <sup>b</sup> and thus did they in the morning

12 And they roasted the passover with fire, as appertaineth as for the sacrifices, they sod them in brass pots and pans || with a good savour,

13 And set them before all the people and afterward they prepared for themselves, and for the priests their brethren, the sons of Aaron

14 For the priests offered the fat until night and the Levites prepared for themselves, and the priests their brethren, the sons of Aaron

15 The holy singers also, the sons of Asaph, were in their order, according to the appointment of David, to wit, Asaph, Zacharias, and Jeduthun, who was of the king's retinue.

16 Moreover the porters were at every gate, it was not lawful for any to go from his ordinary service for their brethren the Levites prepared for them

17 Thus were the things that belonged to the sacrifices of the Lord accomplished in that day, that they might hold the passover,

18 And offer sacrifices upon the altar of the Lord, according to the commandment of king Josias

19 So the children of Israel which were present held the passover at that time, and the feast of sweet bread seven days

20 And such a passover was not kept in Israel since the time of the prophet Samuel

21 Yea, all the kings of Israel held not such a passover as Josias, and the priests, and the Levites, and the Jews, held with all Israel that were found dwelling at Jerusalem

22 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josias was this passover kept

23 And the works of Josias were upright before his Lord with an heart full of godliness

24 As for the things that came to pass in his time, they were written in former times, concerning those that sinned, and || did wickedly against the Lord above all people and kingdoms, and how they grieved him || exceedingly, so that the words of the Lord rose up against Israel

25 Now after all these acts of Josias it came to pass, that Pharaoh the king of Egypt came to raise war at Carchamis upon Euphrates and Josias went out against him

26 But the king of Egypt sent to him, saying, What have I to do with thee, O king of Judea?

27 I am not sent out from the Lord God against thee, for my war is upon Euphrates and now the Lord is with me, yea, the Lord is with me hasting me forward depart from me, and be not against the Lord.

28 Howbeit Josias did not turn back his chariot from him, but undertook to fight with him, not regarding the words of the prophet Jeremy spoken by the mouth of the Lord.

29 But joined battle with him in the plain of Magiddo, and the princes came against king Josias.

30 Then said the king unto his servants, Carry me away out of the battle, for I am very weak. And immediately his servants took him away out of the battle.

31 Then gat he up upon his second chariot, and being brought back to Jerusalem died, and was buried in his father's sepulchre.

32 And in all Jewry they mourned for Josias, yea, Jeremy the prophet lamented for Josias, and the chief men with the women made lamentation for him unto this day and this was given out for an ordinance to be done continually in all the nation of Israel.

33 These things are written in the book of the stories of the kings of Judah, and every one of the acts that Josias did, and his glory, and his understanding in the law of the Lord, and the things that he had done before, and the things now recited, are reported in the book of the kings of Israel and Judea.

34 And the people took Joachaz the son of Josias, and made him king instead of Josias his father, when he was twenty and three years old.

35 And he reigned in Judah and in Jerusalem three months and then the king of Egypt deposed him from reigning in Jerusalem.

36 And he set a tax upon the land of an hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold.

37 The king of Egypt also made king Joachaz his brother king of Judah and Jerusalem.

38 And he bound Joachaz and the nobles but Zuaras his brother he apprehended and brought him out of Egypt.

39 Five and twenty years old was Joachaz when he was made king in the land of Judea and Jerusalem, and he did evil before the Lord.

40 Wherefore against him Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon came up, and bound him with a chain of brass, and carried him into Babylon.

41 Nabuchodonosor also took of the holy vessels of the Lord, and carried them away, and set them in his own temple at Babylon.

42 But those things that are recorded of him, and of his uncleanness and impiety, are written in the chronicles of the kings.

43 And Joachim his son reigned in his stead he was made king being eighteen years old;

44 And reigned but three months and ten days in Jerusalem; and did evil before the Lord.

45 So after a year Nabuchodonosor sent and caused him to be brought into Babylon with the holy vessels of the Lord, 46 And made Zedechias king of Judah and Jerusalem, when he was one and twenty years old, and he reigned eleven years.

47 And he did evil also in the sight of the Lord, and cared not for the words that were spoken unto him by the prophet Jeremy from the mouth of the Lord.

48 And after that king Nabuchodonosor had made him to swear by the name of the Lord, he forswore himself, and rebelled, and hardening his neck, and his heart, he transgressed the laws of the Lord God of Israel.

49 The governors also of the people and of the priests did many things against the laws, and passed all the pollutions of all nations, and defiled the temple of the Lord, which was sanctified in Jerusalem.

50 Nevertheless the God of their fathers sent by his messenger to call them back, because he spared them and his tabernacle also.

51 But they had his messengers in derision, and, looke, when the Lord spake unto them, they made a sport of his prophets.

52 So far forth, that he, being wroth with his people for their great ungodliness, commanded the kings of the Chaldees to come up against them, 53 Who slew their young men with the sword, yea, even within the compass of their holy temple, and spared neither young man nor maid, old man nor child, among them, for he delivered all into their hands.

19 Now if this city and the walls thereof be made up again, they will not only refuse to give tribute, but also rebel against kings

20 And forasmuch as the things pertaining to the temple are now in hand, we think it meet not to neglect such a matter,

21 But to speak unto our lord the king, to the intent that, if it be thy pleasure, it may be sought out in the books of thy fathers

22 And thou shalt find in the chronicles what is written concerning these things, and shalt understand that that city was rebellious, troubling both kings and cities

23 And that the Jews were rebellious, and raised always wars therein, for the which cause even this city was made desolate

24 Wherefore now we do declare unto thee, O lord the king, that if this city be built again, and the walls thereof set up anew, thou shalt from henceforth have no passage into Celosyria and Phenice

25 Then the king wrote back again to Rathumus the storywriter, to Beeltethmus, to Semellius the scribe, and to the rest that were in commission, and dwellers in Samaria and Syria and Phenice, after this manner

26 I have read the epistle which ye have sent unto me therefore I commanded to make diligent search, and it hath been found that that city was from the beginning practising against kings,

27 And the men therein were given to rebellion and war and that mighty kings and fierce were in Jerusalem, who reigned and exacted tributes in Celosyria and Phenice

28 Now therefore I have commanded to hinder those men from building the city, and heed to be taken that there be no more done in it,

29 And that those wicked workers proceed no further to the annoyance of kings

30 Then king Artaxerxes his letters being read, Rathumus, and Semellius the scribe, and the rest that were in commission with them, removing in haste toward Jerusalem with a troop of horsemen and a multitude of people in battle array, began to hinder the builders, and the building of the temple in Jerusalem ceased until the second year of the reign of Darius king of the Persians.

CHAP. III

They refer themselves to the judgment of the king. 18
The first declareth the strength of wine

NOW when Darius reigned, he made a great feast unto all his subjects, and unto all his household, and unto all the princes of Media and Persia,

2 And to all the governors and captains and lieutenants that were under him, from India unto Ethiopia, of an hundred twenty and seven provinces

3 And when they had eaten and drunken, and being satisfied were gone home, then Darius the king went into his bedchamber, and slept, and soon after awaked

4 Then three young men, that were of the guard that kept the king's body, spake one to another,

5 Let every one of us speak a sentence he that shall overcome, and whose sentence shall seem wiser than the others, unto him shall the king Darius give great gifts, and great things in token of victory

6 As, to be clothed in purple, to drink in gold, and to sleep upon gold, and a chariot with bridles of gold, and an headtire of fine linen, and a chain about his neck

7 And he shall sit next to Darius because of his wisdom, and shall be called Darius his cousin

8 And then every one wrote his sentence, sealed it, and laid it under king Darius his pillow,

9 And said that, when the king is risen, some will give him the writings, and of whose side the king and the three princes of Persia shall judge that his sentence is the wisest, to him shall the victory be given, as was appointed

10 The first wrote, Wine is the strongest

Chap III In the third and fourth chapters follows a narration of three young men that were of Darius's guard contending for the reward of a problem or sentence propounded by every one of them. The argument it must be confessed, are weighty and very proper on the occasion but it is obvious that the writer makes these candidates to prescribe as it were to the king what gifts and rewards he shall bestow on them in token of victory, and besides the crowd themselves are too magnificent for such a contest, and more proper to be bestowed on a general who had gained a signal victory, or conquered divers provinces. His design in the narrative seems to have been, to embellish the account of Zerubbabel by a circumstance so honourable to him as the obtaining the prize. As the true Ezra takes no notice of it it seems to be a traditionary story founded probably on truth, but mixed with some circumstances of less authority. Arnald Calmet

11 The second wrote, The king is strongest.

12 The third wrote, Women are strongest. but above all things Truth beareth away the victory

13 ¶ Now when the king was risen up, they took their writings, and delivered them unto him, and so he read them:

14 And sending forth he called all the princes of Persia and Media, and the governors, and the captains, and the lieutenants, and the chief officers;

15 And sat him down in the royal seat of judgment, and the writings were read before them

16 And he said, Call the young men, and they shall declare their own sentences. So they were called, and came in 17 And he said unto them, Declare unto us your mind concerning the writings. Then began the first, who had spoken of the strength of wine,

18 And he said thus, O ye men, how exceeding strong is wine! it causeth all men to err, that drink it

19 It maketh the mind of the king and of the fatherless child to be all one, of the bondman and of the freeman, of the poor man and of the rich

20 It turneth also every thought into jollity and mirth, so that a man remembereth neither sorrow nor debt

21 And it maketh every heart rich, so that a man remembereth neither king nor governor, and it maketh to speak all things by talents

22 And when they are in their cups, they forget their love both to friends and brethren, and a little after draw out swords

23 But when they are from the wine, they remember not what they have done

24 O ye men, is not wine the strongest, that enforceth to do thus? And when he had so spoken, he held his peace

CHAP IV

1 The second declarith the power of a king 13 The third the force of women 38 and of truth The third is judged to be misist, 47 and obtaineth letters of the king to build Jerusalem 58 He praiseth God and sheweth his brethren what he had done

THEN the second, that had spoken of the strength of the king, began to say,

2 O ye men, do not men excel in strength, that bear rule over sea and land, and all things in them?

3 But yet the king is more mighty for he is lord of all these things, and hath dominion over them; and whatsoever he commandeth them they do

4 If he bid them make war the one against the other, they do it if he send them out against the enemies, they go, and break down mountains, walls, and towers

5 They slay and are slain, and transgress not the king's commandment if they get the victory, they bring all to the king, as well the spoil, as all things else

6 Likewise for those that are no soldiers, and have not to do with wars, but use husbandry, when they have reaped again that which they had sown, they bring it to the king, and compel one another to pay tribute unto the king

7 And yet he is but one man if he command to kill, they kill, if he command to spare, they spare,

8 If he command to smite, they smite, if he command to make desolate, they make desolate, if he command to build, they build,

9 If he command to cut down, they cut down, if he command to plant, they plant.

10 So all his people and his armies obey him furthermore he lieth down, he eateth and drinketh, and taketh his rest

11 And these keep watch round about him, neither may any one depart, and do his own business, neither disobey they him in any thing

12 O ye men, how should not the king be mightiest, when in such sort he is obeyed? And he held his tongue

13 ¶ Then the third, who had spoken of women, and of the truth, (this was Zorobabel) began to speak

14 O ye men, it is not the great king, nor the multitude of men, neither is it wine, that excelleth, who is it then that ruleth them, or hath the lordship over them? are they not women?

15 Women have borne the king and all the people that bear rule by sea and land

16 Even of them came they and they nourished them up that planted the vineyards, from whence the wine cometh

17 These also make garments for men, these bring glory unto men, and without women cannot men be 18 Yea, and if men have gathered together gold and silver, or any other goodly thing, do they not love a woman which is comely in favour and beauty?

19 And letting all those things go, do they not gape, and even with open mouth fix their eyes fast on her, and have not all men more desire unto her than unto silver or gold, or any goodly thing whatsoever?

20 A man leaveth his own father that brought him up, and his own country, and cleaveth unto his wife.

21 He sticketh not to spend his life with his wife, and remembereth neither father, nor mother, nor country

22 By this also ye must know that women have dominion over you do ye not labour and toil, and give and bring all to the woman?

23 Yea, a man taketh his sword, and goeth his way to rob and to steal, to sail upon the sea and upon rivers,

24 And looketh upon a lion, and goeth in the darkness, and when he hath stolen, spoiled, and robbed, he bringeth it to his love

25 Wherefore a man loveth his wife better than father or mother

26 Yea, many there be that have ||run out of their wits for women, and become servants for their sakes.

27 Many also have perished, have erred, and sinned, for women

28 And now do ye not believe me? is not the king great in his power? do not all regions fear to touch him?

30 And taking the crown from the king's head, and setting it upon her own head, she also struck the king with her left hand

31 And yet ||for all this the king gaped and gazed upon her with open mouth if she laughed upon him, he laughed also but if she took any displeasure at him, the king was fain to flatter, that she might ||be reconciled to him again

32 O ye men, how can it be but women should be strong, seeing they do thus?

33 Then the king and the princes looked one upon another so he began to speak of the truth

34 O ye men, are not women strong? great is the earth, high is the heaven, swift is the sun in his course, for he compasseth the heavens round about, and fetcheth his course again to his own place in one day.

35 Is he not great that maketh these things? therefore great is the truth, and stronger than all things.

37 Wine is wicked, the king is wicked, women are wicked, all the children of men are wicked, and such are all their wicked works, and there is no truth in them, in their unrighteousness also they shall perish

38 As for the truth, it endureth, and is always strong, it liveth and conquereth for evermore.

39 With her there is no accepting of persons or rewards, but she doeth the things that are just, and refraineth from all unjust and wicked things, and all men do well like of her works

40 Neither in her judgment is any unrighteousness; and she is the strength, kingdom, power, and majesty, of all ages Blessed be the God of truth.

41 And with that he held his peace And all the people then shouted, and said, Great is Truth, and mighty above all things.

42 Then said the king unto him, Ask what thou wilt more than is appointed in the writing, and we will give it thee, because thou art found wisest, and thou shalt sit next me, and shalt be called my cousin

43 Then said he unto the king, Remember thy vow, which thou hast vowed to build Jerusalem, in the day when thou camest to thy kingdom,

44 And to send away all the vessels that were taken away out of Jerusalem, which Cyrus set apart, when he vowed to destroy Babylon, and to send them again thither

45 Thou also hast vowed to build up the temple, which the Idomites burned when Judah was made desolate by the Chaldees

44 And to send away all the vessels — which Cyrus set apart,] It is here affirmed that Zerubbabel entreated Darius to send to Jerusalem the holy vessel which Cyrus intended to have sent to it

Cyrus had not executed the design but this is contrary to what the true Ezra affirms, and to what the author of this book himself affirms at chap vi 18 19 (abnet)

46 And now, O lord the king, this is that which I require, and which I desire of thee, and this is the princely liberality proceeding from thyself I desire therefore that thou make good the vow, the performance whereof with thine own mouth thou hast vowed to the King of heaven.

47 Then Darius the king stood up, and kissed him, and wrote letters for him unto all the treasurers and lieutenants and captains and governors, that they should safely convey on their way both him, and all those that go up with him to build Jerusalem.

48 He wrote letters also unto the lieutenants that were in Celosyria and Phenice, and unto them in Libanus, that they should bring cedar wood from Libanus unto Jerusalem, and that they should build the city with him.

49 Moreover he wrote for all the Jews that went out of his realm up into Jewry, concerning their freedom, that no officer, no ruler, no lieutenant, nor || treasurer, should forcibly enter into their doors;

50 And that all the country which they hold should be freed without tribute; and that the Edomites should give over the villages of the Jews which then they held.

51 Yea, that there should be yearly given twenty talents to the building of the temple, until the time that it were built,

52 And other ten talents yearly, to maintain the burnt offerings upon the altar every day, as they had a commandment to offer seventeen.

53 And that all they that went from Babylon to build the city should have free liberty, as well they as their posterity, and all the priests that went away.

54 He wrote also concerning the charges, and the priests' vestments wherein they minister, 55 And likewise for the charges of the Levites, to be given them until the day that the house were finished, and Jerusalem builded up.

56 And he commanded to give to all that kept the city || pensions and wages.

57 He sent away also all the vessels from Babylon, that Cyrus had set apart, and all that Cyrus had given in commandment, the same charged he also to be done, and sent unto Jerusalem.

58 Now when this young man was gone forth, he lifted up his face to heaven toward Jerusalem, and praised the King of heaven, 59 And said, From thee cometh victory, from thee cometh wisdom, and thine is the glory, and I am thy servant.

60 Blessed art thou, who hast given me wisdom for to thee I give thanks, O Lord of our fathers.

61 And so he took the letters, and went out, and came unto Babylon, and told it all his brethren.

62 And they praised the God of their fathers, because he had given them freedom and liberty.

63 To go up, and to build Jerusalem, and the temple which is called by his name, and they feasted with instruments of musick and gladness seven days.

AFTER this were the principal men of the families chosen according to their tribes, to go up with their wives and sons and daughters, with their menservants and maidservants, and their cattle.

2 And Darius sent with them a thousand horsemen, till they had brought them back to Jerusalem safely, and with musical [instruments] tabrets and flutes.

3 And all their brethren played, and he made them go up together with them.

46 — that thou make good the vow, &c ] If this had been the case, that Darius had engaged himself by a solemn vow to rebuild their temple, there would have been no need to search the archives with such diligence for the decree of Cyrus to that effect, as is represented at Ezra vi 1. Calmet

47 — and wrote letters for him unto all the treasurers &c ] That which is here related does not accord with the true history of

Iza For, if it had been true that Darius, when he sent back the Jews to Jerusalem under Zerubbabel, wrote to his officers presiding in that country in their favour, those officers would never have sent to inquire by what authority they built the temple nor would Zerubbabel have had recourse to the ancient permission granted by Cyrus to the Jews, rather than to this ordinance of Darius, Ezra v 13. the sons of the servants of Solomon, were three hundred seventy and two

37 Neither could they shew their families, nor their stock, how they were of Israel the sons of Ladan, the son of Ban, the sons of Necodan, six hundred fifty and two

38 And of the priests that usurped the office of the priesthood, and were not found the sons of Obdia, the sons of Accoz, the sons of Addus, who married Augia one of the daughters of Berzelus, and was named after his name

39 And when the description of the kindred of these men was sought in the register, and was not found, they were removed from executing the office of the priesthood

40 For unto them said Nehemias and Atharias, that they should not be partakers of the holy things, till there arose up an high priest clothed with doctrine and truth

41 So of Israel, from them of twelve years old and upward, they were all in number forty thousand, beside menservants and womenservants two thousand three hundred and sixty.

42 Their menservants and handmaids were seven thousand three hundred forty and seven the singing men and singing women, two hundred forty and five

43 Four hundred thirty and five camels, seven thousand thirty and six horses, two hundred forty and five mules, five thousand five hundred twenty and five beasts used to the yoke

44 And certain of the chief of their families, when they came to the temple of God that is in Jerusalem, vowed to set up the house again in his own place according to their ability,

45 And to give into the holy treasury of the works a thousand pounds of gold, five thousand of silver, and an hundred priestly vestments

46 And so dwelt the priests and the Levites and the people in Jerusalem, and in the country, the singers also and the porters, and all Israel in their villages

47 But when the seventh month was at hand, and when the children of Israel were every man in his own place, they came all together with one consent into the open place of the first gate which is toward the east.

48 Then stood up Jesus the son of Josedec, and his brethren the priests, and Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and his brethren, and made ready the altar of the God of Israel,

49 To offer burnt sacrifices upon it, according as it is expressly commanded in the book of Moses the man of God

50 And there were gathered unto them out of the other nations of the land, and they erected the altar upon his own place, because all the nations of the land were at enmity with them, and oppressed them, and they offered sacrifices according to the time, and burnt offerings to the Lord both morning and evening

51 Also they held the feast of tabernacles, as it is commanded in the law, and offered sacrifices daily, as was meet

52 And after that, the continual oblations, and the sacrifice of the sabbaths, and of the new moons, and of all holy feasts

53 And all they that had made any vow to God began to offer sacrifices to God from the first day of the seventh month, although the temple of the Lord was not yet built.

54 And they gave unto the masons and carpenters money, meat, and drink, with cheerfulness.

55 Unto them of Zidon also and Tyre they gave carrs, that they should bring cedar trees from Libanus, which should be brought by floats to the haven of Joppe, according as it was commanded them by Cyrus king of the Persians

56 And in the second year and second month after his coming to the temple of God at Jerusalem began Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the son of Josedec, and then brethren, and the priests, and the Levites, and all they that were come unto Jerusalem out of the captivity

57 And they laid the foundation of the house of God in the first day of the second month, in the second year after they were come to Jewry and Jerusalem

Chap V ver 48 — and made ready the altar &c ] Thus the author of this book places the consecration of the altar, and the renewal of the sacrifices, after the departure of Zerubbabel and the second year of Darius, ver 6 whereas the true Ezra informs us that this happened in the reign of Cyrus, and before Artaxerxes had forbidden the continuance of the rebuilding of the temple Ezra iii 1 — iv 17 Cabnet

58 || And they appointed the Levites from twenty years old over the works of the Lord. Then stood up Jesus, and his sons and brethren, and Cadmiel his brother, and the sons of Madiabun, with the sons of Joda the son of Eliadun, with their sons and brethren, all Levites, with one accord || setters forward of the business, labouring to advance the works in the house of God. So the workmen built the temple of the Lord.

59 And the priests stood arrayed in their vestments with musical instruments and trumpets, and the Levites the sons of Asaph had cymbals,

60 Singing songs of thanksgiving, and praising the Lord, || according as David the king of Israel had ordained.

61 And they sung with loud voices songs to the praise of the Lord, because his mercy and glory is for ever in all Israel.

62 And all the people sounded trumpets, and shouted with a loud voice, singing songs of thanksgiving unto the Lord for the rearing up of the house of the Lord.

63 Also of the priests and Levites, and of the chief of their families, the ancients who had seen the former house came to the building of this with weeping and great crying.

64 But many with trumpets and joy shouted with loud voice,

65 Inasmuch that the trumpets might not be || heard for the weeping of the people yet the multitude sounded marvelously, so that it was heard afar off.

66 Wherefore when the enemies of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin heard it, they came to know what that noise of trumpets should mean.

67 And they perceived that they that were of the captivity did build the temple unto the Lord God of Israel.

68 So they went to Zorobabel and Jesus, and to the chief of the families, and said unto them, We will build together with you.

69 For we likewise, as ye, do obey your Lord, and do sacrifice unto him from the days of || Azbarezeth the king of the Assyrians who brought us hither.

70 Then Zorobabel and Jesus and the chief of the families of Israel said unto them, It is not for us and you to build together in house unto the Lord our God.

71 We ourselves alone will build unto the Lord of Israel, according as Cyrus the king of the Persians hath commanded us.

72 But the heathen of the land lying heavy upon the inhabitants of Judea, and holding them strait, hindered their building;

73 And by their secret plots, and popular persuasions, and commotions, they hindered the finishing of the building all the time that king Cyrus lived. so they were hindered from building for the space of two years, || until the reign of Darius.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The prophets stir up the people to build the temple. 2 Darius is solicited to hinder it. 27 but he doth further it by all means, 32 and threateneth those that shall hinder it.

NOW in the second year of the reign of Darius Aggeus and Zacharias the son of || Addo, the prophets, prophesied unto the Jews in Jewry and Jerusalem in the name of the Lord God of Israel, || which was upon them.

3 Then stood up Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the son of Josedec, and began to build the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, the prophets of the Lord being with them, and helping them.

4 At the same time came unto them Sisinnes the governor of Syria and Phenice, with || Sathrabuzanes and his companions, and said unto them,

5 By whose appointment do ye build this house and this roof, and perform all the other things? and who are the workmen that perform these things?

6 Nevertheless the elders of the Jews obtained favour, because the Lord had visited the captivity.

7 And they were not hindered from building, until such time as signification was given unto Darius concerning them, and an answer received.

8 The copy of the letters which Sisinnes, governor of Syria and Phenice, and Sathrabuzanes, with their companions, rulers in Syria and Phenice, wrote and sent unto Darius, To king Darius, greeting.

9 Let all things be known unto our lord the king, that being come into the country of Judea, and entered into the city of Jerusalem, we found in the city of Jerusalem the ancients of the Jews that were of the captivity.

10 Building an house unto the Lord, great and new, of hewn and costly stones, and the timber already laid upon the walls.

11 And those works are done with great speed, and the work goeth on prosperously in their hands, and with all glory and diligence is it made.

11 Then asked we these elders, saying, By whose commandment build ye this house, and lay the foundations of these works?

12 Therefore to the intent that we might give knowledge unto thee by writing, we demanded of them who were the chief doers, and we required of them the names in writing of their principal men.

13 So they gave us this answer, We are the servants of the Lord which made heaven and earth.

14 And as for this house, it was builded many years ago by a king of Israel great and strong, and was finished.

15 But when our fathers provoked God unto wrath, and sinned against the Lord of Israel, which is in heaven, he gave them over into the power of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, of the Chaldees, 16 Who pulled down the house, and burned it, and carried away the people captives unto Babylon.

17 But in the first year that king Cyrus reigned over the country of Babylon Cyrus the king wrote to build up this house.

18 And the holy vessels of gold and of silver, that Nabuchodonosor had carried away out of the house at Jerusalem, and had set them in his own temple, those Cyrus the king brought forth again out of the temple at Babylon, and they were delivered to || Zorobabel and to Sanabassar the ruler,

19 With commandment that he should carry away the same vessels, and put them in the temple at Jerusalem; and that the temple of the Lord should be built in his place.

20 Then the same Sanabassar, being come hither, laid the foundations of the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, and from that time to this being still a building, it is not yet fully ended.

21 Now therefore, if it seem good unto the king, let search be made among the || records of king Cyrus.

22 And if it be found that the building of the house of the Lord at Jerusalem hath been done with the consent of king Cyrus, and if our Lord the king be so minded, let him signify unto us thereof.

23 Then commanded king Darius to seek among the records at Babylon and so at Ecbatana the palace, which is in the country of Media, there was found a || roll wherein these things were recorded.

24 In the first year of the reign of Cyrus,

Before

king Cyrus commanded that the house of the Lord at Jerusalem should be built again, where they do sacrifice with continual fire:

25 Whose height shall be sixty cubits, and the breadth sixty cubits, with three rows of hewn stones, and one row of new wood of that country, and the expences thereof to be given out of the house of king Cyrus:

26 And that the holy vessels of the house of the Lord, both of gold and silver, that Nabuchodonosor took out of the house at Jerusalem, and brought to Babylon, should be restored to the house at Jerusalem, and be set in the place where they were before.

27 And also he commanded that Sisanes the governor of Syria and Phenice, and Sathrabuzanes, and their companions, and those which were appointed rulers in Syria and Phenice, should be careful not to meddle with the place, but suffer Zorobabel, the servant of the Lord, and governor of Judea, and the elders of the Jews, to build the house of the Lord in that place.

28 I have commanded also to have it built up whole again, and that they look diligently to help those that be of the captivity of the Jews, till the house of the Lord be finished.

29 And out of the tribute of Celosyria and Phenice a portion carefully to be given these men for the sacrifices of the Lord, that is, to Zorobabel the governor, for bullocks, and rams, and lambs,

30 And also corn, salt, wine, and oil, and that continually every year without farther question, according as the priests that be in Jerusalem shall signify to be daily spent.

31 That || offerings may be made to the most high God for the king and for his children, and that they may pray for their lives || Or drink offer

32 And he commanded that whosoever should transgress, yea, or make light of any thing afore spoken or written, out of his own house should a tree be taken, and he thereon be hanged, and all his goods seized for the king.

33 The Lord therefore, whose name is there called upon, utterly destroy every king and nation, that stretcheth out his hand to hinder or endamage that house of the Lord in Jerusalem.

34 I Darius the king have ordained that according unto these things it be done with diligence.

10 Having determined to deal graciously, I have given order, that such of the nation of the Jews, and of the priests and Levites, being within our realm, as are willing and desirous, should go with thee unto Jerusalem

<sup>957</sup> 12 That they may look unto the affairs of Judea and Jerusalem, agreeably to that which is in the law of the Lord,

13 And carry the gifts unto the Lord of Israel to Jerusalem, which I and my friends have vowed, and all the gold and silver that in the country of Babylon can be found, to the Lord in Jerusalem,

14 With that also which is given of the people for the temple of the Lord their God at Jerusalem: and that silver and gold may be collected for bullocks, rams, and lambs, and things thereunto appertaining,

15 To the end that they may offer sacrifices unto the Lord upon the altar of the Lord their God, which is in Jerusalem.

16 And whatsoever thou and thy brethren will do with the silver and gold, that do, according to the will of thy God

17 And the holy vessels of the Lord, which are given thee for the use of the temple of thy God, which is in Jerusalem, thou shalt set before thy God in Jerusalem

18 And whatsoever thing else thou shalt remember for the use of the temple of thy God, thou shalt give it out of the king's treasury

19 And I king Artaxerxes have also commanded the keepers of the treasures in Syria and Phenice, that whatsoever Esdras the priest and the reader of the law of the most high God shall send for, they should give it him with speed,

20 To the sum of an hundred talents of silver, likewise also of wheat even to an hundred cors, and an hundred pieces of wine, and other things in abundance

21 Let all things be performed after the law of God diligently unto the most high God, that wrath come not upon the kingdom of the king and his sons

22 I command you also, that ye require no tax, nor any other imposition, of any of the priests, or Levites, or holy singers, or porters, or ministers of the temple, or of any that have doings in this temple, and that no man have authority to impose any thing upon them

23 And thou, Esdras, according to the wisdom of God ordain judges and justices, that they may judge in all Syria and Phenice all those that know the law of thy God, and those that know it not, thou shalt teach

24 And whosoever shall transgress the law of thy God, and of the king, shall be punished diligently, whether it be by death, or other punishment, by penalty of money, or by imprisonment

25 Then said Esdras the scribe, Blessed be the only Lord God of my fathers, who hath put these things into the heart of the king, to glorify his house that is in Jerusalem

26 And hath honoured me in the sight of the king, and his counsellors, and all his friends and nobles.

55 And I weighed them the gold, and the silver, and the holy vessels of the house of our Lord, which the king, and his council, and the princes, and all Israel, had given

56 And when I had weighed it, I delivered unto them six hundred and sixty talents of silver, and silver vessels of an hundred talents, and an hundred talents of gold,

57 And twenty golden vessels, and || twelve vessels of brass, even of fine brass, glittering like gold

58 And I said unto them, Both ye are holy unto the Lord, and the vessels are holy, and the gold and the silver is a vow unto the Lord, the Lord of our fathers

59 Watch ye, and keep them till ye deliver them to the chief of the priests and Levites, and to the principal men of the families of Israel, || in Jerusalem, into the chambers of the house of our God.

60 So the priests and the Levites, who had received the silver and the gold and the vessels, brought them unto Jerusalem, into the temple of the Lord

61 And from the river Theras we departed the twelfth day of the first month, and came to Jerusalem by the mighty hand of our Lord, which was with us and from the || beginning of our journey the Lord delivered us from every enemy, and so we came to Jerusalem

62 And when we had been there three days, the gold and silver that was weighed was delivered in the house of our Lord on the fourth day || unto Marmoth the priest the son of Iri

63 And with him was Eleazar the son of Phinees, and with them were Josabad the son of Jesu and || Moeth the son of Sabban, Levites all was delivered them by number and weight.

64 And all the weight of them was written up the same hour

65 Moreover they that were come out of the captivity offered sacrifice unto the Lord God of Israel, even twelve bullocks for all Israel, fourscore and sixteen rams,

66 || Threescore and twelve lambs, goats for a peace offering, twelve, all of them a sacrifice to the Lord

67 And they delivered the king's commandments unto the king's stewards, and to the governors of Celosyria and Phenice, and they honoured the people and the temple of God

68 Now when these things were done, the rulers came unto me, and said,

69 The nation of Israel, the princes, the priests and Levites, have not put away from them the strange people of the land, nor the pollutions of the Gentiles, to wit, of the Canaanites, Hittites, Pheresites, Jebusites, and the Moabites, Egyptians, and Edomites

the land, and from the beginning of this matter the rulers and the great men have been partakers of this iniquity

71 And as soon as I had heard these things, I rent my clothes, and the holy garment, and pulled off the hair from off my head and beard, and sat me down sad and very heavy.

72 So all they that were then moved at the word of the Lord God of Israel assembled unto me, while I mourned for the iniquity, but I sat still full of heaviness until the evening sacrifice.

73 Then rising up from the fast with my clothes and the holy garment rent, and bowing my knees, and stretching forth my hands unto the Lord,

74 I said, O Lord, I am confounded and ashamed before thy face;

75 For our sins are multiplied above our heads, and our ignorances have reached up unto heaven.

76 For ever since the time of our fathers we have been and are in great sin, even unto this day

77 And for our sins and our fathers' we with our brethren and our kings and our priests were given up unto the kings of the earth, to the sword, and to captivity, and for a prey with shame, unto this day

78 And now in some measure hath mercy been shewed unto us from thee, O Lord, that there should be left us a root and a name in the place of thy sanctuary;

79 And to discover unto us a light in the house of the Lord our God, and to give us food in the time of our servitude

80 Yea, when we were in bondage, we were not forsaken of our Lord, but he made us gracious before the kings of Persia, so that they gave us food,

81 Yea, and honoured the temple of our Lord, and raised up the desolate Sion, that they have given us a sure abiding in Jewry and Jerusalem

82 And now, O Lord, what shall we say, having these things? for we have transgressed thy commandments, which thou gavest by the hand of thy servants, the prophets, saying,

83 That the land, which ye enter into to possess is an heritage, is a land polluted with the pollutions of the strangers of the land, and they have filled it with their uncleanness

84 Therefore now shall ye not join your daughters unto their sons, neither shall ye take their daughters unto your sons

85 Moreover ye shall never seek to have peace with them, that ye may be strong, and eat the good things of the land, and that ye may leave the inheritance of the land unto your children for evermore

86 And all that is befallen is done unto us for our wicked works and great sins for thou, O Lord, didst make our sins light, 87 And didst give unto us such a root, but we have turned back again to transgress thy law, and to mingle ourselves with the uncleanness of the nations of the land.

88 Mightest not thou be angry with us to destroy us, till thou hadst left us neither root, seed, nor name?

89 O Lord of Israel, thou art true for we are left a root this day.

90 Behold, now are we before thee in our iniquities, for we cannot stand any longer by reason of these things before thee.

91 And as Esdras in his prayer made his confession, weeping, and lying flat upon the ground before the temple, there gathered unto him from Jerusalem a very great multitude of men and women and children: for there was great weeping among the multitude

92 Then Jechonias the son of Jeels, one of the sons of Israel, called out, and said, O Esdras, we have sinned against the Lord God, we have married strange women of the nations of the land, and now is all Israel aloft.

93 Let us make an oath to the Lord, that we will put away all our wives, which we have taken of the heathen, with their children,

94 Like as thou hast decreed, and as many as do obey the law of the Lord

95 Arise, and put in execution for to thee doth this matter appertain, and we will be with thee do valiantly

96 So Esdras arose, and took an oath of the chief of the priests and Levites of all Israel to do after these things, and so they sware meat nor drink water, mourning for the great iniquities of the multitude.

3 And there was a proclamation in all Jewry and Jerusalem to all them that were of the captivity, that they should be gathered together at Jerusalem.

4 And that whosoever met not there within two or three days, according as the elders that bare rule appointed, their cattle should be seized to the use of the temple, and himself cast out from them that were of the captivity.

5 And in three days were all they of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin gathered together at Jerusalem the twentieth day of the ninth month.

6 And all the multitude sat trembling in the broad court of the temple because of the present foul weather.

7 So Esdras arose up, and said unto them, Ye have transgressed the law in marrying strange wives, thereby to increase the sins of Israel.

8 And now by confessing give glory unto the Lord God of our fathers, 9 And do his will, and separate yourselves from the heathen of the land, and from the strange women.

10 Then cried the whole multitude, and said with a loud voice, Like as thou hast spoken, so will we do.

11 But inasmuch as the people are many, and it is foul weather, so that we cannot stand without, and this is not a work of a day or two, seeing our sin in these things is spread far.

12 Therefore let the rulers of the multitude stay, and let all them of our habitations that have strange wives come at the time appointed.

13 And with them the rulers and judges of every place, till we turn away the wrath of the Lord from us for this matter.

14 Then Jonathan the son of Azazel and Ezechias the son of Theocanus accordingly took this matter upon them, and Mosolun and Levis and Sabbathus helped them.

15 And they that were of the captivity did according to all these things.

16 And Esdras the priest chose unto him the principal men of their families, all by name, and in the first day of the tenth month they sat together to examine the matter.

38 And the whole multitude came together with one accord into the broad place of the holy porch toward the east:

39 And they spake unto Esdras the priest and reader, that he would bring the law of Moses, that was given of the Lord God of Israel

40 So Esdras the chief priest brought the law unto the whole multitude from man to woman, and to all the priests, to hear the law in the first day of the seventh month.

41 And he read in the broad court before the holy porch from morning unto midday, before both men and women; and all the multitude gave heed unto the law

II. ESDRAS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE second book of Esdras is not now to be found in any Hebrew or Greek manuscripts. It is supposed to have been originally written in the Greek language but is extant only in a few Latin copies, and in an Arabick version. It is generally maintained, that the work could not have been the genuine production of Esra, as it seems to bear some intrinsic marks of having been composed after his time, and, indeed after the period at which the prophetick spirit is reputed to have ceased notwithstanding also the author's confident assumption of the prophetick character, his pretensions to inspiration have not been admitted. It is not indeed, probable, that an inspired writer would have claimed a name to which he was not entitled, or have interspersed in his work those extraneous contents and inconsistencies which occasionally disfigure and degrade this production. The book, it is true, contains much sublime instruction many animated exhortations to righteousness, and many sentiments not unworthy of the sacred source from whence they are related to have flowed. It represents Esra as commanded to remonstrate with the people for their disobedience and on their contempt of God's words, as addressing himself to the heathen, whom he enjoins to prepare for that 'everlasting light' which should shine upon them. It describes the Prophet as pleading with submissive piety for the removal of the afflictions of his captive countrymen, as anxiously inquiring why the chosen people of the Almighty should suffer severer punishments for their sins than the heathen, for whom they were seemingly rejected, chap. iii 28, iv 23—31, as lamenting the effects of entailed corruption, chap. iii 10—22, iv 40—52, vii 48, as bewailing the evil propensities and condition of men, of whom a few only appear to be marked out and distinguished as objects of Divine favour, chap. iv 12, vii 4—54, ix 15, 16. He is said to have been honoured with visions and Divine communications in answer to those inquiries. The boasted revelations are described in a lofty and prophetick style in a manner similar to that adopted by Daniel, Ezekiel, and St. John. They justify the people's discontent with becoming dignity the pious curiosity and complaints of man, chap. iv 5—11, contain very elevated descriptions of God's attributes, chap. vii 62—70, viii 20—30, xvi 54—64, and rest the equity of His proceedings on the projected decisions of a future judgment. They impart consolatory assurances of returning favour, and represent, in an interesting vision, Jerusalem reestablished on its foundations, chap. x 10—27 &c. The angel likewise, in these pretended visions, reveals many striking prophecies relative to the Messiah, chap. ii 94—48 the destruction of the Roman empire, chap. xi, xii, and the fate of Egypt, of Babylon, chap. xv, xvi, and of other nations, besides others of very obscure and uncertain interpretation, chap. v 1—18, vi 7—28.

This book was never admitted into the Hebrew canon, and there is no sufficient authority to prove that it was ever extant in the Hebrew language. Its pretended prophecies are not produced in evidence by Christian writers, striking as such testimony must have been if they had been genuine, and the book was never publicly or generally acknowledged either in the Greek or Latin Church nor was it ever inserted in the sacred catalogue, by either councils or fathers, but it is expressly represented as Apocryphal by St. Jerome who describes it as rejected by the Church.

From many passages occurring in this book, which bear a very manifest resemblance to doctrines, sentiments and expressions contained in the writings of the New Testament, and from the circumstance of our Saviour being mentioned by name in much clearer terms than in the canonical books of prophecy, (see chap. vii 28, 29,) there is reason to conclude that the whole, or at least the greater part of it was written after the promulgation of the Gospel. The work is indeed of too mixed and mysterious a character to admit any positive determination. Amidst passages transcribed from the Gospel, it may contain fragments of what was written before the time of Christ, and many writers have considered it as a compilation of pieces, of which some at least may have been the genuine production of Ezra. Dr. Gray

There may be reason to doubt whether this book in its present form was written by any one author. In the two last chapters there is a considerable difference of style from that of the rest of the book, there is no mention of Esra in them, and nothing which must be necessarily appropriated to the author of the immediately preceding chapters, but rather the contrary. In some ancient copies, indeed the two last chapters of this book form a separate book under the title of the fifth book of Esdras. They are written very much in the style and manner of the ancient Hebrew Prophets. Lee

4 And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

5 Go thy way, and shew my people their sinful deeds, and their children their wickedness which they have done against me, that they may tell their children's children.

6 Because he sins of their fathers are increased in them for they have forgotten me, and have offered unto strange gods.

7 Am not I even he that brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage? but they have provoked me unto wrath, and despised my counsels.

8 Pull thou off then the hair of thy head, and cast all evil upon them, for they have not been obedient unto my law, but it is a rebellious people.

9 How long shall I forbear them, unto whom I have done so much good?

10 Many kings have I destroyed for their sakes, Pharaoh with his servants and all his power have I smitten down.

11 All the nations have I destroyed before them, and in the east I have scattered the people of two provinces, even of Tyre and Sidon, and have slain all their enemies.

12 Speak thou therefore unto them, saying, Thus saith the Lord,

13 I led you through the sea, and in the beginning gave you a large and safe passage, I gave you Moses for a leader, and Aaron for a priest.

14 I gave you light in a pillar of fire, and great wonders have I done among you, yet have ye forgotten me, saith the Lord.

15 Thus saith the Almighty Lord, The quails were as a token to you, I gave you tents for your safeguard nevertheless ye murmured there,

16 And triumphed not in my name for the destruction of your enemies, but ever to this day do ye yet murmur.

17 Where are the benefits that I have done for you? when ye were hungry and thirsty in the wilderness, did ye not cry unto me,

18 Saying, Why hast thou brought us into this wilderness to kill us? it had been better for us to have served the Egyptians, than to die in this wilderness.

19 Then had I pity upon your mournings, and gave you manna to eat, so ye did eat angels' bread.

20 When ye were thirsty, did I not cleave the rock, and waters flowed out to your fill? for the heat I covered you with the leaves of the trees.

21 I divided among you a fruitful land, I cast out the Canaanites, the Pherezites, and the Philistines, before you what shall I yet do more for you? saith the Lord.

22 Thus saith the Almighty Lord, When ye were in the wilderness, in the river of the Amorites, being athirst, and blaspheming my name, 23 I gave you not fire for your blasphemies, but cast a tree in the water, and made the river sweet.

24 What shall I do unto thee, O Jacob? thou, Juda, wouldest not obey me. I will turn me to other nations, and unto those will I give my name, that they may keep my statutes.

25 Seeing ye have forsaken me, I will forsake you also, when ye desire me to be gracious unto you, I shall have no mercy upon you.

26 Whensoever ye shall call upon me, I will not hear you for ye have defiled your hands with blood, and your feet are swift to commit manslaughter.

27 Ye have not as if were forsaken me, but your own selves, saith the Lord.

28 Thus saith the Almighty Lord, Have I not prayed you as a father his sons, as a mother her daughters, and a nurse her young babes, 29 That ye would be my people, and I should be your God, that ye would be my children, and I should be your father?

30 I gathered you together, as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, but now, what shall I do unto you? I will cast you out from my face.

31 When ye offer unto me, I will turn my face from you for your solemn feasts, your new moons, and your circumcisions, have I forsaken.

32 I sent unto you my servants the prophets, whom ye have taken and slain, and extended as far as Tyre and Sidon.

23-25 — in the river of the Amorites &c.] In these two verses the writer seems to confound different historical facts for he alludes to the miracle of Moses sweetening the water which occurred at the river Arnon Numb xxi 16, which was not in reality at the waters of Marah, Exod xv 25.

11 — I have scattered the people — even of Tyre and Sidon.] This fact of God's having scattered the people of Tyre and Sidon in favour of His people returning from Egypt receives no confirmation from any other part of Scripture, and the relation of it here may be thought to impugn the authority of this book. Arnold. Or it may be thought that the Canaanites are here meant, who torn their bodies in pieces, whose blood I will require of your hands, saith the Lord.

33 Thus saith the Almighty Lord, Your house is desolate, I will cast you out as the wind doth stubble.

34 And your children shall not be fruitful, for they have despised my commandment, and done the thing that is evil before me

35 Your houses will I give to a people that shall come, which not having heard of me yet shall believe me, to whom I have shewed no signs, yet they shall do that I have commanded them.

36 They have seen no prophets, yet they shall call their sins to remembrance, and acknowledge them

37 I take to witness the grace of the people to come, whose little ones rejoice in gladness and though they have not seen me with bodily eyes, yet in spirit they believe the thing that I say

38 And now, brother, behold what glory, and see the people that come from the east

39 Unto whom I will give for leaders, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Oseas, Amos, and Micheas, Joel, Abdias, and Jonas, 40 Nahum, and Abacuc, Sophonias, Aggeus, Zachary, and Malachy, which is called also an 'angel of the Lord.

It may also be remarked that the Prophets are here mentioned not according to the order of the Hebrew Bibles, but according to that of the Septuagint or Greek version, circumstances which bespeak this second book of Esdras to be of later date than the time of Ezra Dr Gray

47 So he answered and said unto me, It is the Son of God, whom they have confessed in the world. Then began I greatly to commend them that stood so stiffly for the name of the Lord.

48 Then the angel said unto me, Go thy way, and tell my people what manner of things, and how great wonders of the Lord thy God, thou hast seen

CHAP III

1 Esdras is troubled, 13 and acknowledgeth the sins of the people 28 yet complaineth that the heathen were lords over them, being more wicked than they

IN the thirtieth year after the ruin of the city I was in Babylon, and lay troubled upon my bed, and my thoughts came up over my heart

2 For I saw the desolation of Sion, and the wealth of them that dwelt at Babylon

3 And my spirit was sore moved, so that

I began to speak words full of fear to the most High, and said,

4 O Lord, who bearest rule, thou speakest at the beginning, when thou didst plant the earth, and that thyself alone, and commandedst the people,

5 And gavest a body unto Adam without soul, which was the workmanship of thine hands, and didst breathe into him the breath of life, and he was made living before thee,

6 And thou leddest him into paradise, which thy right hand had planted before ever the earth came forward.

7 And unto him thou gavest commandment to love thy way which he transgressed, and immediately thou appointedst death in him and in his generations, of whom came nations, tribes, people, and kindreds, out of number.

8 And every people walked after their own will, and did wonderful things before thee, and despised thy commandments.

9 And again in process of time thou broughtest the flood upon those that dwelt in the world, and destroyedst them.

10 And it came to pass in every of them, that as death was to Adam, so was the flood to these.

11 Nevertheless one of them thou leftest, namely, Noah with his household, of whom came all righteous men.

12 And it happened, that when they that dwelt upon the earth began to multiply, and had gotten them many children, and were a great people, they began again to be more ungodly than the first.

13 Now when they lived so wickedly before thee, thou didst choose thee a man from among them, whose name was Abraham

14 Him thou lovedst, and unto him only thou shewedst thy will

15 And madest an everlasting covenant with him, promising him that thou wouldst never forsake his seed

16 And unto him thou gavest Isaac, and unto Isaac also thou gavest Jacob and Esau. As for Jacob, thou didst choose him to thee, and put by Esau and so Jacob became a great multitude.

17 And it came to pass, that when thou leddest his seed out of Egypt, thou broughtest them up to the mount Sinai

18 And hewing the heavens, thou didst set fast the earth, and movedst the whole world, and madest the depths to tremble, and troubledst the men of that age.

19 And thy glory went through four gates, of fire, and of earthquake, and of wind, and of gold, that thou mightest give the law unto the seed of Jacob, and diligence unto the generation of Israel.

20 And yet tookest thou not away from them a wicked heart, that thy law might bring forth fruit in them.

21 For the first Adam, bearing a wicked heart transgressed, and was overcome; and so be all they that are born of him

22 Thus infirmity was made permanent, and the law came in the heart of the people with the malignity of the root; so that the good departed away, and the evil abode still

23 So the times passed away, and the years were brought to an end then didst thou raise thee up a servant, called David 24 Whom thou commandedst to build a city unto thy name, and to offer incense and oblations unto thee therein.

25 When this was done many years, then they that inhabited the city forsook thee,

26 And in all things did even as Adam and all his generations had done for they also had a wicked heart.

27 And so thou gavest thy city over into the hands of thine enemies

28 Are their deeds then any better that inhabit Babylon, that they should therefore have the dominion over Zion?

29 For when I came thither, and had seen iniquities without number, then my soul saw many evil doers in this thirtieth year, so that my heart failed me.

30 For I have seen how thou sufferest them sinning, and hast spared wicked doers and hast destroyed thy people, and hast preserved thine enemies, and hast not signified it

31 I do not remember how this way may be left. Are they then of Babylon better than they of Zion?

32 Or is there any other people that knoweth thee beside Israel? or what generation hath so believed thy covenants as Jacob?

33 And yet then reward appeareth not, and then labour hath no fruit for I have gone here and there through the heathen,

16 The floods of the sea also is like man, took counsel, and said, Come, let us go up and subvert the woods of the land, that there also we may make us another country.

17 The thought of the wood was in vain, for the fire came and consumed it.

18 The thought of the floods of the sea came likewise to nought, for the sand stood up and stopped them.

19 If thou wert judge now betwixt these two, whom wouldest thou begin to justify?
or whom wouldest thou condemn?

20 I answered and said, Verily it is a foolish thought, that they both have devised, for the ground is given unto the wood, and the sea also hath his place to bear his floods.

21 Then answered he me, and said, Thou hast given a right judgment, but why judgest thou not thyself also?

22 For like as the ground is given unto the wood, and the sea to his floods:
even so they that dwell upon the earth may understand nothing but that which is upon the earth: and he that dwelleth upon the heavens may only understand the things that are above the height of the heavens.

23 Then answered I and said, I beseech thee, O Lord, let me have understanding.

24 For it was not my mind to be curious of the high things, but of such as pass by us daily, namely, wherefore Israel is given up as a reproach to the heathen, and for what cause the people whom thou hast loved is given over unto ungodly na-is brought to nought, and the written co-

Then said he unto me, Thou art sore troubled in mind for Israel's sake: lovest thou that people better than he that made them?

34 And I said, No, Lord: but of very grief have I spoken: for my remembrance me every hour, while I labour to comprehend the way of the most High, and to seek out part of his judgment.

35 And he said unto me, Thou canst not. And I said, Wherefore, Lord? whither unto was I born then? or why was not my mother's womb then my grave, that I might not have seen the travail of Jacob, and the wearisome toil of the stock of Israel?

36 And he said unto me, Number me the things that are not yet come, gather me together the drops that are scattered abroad, make me the flowers green again that are withered, 37 Open me the places that are closed, and bring me forth the winds that are shut up, shew me the image of a voice: and then I will declare to thee the thing that thou labourst to know.

38 And I said, O Lord that bearest rule, who may know these things, but he that hath not his dwelling with men?

39 As for me, I am unwise: how may I then speak of these things, whereof thou askest me?

40 Then said he unto me, Like as thou canst do none of these things that I have spoken of, even so canst thou not find out my judgment, or in the end the love that I have promised unto my people.

41 And I said, Behold, O Lord, yet art thou nigh unto them that be reserved till the end: and what shall they do that have been before me, or we that be now, or they that shall come after us?

42 And he said unto me, I will liken my judgment unto a ring: like as there is no slackness of the last, even so there is no swiftness of the first.

43 So I answered and said, Couldst thou not make those that have been made, and be now, and that are for to come, at once; that thou mightest shew thy judgment the sooner?

44 Then answered he me, and said, The creature may not haste above the maker, neither may the world hold them at once that shall be created therein.

45 And I said, As thou hast said unto thy servant, that thou, which givest life to all, hast given life at once to the creature that thou hast created, and the creature hast it: even so, might now also bear them life, now be present at once.

46 And he said unto me, And the womb of a woman, that beareth her, if thou bringest forth children, why dost thou it not together, but one after another? pray her therefore to bring forth ten children at once.

47 And I said, She cannot: but must do it by distance of time.

48 Then said he unto me, Even so have I given the womb of the earth to those that be sown in it in their times.

49 For like as a young child may not bring forth the things that belong to the aged, even so have I disposed the world which I created.

50 And I asked, and said, Seeing thou hast now given me the way, I will proceed to speak before thee: for our mother, of whom thou hast told me that she is young, draweth now nigh unto age.

51 He answered me, and said, Ask a woman that beareth children, and she shall tell thee.

52 My answer, Wherefore are not they whom thou hast now brought forth like those that were before, but less of stature?

53 And she shall answer thee, They that be born in the strength of youth are of one fashion, and they that are born in the time of age, when the womb faileth, are otherwise.

54 Consider thou therefore also, how that ye are less of stature than those that were before you.

55 And so are they that come after you less than ye, as the creatures which now begin to be old, and have passed over the strength of youth.

56 Then said I, Lord, I beseech thee, if I have found favour in thy sight, shew thy servant by whom thou visitest thy creature.

CHAP. VI.

1 God's purpose is eternal. 8 The next world shall follow this immediately. 13 What shall fall out at the last. 31 He is promised more knowledge. 38 and reckoneth up the works of the creation. 57 and complaineth that they have no part in the world for whom it was made.

AND he said unto me, In the beginning, when the earth was made, before the borders of the world stood, or ever the winds blew,

2 Before it thundered and lightened, or ever the foundations of paradise were laid,

3 Before the fair flowers were seen, or ever the moveable powers were established, before the mountains and the foundations of angels were gathered together.

7 Or ever the heights of the air were lifted up, before the measures of the firmament were named, or ever the channels in Sun were hot.

8 And ere the present years were brought out, and or ever the inventions of them that now sin were turned, before they were sealed that have gathered faith for a treasure.

9 Then did I consider these things, and they all were made through me alone, and through none other: by me also they shall be ended, and by none other.

10 Then answered I and said, What shall be the parting asunder of the times? or when shall be the end of the first, and the beginning of it that followeth?

11 And he said unto me, From Abraham unto Isaac, when Jacob and Esau were born of him, Jacob's hand held first the heel of Esau.

12 For Esau is the end of the world, and Jacob is the beginning of it that followeth.

13 The hand of man is betwixt the heel and the hand: other question, Esdras, ask thou not.

14 I answered then and said, O Lord that bearest rule, if I have found favour in thy sight, 15 I beseech thee, shew thy servant the end of thy tokens, whereof thou shewedst me part the last night.

16 So he answered and said unto me, Stand up upon thy feet, and hear a mighty sounding voice.

17 And it shall be as it were a great motion: for the place where thou standest shall be moved.

18 And therefore when it speaketh be not afraid: for the word is of the end, and the foundation of the earth is understood.

19 And why? because the speech of these things trembleth and is moved for it knoweth that the end of these things must be changed.

20 And it happened, that when I had heard it I stood up upon my feet, and hearkened, and, behold, there was a voice that spake, and the sound of it was like the sound of many waters.

21 And it said, Behold, the days come, that I will begin to draw nigh, and to visit them that dwell upon the earth,

22 And will begin to make inquisition of them, what they be that have hurt unjustly with their unrighteousness, and when the affliction of Dion shall be fulfilled,

23 And when the world, that shall begin to vanish away, shall be finished, then will I shew these tokens: the books shall be opened before the firmament, and they shall see all together.

24 And the children of a year old shall speak with their voices, the women with child shall bring forth untimely children of three or four months old, and they shall live, and be raised up.

25 And suddenly shall the sown places appear unsown, the full storehouses shall suddenly be found empty.

26 And the trumpet shall give a sound, which when every man heareth, they shall be suddenly afraid.

27 At that time shall friends fight one against another like enemies, and the earth shall stand in fear with those that dwell therein, the springs of the fountains shall stand still, and in three hours they shall not run.

28 Whosoever remaineth from all these that I have told thee shall escape, and see my salvation, and the end of your world.

29 And the men that are received shall see it, who have not tasted death from their birth: and the heart of the inhabitants shall be changed, and turned into another meaning.

30 For evil shall be put out, and deceit shall be quenched.

31 As for faith, it shall flourish, corruption shall be overcome, and the truth, which hath been so long without fruit, shall be declared.

32 And when he talked with me, behold, I looked by little and little upon him before whom I stood.

33 And these words said he unto me, I am come to shew thee the time of the night to come.

34 If thou wilt pray yet more, and fast seven days again, I shall tell thee greater things by day than I have heard.

35 For thy voice is heard before the most High: for the Mighty hath seen thy righteous dealing, he hath seen also thy chastity, which thou hast had ever since thy youth.

36 And therefore hath he sent me to shew thee all these things, and to say unto thee, Be of good comfort, and fear not.

37 And hasten not with the times that are past, to think vain things, that thou mayest not hasten from the latter times.

38 And it came to pass after this, that I wept again, and fasted seven days in like manner, that I might fulfil the three words which he told me.

36 And in the eighth night was my heart vexed within me again, and I began to speak before the most High.

37 For my spirit was greatly set on fire, and my soul was in distress.

38 And I said, O Lord, thou hast created from the beginning of the creation, even the first day, and saidst thus; 'Let heaven and earth be made; and thy word was a perfect work.

39 And then was the spirit, and darkness and silence were on every side; the sound of man's voice was not yet formed.

40 Then commandedst thou a fair light to come forth of thy treasures, that thy work might appear.

41 Upon the second day thou madest the spirit of the firmament, and commandedst it to part asunder, and to make a division betwixt the waters, that the one part might go up, and the other remain beneath.

42 Upon the third day thou didst command that the waters should be gathered in the seventh part of the earth: six parts hast thou dried up, and kept them, to the intent that of these some being planted of God and tilled might serve thee.

43 For as soon as thy word went forth the work was made.

44 For immediately there was great and innumerable fruit, and many and divers pleasures for the taste, and flowers of unchangeable colour, and odours of wonderful smell: and this was done the third day.

45 Upon the fourth day thou commandedst that the sun should shine, and the moon give her light, and the stars should be in order:

46 And gavest them a charge to do service unto man, that was to be made.

47 Upon the fifth day thou madest unto the seventh part, where the waters were gathered, that it should bring forth living creatures, fowls and fishes and so it came to pass.

48 For the dumb water and without life brought forth living things at the commandment of God, that all people might praise thy wondrous works.

49 Then didst thou ordain two living creatures, the one thou calledst Enoch, and the other Leviathan,

50 And didst separate the one from the other: for the seventh part, namely, where the waters were gathered together, might not hold them both.

51 Unto Enoch thou gavest one part, which was dried up the third day, that he should dwell in the seventh part, wherein are a thousand hills:

52 But unto Leviathan thou gavest the seventh part, namely, the moist; and hast kept him to be devoured of whom thou wilt, and when.

53 Upon the sixth day thou gavest commandment unto the earth, that before thee it should bring forth beasts, cattle, and creeping things:

54 And after these, Adam also, whom thou madest lord of all thy creatures: of him come we all, and the people also whom thou hast chosen.

55 All this have I spoken before thee, O Lord, because thou madest the world for our sakes.

56 As for the other people, which also come of Adam, thou hast said that they are nothing, but be like unto spittle, and hast likened the abundance of them unto a drop that falleth from a vessel.

57 And now, O Lord, behold, these heathen, which have ever been reputed as nothing, have begun to be lords over us, and to devour us.

58 But we thy people, whom thou hast called thy firstborn, thy only begotten, and thy fervent lovers, are given into their hands.

59 If the world now be made for our sakes, why do we not possess an inheritance with the world? how long shall this endure?

CHAP VII.

1 The way is narrow 12 When it was made narrow.
28 All shall die, and rise again 37 Christ shall sit in judgment 46 God hath not made perdition in us, 62 and is merciful.

AND when I had made an end of speaking these words, there was sent unto me the angel which had been sent unto me the nights afore.

2 And he said unto me, Up, Esdras, and hear the words that I am come to tell thee.

3 And I said, Speak on, my God. Then said he unto me, The sea is set in a wide place, that it might be deep and great.

4 But put the case the entrance were narrow, and like a river;

* Chap VI ver 49 Then didst thou ordain two living creatures, [ ] The story here related has all the appearance of being a rabbinical conceit, which the author borrowed from the fanciful writings of the Jews. Arnold.

5 Who then could get into the city to look upon it, and to tell it? if he went not through the narrow, how could he come into the broad?

6 There is also another thing: A city is builded, and set upon a broad field, and is full of all good things.

7 The entrance thereof is narrow, and is set in a dangerous place to fall, like as if there were a fire on the right hand, and on the left a deep water.

8 And one only path between them both, even between the fire and the water, so small that there could but one man go there at once.

9 If this city now were given unto a man for an inheritance, if he never shall pass the danger set before it, how shall he receive this inheritance?

10 And I said, It is so, Lord. Then said he unto me, Even so also is Israel's portion.

11 Because for their sakes I made the world: and when Adam transgressed my statutes, then was decreed that now is done.

12 Then were the entrances of this world made narrow, full of sorrow and travail: they are but few and evil, full of perils, and very painful.

13 For the entrances of the wider world were wide and sure, and brought immortal fruit.

14 If then they that live about not to enter these strait and vain things, they can never receive those that are laid up for them.

15 Now therefore why disquietest thou thyself, seeing thou art but a corruptible man? and why art thou moved, whereas thou art but mortal?

16 Why hast thou not considered in thy mind this thing that is to come, rather than that which is present?

17 Then answered I and said, O Lord that bearest rule, thou hast ordained in thy law, that the righteous should inherit these things, but that the ungodly should perish.

18 Nevertheless the righteous shall suffer strait things, and hope for wide: for they that have done wickedly have suffered the strait things, and yet shall not see the wide.

19 And he said unto me, There is no

judge above God, and none that hath understanding above the Highest.

20 For there be many that perish in this life, because they despise the law of God that is set before them.

21 For God hath given strait commandments to such as came, what they should do to live, even as they came, and what they should observe to avoid punishment.

22 Nevertheless they were not obedient unto him; but spake against him, and imagined vain things.

23 And deceived themselves by their wicked deeds; and said of the most High, that he is not; and knew not his ways.

24 But his law have they despised, and denied his covenants: in his statutes have they not been faithful, and have not performed his works.

25 And therefore, Esdras, for the empty are empty things, and for the full are the full things.

26 Behold, the time shall come, that these tokens which I have told thee shall come to pass, and the bride shall appear, and she coming forth shall be seen, that now is withdrawn from the earth.

27 And whosoever is delivered from the former evil shall see my wonders.

28 For my son Jesus shall be revealed with those that be with him, and they that remain shall rejoice within four hundred years.

29 After these years shall my son Jesus die, and all men that have life.

30 And the world shall be turned into the old silence seven days, like as in the former judgments, so that no man shall remain.

31 And after seven days the world, that yet speaketh not, shall be raised up, and that shall die that is corrupt.

32 And the earth shall restore those that are asleep in her, and so shall the dust those that dwell in silence, and the secret places shall deliver those souls that were committed unto them.

33 And the most High shall appear upon the seat of judgment, and misery shall pass away, and the long suffering shall have an end.

34 But judgment only shall remain, truth shall stand, and faith shall wax strong.

35 And the work shall follow, and the

this account it is inferred, that this book must have been written subsequent to the time of our Saviour, from whose history, and the writings of His Apostles, the author has transcribed several passages. Arnald 41 Even so now, seeing corruption is grown up, and wickedness increased, and the righteous have prayed for the ungodly wherefore shall it not be so now also?

42 He answered me, and said, This present life is not the end where much glory doth abide, therefore have they prayed for the weak

43 But the day of doom shall be the end of this time, and the beginning of the immortality for to come, wherein corruption is past,

44 Intemperance is at an end, infidelity is cut off, righteousness is grown, and truth is sprung up

45 Then shall no man be able to save him that is destroyed, nor to oppress him that hath gotten the victory

46 I answered then and said, This is my first and last saying, that it had been better not to have given the earth unto Adam or else, when it was given him, to have restrained him from sinning

47 For what profit is it for men now in this present time to live in heaviness, and after death to look for punishment?

<sup>n</sup> Rom 5 48 O thou Adam, what hast thou done for though it was <sup>o</sup> thou that sinned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all that come of thee

49 For what profit is it unto us, if there be promised us an immortal time, whereas we have done the works that bring death?

50 And that there is promised us an everlasting hope, whereas ourselves being most wicked are made vain?

51 And that there are laid up for us dwellings of health and safety, whereas we have lived wickedly?

<sup>p</sup> Or a chase life 52 And that the glory of the most High is kept to defend them which have led <sup>q</sup> a wary life, whereas we have walked in the most wicked ways of all?

54 For we have walked in unpleasant places,

55 And that the faces of them which have used abstinence shall shine above the stars, whereas our faces shall be blacker than darkness?

56 For while we lived and committed iniquity, we considered not that we should begin to suffer for it after death

57 Then answered he me, and said, This is the <sup>t</sup> condition of the battle, which man that is born upon the earth shall fight, <sup>u</sup> Or intent

60 Nevertheless they believed not him, nor yet the prophets after him, no nor me which have spoken unto them,

61 That there should not be such heaviness in their destruction, as shall be joy over them that are persuaded to salvation.

62 I answered then, and said, I know, Lord, that the most High is called merciful, in that he hath mercy upon them which are not yet come into the world,

63 And upon those also that turn to his law,

64 And that <sup>x</sup> he is patient, and long suffereth those that have sinned, as his creatures, <sup>y</sup> Rom 2

66 And that he is of great mercy, for he multiplieth more and more mercies to them that are present, and to them which are past, and also to them which are to come

67 For if he shall not multiply his mercies, the world would not continue with them that inherit therein

68 And he pardoneth, for if he did not so of his goodness, that they which have committed iniquities might be eased of them, the ten thousandth part of men should not remain living

For at that instant a desire to have recompense, thou wilt be able to meet ful to man, namely, that have no works of righteousness.

17 For the just, which have many good works, but up with thee, shall out of their good deed receive reward.

18 For what man that thou shouldst take displeasure at him? or what is a corruptible generation, that thou shouldst be bitter toward it?

19 For in truth there is no man among them that be born, but he hath dealt wickedly, and among the faithful there is none which hath not done unrighteous.

20 For in this, O Lord, thy righteousness and thy goodness shall be declared, if thou be merciful unto them which have not the confidence of good works.

21 Then answered he me, and said, some thing hast thou spoken aright, and according unto thy words it shall be.

22 For indeed I will not think on the disposition of them which have sinned before death, before judgment, before destruction.

23 But I will rejoice over the disposition of the righteous, and I will remember all their pilgrimage, and the salvation, and the reward that they shall have.

24 Like as I have spoken now, so shall it come to pass.

25 For as the husbandman soweth much seed upon the ground, and planteth many trees, and yet the thing that is sown good to him, reason cometh not up, neither doth all that is planted take root: even so is it of them that are sown in the world, they shall not all be saved.

26 I answered then and said, If I have found grace, let me speak.

27 Like as the husbandman's seed perisheth, if it come not up, and receive not thy rain in due season, or if there come too much rain, and corrupt it.

28 Even so perisheth man also, which is formed with thy hands, and is called thine own image, because thou art like unto him, for whose sake thou hast made all things, and likened him unto the husbandman's seed.

29 Let not wrath with us, but spare thy people, and have mercy upon thine own abundance: for thou art merciful unto thy creature.

30 Then answered he me, and said, I have presented thee for all present and thing to come, for such is he to come.

31 For thou comest further, that thou shouldst be able to love my creature more than I: but I have oftentimes drawn men unto thee, and unto it, but never to the unrighteous.

32 By this also thou art marvellous before the most High.

33 In that thou hast humbled thyself, as it becometh thee, and hast not judged thyself worthy to be much glorified among the righteous.

34 For many great miseries shall be done to them that in the latter time shall dwell in the world, because they have walked in great pride.

35 But understand thou for thyself, and seek out the glory for such as be like thee.

36 For unto you a paradise opened, the tree of life is planted, the time to come is prepared, plentousness is made ready, city is builded, and rest is allowed, yet perfect goodness and wisdom.

37 The root of evil is sealed up from you, weakness and the moth is hid from you, and corruption is fled into hell to be forgotten.

38 Sorrows are passed, and in the end is chewed the treasure of immortality.

39 And therefore ask thou no more questions concerning the multitude of them that perish.

40 For when they had taken liberty, they despised the most High, thought scorn of his law, and forsook his ways.

41 Moreover they have trod ten down his righteous.

42 And said in their heart, that there is no God, yea, and that knowing they must die.

43 For as the things aforesaid shall receive you so thirst and pain are prepared for them: for it was not his will that men should come to nought.

44 But they which be created have defiled the name of him that made them, and were unthankful unto him which prepared life to them.

45 And therefore I say judgment now at hand.

46 The things have I not shewed unto all men, but unto thee, and a few like thee. Then answered I and said, 47 Behold, O Lord, now hast thou shewed me the multitude of the wonders, which thou wilt begin to do in the latter times: but at what time, thou hast not shewed me.

CHAP. IX.

He shall be created and who not. 1) All the world is created. 2) And God doth see a few. 3) He complaineth that the people which keep God's law and seek a crown lament in a field.

IL answered me then, and said, Mercifully thou the time diligently in itself, and when thou seest part of the signs past, which I have told thee before.

2 Then shalt thou understand that it is the very same time, wherein the Highest will begin to visit the world which he made.

3 Therefore when there shall be great earthquakes and uprisings of the people in the world.

4 Then shalt thou well understand, that the most High plucke out those things from the days that were before thee, even from the beginning.

5 For like is all that is made in the world both a beginning and an end, and the end is manifest.

6 Even so the times also of the Highest have plaine beginnings in wonders and powerful works, and ending in effects and signs.

7 And every one that shall be saved, and shall be able to escape by his works, and by faith, whereby ye have believed,

8 Shall be preserved from the said perils, and shall see my salvation in my land, and within my borders: for I have sanctified them for me from the beginning.

9 Then shall they be in pitiful case, which now have abused my words: and they that have cast them away despitefully shall dwell in torment.

10 For such as in their life have received benefit, and have not known me,

11 And they that have clothed my law, while they had yet liberty, and, when as yet place of repentance was open unto them, understood not, but despised it,

12 The same must know it after death by pain.

13 And therefore be thou not curious how the ungodly shall be punished, and when: but enquire now the righteous shall be saved, whose the world is, and for whom the world is created.

14 Then answered I and said,

15 I have said before, and now do speak, and will speak it also hereafter, that there be many more of them which perish, than of them which shall be saved.

16 Like as a wave is greater than a drop.

17 And he answered me, saying, Like as the field is so is also the seed, as the flowers be, such are the colours also, such is the workman, such also is the work, and is the husbandman himself, so is his husbandry also: for it was the time of the world.

18 And now when I prepared the world, which was not yet made, even for them that dwell in that now have no more part against me.

19 For then every one decayed: but now the manner of them was increased: sated in this world that I made, increased by a perpetual seed, and by a law which is unsearchable and thence.

20 So I considered the world, and behold, there was pain because of the diseases that were come into it.

21 And I saw, and spued it greatly, and have kept me a fig-tree of the cluster, and a plant of a great people.

22 Let the multitude perish then, which was born in vain: and let my fig-tree be kept, and my plant: for with a great labour have I made it perfect.

23 Nevertheless, if thou wilt cease yet seven days more (but thou shalt not rest in them,

24 But go into a field of flowers, where no house is builded, and eat only the flower of the field, taste no flesh, drink no wine, but eat flowers only,

25 And pray unto the Highest continually, then will I come and talk with thee.

26 So I went my way into the field which is called Ardath: like as he commanded me, and there I sat among the flowers, and did eat of the herbs of the field, and the meat of the same satisfied me.

27 After seven days I sat upon the grass, and my heart was vexed within me, like as before.

28 And I opened my mouth, and began to talk before the most High, and said, 29 O Lord, thou that shewest thyself unto us, thou wast shewed unto our fathers in the wilderness, in a place where no man treadeth, in a barren place, when they came out of Egypt.

30 And thou spakest, saying, Hear me, O Israel, and mark my words, thou seed of Jacob.

31 For, behold, I sow my law in you, and it shall bring fruit in you: and ye shall be honoured in it for ever.

32 But our fathers, which received the law, kept it not, and observed not thy ordinance: and though the fruit of thy law did not perish, neither could it, for it was thine.

33 Yet they that received it perished, because they kept not the thing that was owing them.

34 And, lo, it is a custom, when the ground hath received seed, or the seed is sown.

 cast therein, or received, doth perish, and remaineth not with it but with it hath not happened so.

6 For we that have received the law perish by it, and on the road to which it is sent.

Notwithstanding the law punitively not, but re-act them in his force

38. And when I take these things in my heart, I look'd back with mine eyes, and upon the right side I saw a woman, and behold she mourned and wept with a loud voice, and was much moved in heart, and her clothes were rent, and she had a he upon her head.

So I never let my thoughts go that I was my, and time I met her,

10 And said unto her, Wherefore weep-est thou? why art thou so grieved in thy mind?

II And he said unto me, Son, let me alone, that I may bewail myself, and add unto my sorrow, for I am sore vexed in my mind, and brought very low.

And I said unto her, What aileth thee? tell me.

She said unto me, I thy servant have been barren, and had no child, though I have a husband thirty years.

“ And those thirty years I did nothing

10 And I nourished him with great re-

AND as he came to pass, that when my wife was entered into his wedding he fell down and died.

“I saw all of a sudden the lights, and the stars came up to comfort me.”

And it came to pass, when they had all left off to comfort me, to the end I might be quiet, then rose I up by night, and fled, and came hither into the field, a thou seest.

4 And I do now purpose not to return into the city, but here to stay, and neither to eat nor drink, but continually to mourn and to fast until I die.

Then left I the meditations wherein
I was, and spake to her in anger, saying

6 Thou foolish woman above all other, see thou not our mourning, and what happeneth unto us?

7 How that Son our mother is full of all heaviness, and much humbled, mourning very sore.

8 And now seeing we all mourn and we sad, for we are all in heaviness, art thou grieved for one son?

O For ask the earth and he shall tell thee that it is she which ought to mourn for the fall of so many that grow upon her.

10 For out of her came all at the first and out of her shall all others come, and behold they will almoſt all into deſtruction and a multitude of them is utterly ||rooted out.

11 Who then should make more mourning than she, that hath lost so great a multitude, and not thou, which art sorry but for one?

12 But if thou sayest unto me, My In-mentations; not like the earth's, because I have lost the fruit of my womb, which I brought forth with pains, and bare with sorrows.

13 || But the center of gravity for the multiple product market according to the course of the center of gravity is not the same.

11 Then a Limb Tree like is thou, first brought forth with Adam, even the earth also hath given a fruit, namely man, ever since the <sup>beginning</sup> ~~beginning~~ unto him that made her.

To Now therefore put this sorrow to thyself and be a wife of good courage that which hath befallen thee

16 For if thou hast acknowledged the determination of God to be just, thou shalt both receive thy own in time, and shalt be commended among men.

17 Go thy way down into the city to thine husband

18. And she said unto me, There will I not do. I will not go to the city, but here will I die.

19 So I proceeded to speak further unto her, and said,

20 Do not so, but be counselled by me for how many are the adversities of Zion? be comforted in regard of the sorrow of Jerusalem.

21 For thou seest that our sanctuary is laid waste, our altar broken down, our temple destroyed.

22 Our pulchery is laid on the ground, our song is put to silence, our rejoicing is at an end, the light of our candlestick is put out, the ark of our covenant is spoiled, our holy things are defiled, and the name that is called upon us is almost profaned: our children are put to shame, our priests are burnt, our Levites are gone into captivity, our virgins are defiled, and our wives ravished, our children are carried away, our little ones destroyed, our young men are brought in bondage, and our strong men are become weak.

And, which is the more to be pitied, the seed of Zion hath now lost her honour, for she is delivered into the hands of them that hate us.

24 And therefore shake off thy great heaviness, and put away the multitude of sorrow, that the Mighty may be merciful unto thee again, and the Highest shall give thee rest and ease from thy labour.

And it came to pass, while I was talking with her, behold, her face upon a sudden shined exceedingly, and her countenance glorified, so that I was afraid of her, and marvelled what it might be.

26 And, behold, suddenly she made a great cry very fearful, so that the earth shook at the noise of the woman.

27 And I looked, and, behold, the woman appeared unto me no more, but there was a city builded, and a large place shewed itself from the foundation: then was I afraid, and cried with a loud voice, and said,

28 Where is the angel, who came unto me? for he hath caused me to fall into many tributes, and mine end is turned into corruption, and my prayer to rebuke.

29 And as I was speaking these words, behold, he came unto me, and looked upon me.

30 And, lo, I lay as one that had been dead, and mine understanding was taken from me: and he took me by the right hand, and comforted me, and set me upon my feet, and said unto me, 31 What aileth thee? and why art thou so disquieted? and why is thine understanding troubled, and the thought of thine heart?

32 And I said, Because thou hast forsaken me, and yet I did according to thy words, and I went into the field, and, lo, I have seen, and yet see that I am not able to express.

33 And he said unto me, Stand patiently, and I will advise thee.

34 Then said I, Speak on, my Lord, in me; only for a time, lest I die for want of my hope.

35 For I have seen that I knew not, and hear that I do not know.

36 O my enemy, deceived of my own mind in a dream?

37 Now therefore I beseech thee that thou wilt shew thy servant of this vision.

38 He answered me then, and said, Hear me, and I shall inform thee, and tell thee wherefore thou art afraid: for the Highest will reveal many secret things unto thee.

39 He hath seen that thy way is right: for that thou sorrowest continually for thy people, and makest great lamentation for Zion.

40 This therefore is the meaning of the vision which thou lately sawest.

41 Thou sawest a woman mourning, and thou beganst to comfort her.

42 But now seest thou the likeness of the woman no more, but there appeared unto thee a city builded.

43 And whereas she told thee of the death of her son, this is the consolation.

44 This woman, whom thou sawest, is Zion: and whereas she said unto thee, even she whom thou seest is a city builded, 45 Whereas, I say, she said unto thee, that she hath been thirty years burdened: yet the thirty years wherein there was no offering made in her.

46 But after thirty years Solomon builded the city, and offered offerings: and then bore the burden again.

47 And whereas she told thee that she nourished him with labour, that is the dwelling in Jerusalem.

48 But whereas she said unto thee, That my son coming into his marriage chamber happened to have a fall, and died: this was the destruction that came to Jerusalem.

49 And, behold, thou sawest her like me, and because she mourned for her son, thou beganst to comfort her: and of these things which have chanced, these are to be opened up to thee.

50 For now the most High seeth that thou art grieved unto grief, and sufferest from thy whole heart for her, so hath he shewed thee the brightness of her glory, and the comeliness of her beauty.

31 And therefore I bade thee remain in the field where no house was builded.

32 For I knew that the Highest would show this unto thee.

33 Therefore I commanded thee to go into the field, where no foundation of any building was.

34 For in the place wherein the Highest beginneth to show his city, there can no man's building be able to stand.

35 And therefore fear not, let not thine heart be affrighted, but go thy way in, and see the beauty and greatness of the building, as much as thine eyes be able to see.

36 And then shalt thou be as much as thine ears may comprehend.

37 For thou art blessed above many other, and thou art called with the Highest, as I so am but few.

38 But to morrow at night thou shalt remain here.

39 And so shall the Highest shew thee visions of the high things, which the most High will do unto them that dwell upon earth in the last days. So I slept that night and another, like as he commanded me.

CHAP. XI

1 He saw in his dream an eagle coming out of the sea and a lion out of a moor talking to the eagle.

THEN saw I a dream, and, behold, there came up from the sea an eagle, which had twelve feathered wings, and three heads.

2 And I saw, and, behold, she spread her wings over all the earth, and all the winds of the air blew on her, and were gathered together.

3 And I beheld, and out of her feathers there grew other contrary feathers, and they became little feathers and small.

4 But her heads were at rest: the head in the midst was greater than the other, yet rested it with the residue.

5 Moreover I beheld, and, lo, the eagle flew with her feathers, and reigned upon earth and over them that dwell therein.

6 And I saw that all things under her were subject unto her, and no man pale against her, no, not one creature upon earth.

7 And I beheld, and, lo, the eagle rose upon her talons, and spoke to her feathers, saying,

8 Watch not ye at once sleep, every one in his own place, and wait by course.

9 But let the heads be preserved for the last.

10 And I beheld, and, lo, the voice went not out of her head, but from the midst of her body.

11 And I numbered her contrary feathers, and, behold, there were eight of them.

12 And I looked, and, behold, on the right side there arose one feather, and reigned over all the earth.

13 And so it was, that when it reigned, the end of it came, and the place thereof appeared no more: so the next following stood up, and reigned, and had a great time.

14 And it happened, that when it reigned, the end of it came also like as the first,
so that it appeared no more.

15 Then came there a voice unto it, and said,

16 Hear thou that hast borne rule over the earth so long: thus I say unto thee, before thou beginnest to appear no more.

17 There shall none after thee sit upon unto thy time, neither unto the half thereof.

18 Then arose the third, and reigned as the other before, and appeared no more also.

19 So went it with all the residue one after another, as that every one reigned, and then appeared no more.

20 Then I beheld, and, lo, in process of time the feathers that followed stood up upon the right side, that they might rule also, and some of them ruled, but within a while they appeared no more.

21 For some of them were set up, but ruled not.

22 After this I looked, and, behold, the twelve feathers appeared no more, nor two little feathers.

23 And there was no more upon the eagle's body, but three heads that rested, and six little wings.

24 Then six of them divided themselves from the six, and remained under the head that was upon the right side: for the four continued in their place.

25 And I beheld, and, lo, the feathers that were under the wing thought to set up themselves, and to have the rule.

26 And I beheld, and, lo, there was one set up, but shortly it appeared no more.

27 And the second was sooner away than the first.

28 And I beheld, and, lo, the two that remained thought also in themselves to reign

29 And when they so thought, behold, there awaked one of the heads that were at rest namely, it that was in the midst, for that was greater than the two other heads

30 And then I saw that the two other heads were joined with it

31 And, behold, the head was turned with them that were with it and did bat up the two feathers under the wing that would have reigned

32 But this head put the whole earth in fear, and bare rule in it over all those that dwelt upon the earth with much oppression, and it had the governance of the world more than all the wings that had been

33 And after this I beheld, and lo, the head that was in the midst suddenly appeared no more, like as the wings

34 But there remained the two heads, which also in like sort ruled upon the earth, and over those that dwelt therein

35 And I beheld, and lo, the head upon the right side devoured it that was upon the left side

36 Then I heard a voice, which said unto me, I look before thee, and consider the thing that thou seest

37 And I beheld, and lo as it were a roaring lion chased out of the wood and I saw that he sent out a man's voice unto the eagle, and said,

38 Hear thou, I will talk with thee, and the Highest shall say unto thee, 39 Art not thou it that remonest of the four beasts, whom I made to reign in my world, that the end of their times might come through them?

40 And the fourth came, and overcame all the beasts that were first and had power over the world with great tentacles, and over the whole compass of the earth with much wicked oppression, and so long time dwelt he upon the earth with deceit

41 For the earth hast thou not judged with truth

42 For thou hast afflicted the meek, thou hast hurt the peaceable thou hast moved him, and destroyed the dwellings of them that brought forth fruit, and hast cast down the walls of such as did thee no harm

43 Therefore as thy wrongful dealing come up unto the Highest, and thy pride unto the Mighty

44 The Highest also hath looked upon the proud times, and behold, they are ended, and his abomination is fulfilled

45 And therefore appear no more thou eagle, nor thy horrible wings, nor thy wicked feathers, nor thy malicious heart, nor thy harmful claws, nor all thy vain body

46 That all the earth may be redeemed, and my return, being delivered from thy violence, and that she may hope for the judgment and mercy of him that made her

3 The eagle which he saw is destroyed 10 The sign is interpreted 17 He is bid to write his vision and to fast that he may see more 26 He telleth out those that were moved in his absence

AND it came to pass, whiles the lion spake these words unto the eagle, I saw,

2 And, behold, the head that remained and the four wings appeared no more, and the two went unto it, and set themselves up to reign, and then kingdom was small and full of uproar

3 And I saw, and, behold, they appeared no more, and the whole body of the eagle was burnt, so that the earth was in great fear then awaked I out of the trouble and trance of my mind, and from great fear, and said unto my spirit,

4 Lo, this hast thou done unto me, in that thou searchest out the ways of the Highest

5 Lo, yet am I weary in my mind, and very weak in my spirit, and little strength is there in me, for the great fear wherewith I was affrighted this night

6 Therefore will I now beseech the Highest, that he will comfort me unto the end

7 And I said, Lord that bearest rule, if I have found grace before thy sight, and if I am justified with thee before many others, and if my prayer indeed be come up before thy face,

8 Comfort me then, and shew me thy servant the interpretation and plain difference of this fearful vision, that thou mayest perfectly comfort my soul

9 For thou hast judged me worthy to shew me the last times

10 And he said unto me, This is the interpretation of the vision,

11 The eagle, whom thou sawest come up from the sea, is the kingdom which was seen in the vision of thy brother Daniel

12 But it was not expounded unto him, therefore now I declare it unto thee

13 Behold, the days will come, that there shall rise up a kingdom upon earth, and it shall be feared above all the kingdoms that were before it.

14 In the same shall twelve kings reign, one after another.

15 Whereof the second shall begin to reign, and shall have more time than any of the twelve.

16 And this do the twelve wings signify, which thou sawest.

17 As for the voice which thou heardest speak, and that thou sawest not to go out from the heads, but from the midst of the body thereof, this is the interpretation.

18 That after the time of that kingdom there shall arise great strivings, and it shall stand in peril of falling: nevertheless it shall not then fall, but shall be restored again to his beginning.

19 And whereas thou sawest the eight small under feathers sticking to her wings, this is the interpretation.

20 That in him there shall arise eight kings, whose times shall be but small, and their years swift.

21 And two of them shall perish, the middle time approaching: four shall be kept until their end begin to approach: but two shall be kept unto the end.

22 And whereas thou sawest three heads resting, this is the interpretation.

23 In his last days, shall the most High rise up three kingdoms, and renew many things therein, and they shall have the dominion of the earth.

24 And of those that dwell therein, with much oppression, above all those that were before them: therefore are they called the heads of the eagle.

25 For these are they that shall accomplish his wickedness, and that shall finish his last end.

26 And whereas thou sawest that the great head appeared no more, it signifieth that one of them shall die upon his bed, and yet with pain.

27 For the two that remain shall be slain with the sword.

28 For the sword of the one shall devour the other: but at the last shall he fall through the sword himself.

29 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side, 30 It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

31 And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard, 32 This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty.

33 For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

34 For the rest of my people shall he deliver with mercy, those that have been preserved upon my borders, and he shall make them joyful until the coming of the day of judgment, whereof I have spoken unto thee from the beginning.

35 This is the dream that thou sawest, and these are the interpretations.

36 Thou only hast been meet to know this secret of the Highest.

37 Therefore write all the things that thou hast seen in a book, and hide them.

38 And tell them to the wise of the people, whose hearts thou knowest may comprehend and keep these secrets.

39 But wait thou here thyself yet seven days more, that it may be shewed thee, whatsoever it pleaseth the Highest to declare unto thee. And with that he went his way.

40 And it came to pass, when all the people saw that the seven days were past, and I not come again into the city, they gathered them all together, from the least unto the greatest, and came unto me and said, 41 What have we offended thee? and what evil have we done against thee, that thou forsakest us, and sittest here in this place?

42 For of all thy prophecies thou only hast left us, as a cluster of the vintage, and as a candle in a dark place, and as a haven or ship preserved from the tempest.

43 Are not the evils which are come to us sufficient?

44 If thou shalt forsake us, how much better had it been for us, if we also had been burned in the midst of Sion?

45 For we are not better than they that died there. And they wept with a loud voice. Then answered I them, and said, 46 Be of good comfort, O Israel, and be not heavy, thou house of Jacob.

47 For the Highest hath you in remembrance, and the Mighty hath not forgotten you in temptation.

48 As for me, I have not forsaken you, neither am I departed from you: but am come into this place, to pray for the desolation of Sion, and that I might seek mercy for the low estate of your sanctuary.

49 And now go your way home every man, and after these days will I come unto you.

50 So the people went their way into the city, like as I commanded them.

51 But I remained still in the field seven days, as the angel commanded me, and did eat only in those days of the flowers of the field, and had my meat of the herbs.

CHAP XIII.

1<sup>He seeth in his dream a man coming out of the sea.</sup>
2<sup>The declaration of his dream.</sup> 5<sup>He is praised, and promised to see more.</sup>

AND it came to pass after seven days, I dreamed a dream by night.

2 And, lo, there arose a wind from the sea, that it moved all the waves thereof.

3 And I beheld, and, lo, that man waxed strong with the thousands of heaven: and when he turned his countenance to look, all the things trembled that were seen under him.

4 And whensoever the voice went out of his mouth, all they burned that heard his voice, like as the earth faileth when it feel-eth the fire.

5 And after this I beheld, and, lo, there was gathered together a multitude of men, out of number, from the four winds of the heaven, to subdue the man that came out of the sea.

6 But I beheld, and, lo, he had graved himself a great mountain, and flew up upon it.

7 But I would have seen the region or place whereout the hill was graven, and I could not.

8 And after this I beheld, and, lo, all they which were gathered together to subdue him were sore afraid, and yet durst fight.

9 And, lo, as he saw the violence of the multitude that came, he neither lifted up his hand, nor held sword, nor any instrument of war.

10 But only I saw that he sent out of his mouth as it had been a blast of fire, and out of his lips a flaming breath, and out of his tongue he cast out sparks and tempests.

11 And they were all mixed together, the blast of fire, the flaming breath, and the great tempest, and fell with violence upon the multitude which was prepared to fight and burned them up every one so that upon a sudden of an innumerable multitude nothing was to be perceived, but only dust and smell of smoke when I saw this I was afraid.

12 Afterward saw I the same man come down from the mountain, and call unto him another peaceable multitude.

13 And there came much people unto him, whereof some were glad, some were sorry, some of them were bound, and other some brought of them that were offered: then was I sick through great fear, and I awaked, and said,

14 Thou hast shewed thy servant these wonders from the beginning, and hast counted me worthy that thou shouldest receive my prayer.

15 Shew me now yet the interpretation of this dream.

16 For as I conceive in mine understanding, woe unto them that shall be left in those days: and much more woe unto them that are not left behind.

17 For they that were not left were in heaviness.

18 Now understand I the things that are laid up in the latter days, which shall happen unto them, and to those that are left behind.

19 Therefore are they come into great perils and many necessities, like as these dreams declare.

20 Yet is it easier for him that is in danger to come into these things, than to pass away as a cloud out of the world, and not to see the things that happen in the last days. And he answered unto me, and said, 21 The interpretation of the vision shall I shew thee, and I will open unto thee the thing that thou hast required.

22 Whereas thou hast spoken of them that are left behind, this is the interpretation.

23 He that shall endure the peril in that time hath kept himself: they that be fallen into danger are such as have works, and faith toward the Almighty.

24 Know this therefore, that they which be left behind are more blessed than they that be dead.

25 This is the meaning of the vision. Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea.

26 The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind.

27 And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm,

28 And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him, this is the interpretation

29 Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth

30 And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth

31 And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another

32 And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending

33 And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another

34 And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting

35 But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion

36 And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands

37 And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the deepest,

38 And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented which are like unto a flame and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire

39 And whereas thou sawest that he gathered another peacable multitude unto him,

40 Those are the ten tribes, which were carried away prisoners out of their own land in the time of Oseai the king, whom Sardanapalus the king of Assyria led away captive, and he carried them over the waters, and so came they into another land

41 But they took this counsel among themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the heathen, and go forth into a further country, where never mankind dwelt,

42 That they might there keep their statutes which they never kept in their own land

43 And they entered into Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river

44 For the most High then shewed signs for them, and held still the flood, till they were passed over 1st 2nd 3rd 4th 5th 6th 7th 8th 9th 10th 11th 12th

45 For through that country there was a great way to go, namely, of a year and half and the same region is called Ararat || Or Ararat

46 Then dwelt they there until the latter time, and now when they shall begin to come,

47 The Highest shall dry the springs of the stream again, that they may go through thence sawest thou the multitude with peace

48 But those that be left behind of thy people are they that are found within my borders.

49 Now when he destroyeth the multitude of the nations that are gathered together, he shall defend his people that remain

50 And then shall he shew them great wonders

51 Then said I, O Lord that bearest rule, shew me this wherefore have I seen the man coming up from the midst of the sea?

52 And he said unto me, Like as thou canst neither seek out nor know the things that are in the deep of the sea even so can no man upon earth see my Son, or those that be with him, but in the day time

53 This is the interpretation of the dream which thou sawest, and whereby thou only art here lightened

54 For thou hast forsaken thine own way, and applied thy diligence unto my law, and sought it

55 Thy life hast thou ordered in wisdom, and hast called understanding thy mother

56 And therefore have I shewed thee

Chap. XIII. ver. 44. For the most High then shewed signs for them. The relation here of the ten tribes being miraculously cured through the Euphrates seems to have been a long persuasion of the Jews in later times, arising from the notion of providence, that God will never cease to do miracles in behalf of His chosen people. Arnold the treasures of the Highest after other three days I will speak other things unto thee, and declare unto thee mighty and wondrous things.

57 Then went I forth into the field, giving praise and thanks greatly unto the most High because of his wonders, which he did in time, 58 And because he knoweth the same, and such things as fall in then seasons and there I sat three days.

CHAP XIV

Since out of a bush calleth Elias, 10 and telleth him that the world waxeth old. 22 He desireth, because the law was burnt to write all again, 24 and is bid to get swift writers. 30 He and they are filled with understanding. 44 but he is charged not to publish all that is written.

AND it came to pass upon the third day, I sat under an oak, and, behold, there came a voice out of a bush over against me, and said, Esdras, Esdras.

2 And I said, Here am I, Lord. And I stood up upon my feet.

3 Then said he unto me, In the bush I did manifestly reveal myself unto Moses, and talked with him, when my people served in Egypt.

4 And I sept him, and led my people out of Egypt, and brought him up to the mount of Sinai, where I held him by me a long season.

5 And told him many wondrous things, and shewed him the secrets of the times, and the end, and commanded him, saying,

6 These words shalt thou declare, and these shalt thou hide.

7 And now I say unto thee,

8 That thou lay up in thy heart the signs that I have shewed, and the dreams that thou hast seen, and the interpretations which thou hast heard.

9 For thou shalt be taken away from all, and henceforth thou shalt remain with my Son, and with such as be like thee, until the times be ended.

10 For the world hath lost his youth, and the times begin to wax old.

11 For the world is divided into twelve parts, and the ten parts of it are gone already, and half of a tenth part.

12 And there remaineth that which is after the half of the tenth part.

13 Now therefore set thine house in order, and reprove thy people, comfort such of them as be in trouble, and now renounce corruption,

14 Let go from thee mortal thoughts, cast away the burdens of man, put off now the weak nature,

15 And set aside the thoughts that are most heavy unto thee, and haste thee to flee from these times.

16 For yet greater evil than those which thou hast seen happen shall be done hereafter.

17 For look how much the world shall be weaker through age, so much the more shall evils increase upon them that dwell therein.

18 For the truth is fled far away, and leasing is hard at hand. For now hasteth the vision to come, which thou hast seen.

19 Then answered I before thee, and said,

20 Behold, Lord, I will go, as thou hast commanded me, and reprove the people which are present. But they that shall be born afterward, who shall admonish them? thus the world is set in darkness, and they that dwell therein are without light.

21 For thy law is burnt, therefore no man knoweth the things that are done of thee, or the works that shall begin.

22 But if I have found grace before thee, send the Holy Ghost into me, and I shall write all that hath been done in the world since the beginning, which were written in thy law, that men may find thy path, and that they which will live in the latter days may live.

23 And he answered me saying, Go thy way, gather the people together, and say unto them, that they seek thee not for forty days.

24 But look thou prepare thee many box trees, and take with thee Sueda, Dabria, Selemia, Ecanus, and Asich, these five which are ready to write swiftly.

25 And come hither, and I shall light a candle of understanding in thine heart, which shall not be put out, till the things be performed which thou shalt begin to write.

26 And when thou hast done, some things shalt thou publish, and some things shalt thou shew secretly to the wise. To morrow this hour shalt thou begin to write.

27 Then went I forth, as he commanded, and gathered all the people together, and said, 28 Hear these words, O Israel.

29 Our fathers at the beginning were strangers in Egypt, from whence they were delivered.

30 And received the law of life, which they kept not, which ye also have transgressed after them

31 Then was the land, even the land of Zion, putted among you by lot: but your fathers, and ye yourselves, have done unrighteousness, and have not kept the ways which the Highest commanded you.

32 And forasmuch as he is a righteous judge, he took from you in time the thing that he had given you

33 And now are ye here, and your brethren among you

34 Therefore if so be that ye will subdue your own understanding, and reform your hearts, ye shall be kept alive, and after death ye shall obtain mercy

35 For after death shall the judgment come, when we shall live again: and then shall the names of the righteous be manifest, and the works of the ungodly shall be declared

36 Let no man therefore come unto me now, nor seek after me these forty days

37 So I took the five men, as he commanded me, and we went into the field, and remained there

38 And the next day, behold, a voice called me, saying, Esdras, open thy mouth, and drink that I give thee to drink.

39 Then opened I my mouth, and, behold, he reached me a full cup, which was full as it were with water, but the colour of it was like fire

40 And I took it, and drank: and when I had drunk of it, my heart uttered understanding, and wisdom grew in my breast, for my spirit strengthened my memory

41 And my mouth was opened, and shut no more

42 The Highest gave understanding unto the five men, and they wrote the wonderful visions of the night that were told, which they knew not: and they sat forty days, and they wrote in the day, and it might they ate bread

43 As for me, I spake in the day, and I held not my tongue by night

44 In forty days they wrote || two hundred and four books

45 And it came to pass, when the forty days were fulfilled, that the Highest spake saying, The first that thou hast written publish openly, that the worthy and un- worthy may read it

46 But keep the seventy last, that thou mayest deliver them only to such as be wise among the people

47 For in them is the spring of unde-

standing, the fountain of wisdom, and || the stream of knowledge

48 And I did so

1 This prophecy is certain 5 God will take vengeance upon the wicked, 12 upon Egypt 28 An horrible vision 43 Babylon and Asia are threatened

BEHOLD, speak thou in the ears of my people the words of prophecy, which I will put in thy mouth, saith the Lord

2 And cause them to be written in paper: for they are faithful and true.

3 Fear not the imaginations against thee, let not the incredulity of them trouble thee, that speak against thee

4 For all the unfaithful shall die in their unfaithfulness

5 Behold, saith the Lord, I will bring plagues upon the world, the sword, famine, death, and destruction.

6 For wickedness hath exceedingly polluted the whole earth, and their hurtful works are fulfilled

7 Therefore saith the Lord,

8 I will hold my tongue no more as touching their wickedness, which they profanely commit, neither will I suffer them in those things, in which they wickedly exercise themselves: behold, the innocent and righteous blood crieth unto me, and the souls of the just complain continually

9 And therefore, saith the Lord, I will surely avenge them, and receive unto me all the innocent blood from among them

10 Behold, my people is led as a flock to the slaughter: I will not suffer them now to dwell in the land of Egypt

11 But I will bring them with a mighty hand and a stretched out arm, and smite Egypt with plagues, as before, and will destroy all the land thereof

12 Egypt shall mourn, and the foundation of it shall be smitten with the plague and punishment that God shall bring upon it

13 They that till the ground shall mourn for their seeds shall fail through the blasting and hail, and with a fearful constellation

14 Woe to the world and them that dwell therein!

15 For the sword and their destruction draweth nigh, and one people shall stand up to fight against another, and swords in their hands

16 For there shall be sedition among men, and invading one another, they shall not regard their kings nor princes, and the course of their actions shall stand in their power

17 A man shall desire to go into a city, and shall not be able

18 For because of their pride the cities shall be troubled, the houses shall be destroyed, and men shall be afraid

19 A man shall have no pity upon his neighbour, but shall destroy their houses with the sword, and upon their goods, because of the lack of bread, and for great tribulation

20 Behold, saith God, I will call together all the kings of the earth to reverence me, which are from the rising of the sun, from the south, from the east, and Libanus, to turn themselves one against another, and repay the things that they have done to them

21 Like as they do yet this day unto my chosen, so will I do also, and recompense in their bosom Thus saith the Lord God,

22 My right hand shall not spare the sinner, my sword shall not cease over them that shed innocent blood upon the earth

23 The fire is gone forth from his wrath, and hath consumed the foundations of the earth, and the sinners, like the straw that is kindled

24 Woe to them that sin, and keep not my commandments saith the Lord,

25 I will not spare them go your way, ye children, from the power, defile not my sanctuary

26 For the Lord knoweth all them that sin against him, and therefore delivereth he them unto death and destruction

27 For now are the plagues come upon the whole earth, and ye shall remain in them for God shall not deliver you, because ye have sinned against him

28 Behold in horrible vision, and the appearance thereof from the east

29 Where the nations of the dragons of Arabia shall come out with many chariots, and the multitude of them shall be carried as the wind upon earth, that all they which hear them may fear and tremble

30 Also the Carmanians raging in wrath shall go forth as the wild boars of the wood, and with great power shall they come, and join battle with them, and shall waste a portion of the land of the Assyrians

31 And then shall the dragons have the upper hand, remembering their nature, and if they shall turn themselves, conspiring together in great power to persecute them,

32 Then these shall be troubled, and keep silence through their power, and shall flee

33 And from the land of the Assyrians shall the enemy besiege them, and consume some of them, and in their host shall be fear and dread, and strife among them kings

34 Behold clouds from the east and from the north unto the south, and they are very horrible to look upon, full of wrath and storm

35 They shall smite one upon another, and they shall smite down a great multitude of stars upon the earth, even their own star, and blood shall be from the sword unto the belly,

36 And dung of men unto the camel's hough.

37 And there shall be great fearfulness and trembling upon earth and they that see the wrath shall be afraid, and trembling shall come upon them.

38 And then shall there come great storms from the south, and from the north, and another part from the west

39 And strong winds shall arise from the east, and shall open it, and the cloud which he raised up in wrath, and the stars stirred to cause fear toward the east and west wind, shall be destroyed

40 The great and mighty clouds shall be lifted up full of wrath, and the star, that they may make all the earth afraid, and them that dwell therein, and they shall pour out over every high and eminent place an horrible star,

41 Fire, and hail, and flying swords, and many waters, that all fields may be full, and all rivers, with the abundance of great waters

42 And they shall break down the cities and walls, mountains and hills, trees of the wood, and grass of the meadows, and their corn

43 And they shall go stedfastly unto Babylon, and make her afraid

44 They shall come to her, and besiege her, the star and all wrath shall they pour out upon her then shall the dust and smoke go up unto the heaven, and all they that be about her shall bewail her

48 Thou hast followed her that is hated in all her works and inventions therefore saith God,

49 I will send plagues upon thee, widowhood, poverty, famine, sword, and pestilence, to waste thy houses with destruction and death

50 And the glory of thy power shall be dried up as a flower, when the heat shall arise that is sent over thee 51 Thou shalt be weakened as a poor woman with stripes, and as one chastised with wounds, so that the mighty and lovers shall not be able to receive thee.

55 The reward of thy whoredom shall be in thy bosom, therefore shalt thou receive recompence

58 They that be in the mountains shall die of hunger, and eat their own flesh, and drink their own blood, for very hunger of bread, and thirst of water

59 Thou unhappy shalt come through the sea, and receive plagues again

6 May any man drive away an hungry lion in the wood? or may any one quench the fire in stubble, when it hath begun to burn

7 May one turn again the arrow that is shot of a strong archer

8 The mighty Lord sendeth the plagues, and who is he that can drive them away

9 A fire shall go forth from his wrath, and who is he that may quench it

10 He shall cast lightnings, and who shall not fear? he shall thunder, and who shall not be afraid

11 The Lord shall threaten, and who shall not be utterly beaten to powder at his presence

12 The earth quaketh, and the foundations thereof, the sea ariseth up with waves from the deep, and the waves of it are troubled, and the fishes thereof also, before the Lord, and before the glory of his power

13 For strong is his right hand that bendeth the bow, his arrows that he shooteth are sharp, and shall not miss, when they begin to be shot into the ends of the world

14 Behold, the plagues are sent, and shall not return again, until they come upon the earth

15 The fire is kindled, and shall not be put out, till it consume the foundation of the earth

16 Like as an arrow which is shot of a mighty archer returneth not backward even so the plagues that shall be sent upon earth shall not return again

17 Woe is me ! woe is me ! who will deliver me in those days ?

18 The beginning of sorrows and great mournings, the beginning of famine and great death, the beginning of wars, and the powers shall stand in fear; the beginning of evils what shall I do when these shall come ?

19 Behold, famine and plague, tribulation and anguish, are sent as scourges for amendment

20 But for all these things they shall not turn from their wickedness, nor be always mindful of the scourges

21 Behold, victuals shall be so good cheap upon earth, that they shall think themselves to be in good case, and even then shall evils grow upon earth, sword, famine, and great confusion

22 For many of them that dwell upon earth shall perish of famine, and the other, that escape the hunger, shall the sword destroy

23 And the dead shall be cast out as dung, and there shall be no man to comfort them for the earth shall be wasted, and the cities shall be cast down.

24 There shall be no man left to till the earth, and to sow it

25 The trees shall give fruit, and who shall gather them ?

26 The grapes shall ripen, and who shall tread them ? for all places shall be desolate of men

27 So that one man shall desire to see another, and to hear his voice

28 For of a city there shall be ten left, and two of the field, which shall hide themselves in the thick groves, and in the clefts of the rocks

29 As in an orchard of olives upon every tree there are left three or four olives,

30 Or as when a vineyard is gathered, there are left some clusters of them that diligently seek through the vineyard

31 Even so in those days there shall be three or four left by them that search their houses with the sword

32 And the earth shall be lud waste, and the fields thereof shall wax old, and her ways and all her paths shall grow full of thorns, because no man shall travel therethrough

33 The virgins shall mourn, having no bridegrooms, the women shall mourn, having no husbands, their daughters shall mourn, having no helpers.

34 In the wars shall then bridegrooms be destroyed, and their husbands shall perish of famine

35 Hear now these things, and understand them; ye servants of the Lord

36 Behold the word of the Lord, receive it believe not the gods of whom the Lord spake

37 Behold, the plagues draw nigh, and are not slack

38 As when a woman with child in the ninth month bringeth forth her son, within two or three hours of her birth great pains compass her womb, which pains, when the child cometh forth, they slack not a moment

39 Even so shall not the plagues be slack to come upon the earth, and the world shall mourn, and sorrows shall come upon it on every side

40 O my people, hear my word make you ready to the battle, and in those evils be even as pilgrims upon the earth

41 He that selleth, let him be as he that fleeth away, and he that buyeth, as one that will lose

42 He that occupieth merchandise, as he that hath no profit by it and he that buildeth, as he that shall not dwell therein

43 He that soweth, as if he should not reap. so also he that planteth the vineyard, as he that shall not gather the grapes

44 They that marry, as they that shall get no children; and they that marry not, as the widowers.

45 And therefore they that labour labour in vain.

46 For strangers shall reap their fruits, and spoil their goods, overthrow their houses, and take their children captives, for in captivity and famine shall they get children

47 And they that occupy their merchandise with robbery, the more they deck their cities, their houses, their possessions, and their own persons

48 The more will I be angry with them for their sin, saith the Lord

49 Like as a whore envenometh a right honest and virtuous woman

50 So shall righteousness hate iniquity, when she decketh herself, and shall accuse her to her face, when he cometh that shall defend him that diligently searcheth out every sin upon earth

51 And therefore be ye not like thereunto, nor to the works thereof

52 For yet a little, and iniquity shall be taken away out of the earth, and righteousness shall reign among you

53 Let not the sinner say that he hath not sinned: for God shall burn coals of fire upon his head, which saith before the Lord God and his glory, I have not sinned

54 Behold, the Lord knoweth all the works of men, <sup>their</sup> imaginations, <sup>their</sup> thoughts, and their hearts

55 Which spake but the word, Let the earth be made, <sup>and</sup> it was made: Let the heaven be made, and it was created.

56 In his word were the stars made, and he knoweth the number of them.

57 He searcheth the deep, and the treasures thereof, he hath measured the sea, and what it containeth

58 He hath shut the sea in the midst of the waters, and with his word hath he changed the earth upon the waters.

59 He spreadeth out the heavens like a vault, upon the waters hath he founded

60 In the desert hath he made springs of water, and pools upon the tops of the mountains, that the floods might pour down from the high rocks to water the earth

61 He made man, and put his heart in the midst of the body, and gave him breath, life, and understanding.

62 Yea, and the spirit of Almighty God, which made all things, and searcheth out all hidden things in the secrets of the earth, 63 Surely he knoweth your inventions, and what ye think in your hearts, even them that sin, and would hide their sin.

64 Therefore hath the Lord exactly searched out all your works, and he will put you all to shame.

65 And when your sins are brought forth, ye shall be ashamed before men, and your own sins shall be your accusers in that day.

66 What will ye do? or how will ye hide your sins before God and his angels?

67 Behold, God himself is the judge, fear him: leave off from your sins, and forget your iniquities, to meddle no more with them for ever: so shall God lead you forth, and deliver you from all trouble

68 For, behold, the burning wrath of a great multitude is kindled over you, and they shall take away certain of you, and feed you, being idle, with things offered unto idols

69 And they that consent unto them shall be had in derision and in reproach, and trodden under foot

70 For there shall be in every place, and in the next cities, a great insurrection upon those that fear the Lord.

71 They shall be like mad men, sparing none, but still spoiling and destroying those that fear the Lord.

72 For they shall waste and take away their goods, and cast them out of their houses.

73 Then shall they be known, who are my chosen, and they shall be tried as the gold in the fire

74 Hear, O ye my beloved, saith the Lord: behold, the days of trouble are at hand, but I will deliver you from the same.

75 Be ye not afraid, neither doubt; for God is your guide.

76 And the guide of them who keep my commandments and precepts, saith the Lord God: let not your sins weigh you down, and let not your iniquities lift up themselves

77 Woe be unto them that are bound with their sins, and covered with their iniquities, like as a field is covered over with bushes, and the path thereof covered with thorns, that no man may travel through 78 It is left undressed, and is cast into the fire to be consumed therewith.

INTRODUCTION

THIS Book was probably written by, or at least compiled from the memoirs of, Tobit and Tobias when Raphael the angel had been commanded to record the events of their lives, chap. xii. 20. The work appears to have been begun by Tobit, who in the Greek, Hebrew, and Syriac editions, speaks in the first person to the fourth chapter, and by whom other parts of the book (as the prayer in the thirteenth chapter) are said to have been written: what he left unfinished was probably completed by his son: the two latter parts of the book being afterwards added by some compilers who digested the materials into their present form.

It is uncertain whether this work were originally written in the Hebrew or in the Chaldaick language, with both of which Tobit and his family must have been well acquainted. The Hebrew copies published by Munster and Lagus appear to be translations comparatively modern, and as the book was extant in the Chaldaick language in the time of St. Jerome, it is possible that it was originally written in that language, though no Chaldaick copy be now extant. The most ancient copy that is known to exist is a Greek version which was probably made by some Hellenistical Jew, and before the time of Theodotion, as it is quoted by Polycarp from this our English translation, and probably the Syriack version, was made, as also the Latin version, which was in use before the time of St. Jerome. The book, if it even existed in the Hebrew language, was certainly never in the Hebrew canon, and has no pretensions to be considered as the production of an inspired writer. But, though it has no canonical authority it is a book respectable for its antiquity and contents.

With respect to the history contained in this book, there is no reason to question its truth, at least as to the main particular: and the Jews do not appear to have entertained any doubts on the subject. It is written with much simplicity, and with an air of verity. The characters are described with great sincerity and effect, and the minute details of genealogy of time, place, and personal circumstances, while they heighten the interest, tend to demonstrate the truth and reality of the relation. Tobit then is to be considered a real character, he was born probably during the reign of Ahas, he was of the tribe of Naphtali, and the city of Thisbe in upper Galilee: he was carried captive to Nineveh, after the extinction of the kingdom of Israel by Enemessar or Salmancser, about the year of the world 3283. The history of this captive, and of his family, is here related in a very interesting manner, it is enlivened with much variety of incident, and decorated by the display of many virtues. Some of the incidents, as the ministry of the angel, the influence and defeat of the evil spirit, as well as the blindness and recovery of Tobit, have appeared so improbable to many writers, that they have chosen to consider the whole book merely as an instructive fiction designed to illustrate the relative and social charities of life, and to exhibit a pattern of virtue exercised in trials, and recompensed in this world: but there are no physical objections to the causes assigned either for the deprivation or restoration of sight to Tobit, since if they are not naturally capable of producing such effects, the might still be miraculously rendered instruments in the hands of Providence.

With respect to the agency of the angels, there is nothing inconsistent with reason, received opinions, or Scripture, in supposing a limited superintendence of superiour beings. We know indeed, that under the peculiar circumstances of the Jewish economy, the ministry of angels was manifestly employed in subserviency to God's designs, and that particular personages were occasionally favoured with their familiar intercourse. It is likewise unquestionable, that before the power and malevolence of evil spirits were checked and restricted by the control of our Saviour, their open influence was experienced, and though in the accounts of this book, invisible beings be represented as endued with corporeal affections, and described under traditional names of Chaldean extraction, and though the whole history of their proceedings, as here furnished, be in some measure accommodated to vulgar conceptions, yet it would be a violation of all rules of just criticism, to consider the agency of these beings as a mere allegorical machinery. Indeed the events recorded are so dependent on their supposed interference, and the miraculous circumstances are so incorporated with the history, that the truth of the whole account rests on the same foundation, and the particular parts cannot be separately removed. which is called properly Nephthali ] Or Kades-nephthali The being the principal city in the tribe of Nephthali was, for brevity sake sometimes called Nephthali

3 I Tobit have walked all the days of my life in the way of truth and justice, and I did many almsdeeds to my brethren, and my nation, who came with me to Nineve, into the land of the Assyrians.

4 And when I was in mine own country in the land of Israel, being but young, all the tribe of Nephthali my father fell from the house of Jerusalem, which was chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, that all the tribes should sacrifice there, where the temple of the habitation of the most High was consecrated and built for all ages.

Now all the tribes which together revolted, and the house of my father Nephthali, sacrificed unto the heifer Baal.

6 But I alone went often to Jerusalem at the feasts, as it was ordained unto all the people of Israel by an everlasting decree, having the firstfruits and tenths of increase, with that which was first shorn, and them gave I at the altar to the priests the children of Aaron.

7 The first tenth part of all increase I gave to the sons of Aaron, who ministered at Jerusalem: another tenth part I sold away, and went, and spent it every year at Jerusalem.

8 And the third I gave unto them to whom it was meet, as Debora my father's mother had commanded me, because I was left in orphan by my father.

9 Furthermore, when I was come to the age of a man, I married Anna of mine own kindred, and of her I begat Tobias.

10 And when we were carried away captives to Nineve, all my brethren and those that were of my kindred did eat of the bread of the Gentiles.

11 But I kept myself from eating,

12 Because I remembered God with all my heart.

13 And the most High gave me grace and favour before Enemessar, so that I was his purveyor.

14 And I went into Media, and left in trust with Gabael, the brother of Gabrias, at Rages a city of Media ten talents of silver.

15 Now when Enemessar was dead, Sennacherib his son reigned in his stead, whose estate was troubled, that I could not go into Media.

16 And in the time of Enemessar I gave many alms to my brethren, and gave my bread to the hungry.

17 And my clothes to the naked, and if I saw any of my nation dead, or cast about the walls of Nineve, I buried him.

18 And if the king Sennacherib had slain any, when he was come, and fled from Judea, I buried them privily, for in his wrath he killed many, but the bodies were not found, when they were sought for of the king.

19 And when one of the Ninevites went and complained of me to the king, that I

3 — I did many almsdeeds &c. ] We should observe, that Tobit's misfortunes never induce him to leave the path of virtue, and his charity to his brethren under the same captivity is most extraordinary and unaltered. Human prudence proceeds on maxims very different: it is natural for a captive, at a distance from his country, and reduced in his circumstances, to manage and reserve the little that remains, in order to subsist himself and his family, and to think that giving to others may be the way to bring poverty on himself: but the faith of Tobit judged otherwise, and "had respect unto the recompense of the reward." Arnald

11 But I kept myself from eating, ] Many of the Jews, and Tobit, as here appears, among them who were carried into captivity, still retained the true worship of God, and observing in the strange land the ordinances appointed by the law, fell not into the idolatrous usages and impieties of the heathens among whom they were dispersed. Thus they abstained from all meats and drink that came from the heathens, and forbore to eat promiscuously with them from the fear of contracting a pollution and polluting of food which had been offered to idols. Arnald

13 — and he purveyor ] Was made his steward, had the general management of his house and family. Arnald

14 — at Rages a city of Media ] The place thought to be the same with Ragau mentioned at Judith 13. D. Wells. It was situated in the country out of Media, in the mountains which separate that country from Persia. Calmet

15 — whose estate was troubled &c. ] From the time of Tiglath-pileser the Mede had continued in subjection to the Assyrians. But under Sennacherib the Assyrian monarch fell into decay, either by his imprudence or bad fortune. The Medes taking advantage perhaps of his long absence, revolted, and were never after brought again under the Assyrian yoke, though I addon, the successor of Sennacherib, in the course of his reign seems to have been both a valourous and successful prince. These are the troubles which prevented Tobit from going into Judea according to his custom or intention. Arnald

17 — if I saw any of my nation dead, &c. ] The account given in this part of the book of Tobit of the treatment experienced by the poor Jews in their captivity of their being often arbitrarily put to death, and their bodies left unburied, is very different from what takes place under regular governments, but is perfectly conformable to what is to this day practised in the despotick countries of the East. Harmer

18 — and fled from Judea, &c. ] It appears that Sennacherib, after his return to Nineveh from his sign defeat on the angel of the Lord smiting his army, (2 Kings xix. 35,) grew cruel and tyrannical especially towards the Jews, numbers of whom he caused to be slain and cast into the street. Arnald

— I buried them privily ] It was always held in act of great justice and mercy to bestow burial on the dead, the want of burial having been deemed by most nations of antiquity one of the greatest punishments that could be inflicted. Jehoiakim the son of Josiah threatened with the want of burial, Jer. xxii. 19. St. Ambrose speaking of this charitable action of Tobit, says, that there is not a more excellent duty than to do good to them that cannot repay, and to rescue a fellow creature from the violence of the fowls of the air and the beasts of the field. Arnald

19 — complained of me to the king, that I buried them, ] It is buried them, and hid myself, understanding that I was sought for to be put to death, I withdrew myself for fear.

20 Then all my goods were forcibly taken away, neither is there any thing left me, beside my wife Anna and my son Tobias.

21 And there passed not five and fifty days, before two of his sons killed him, and they fled into the mountains of Ararat, and Sarchedonus his son reigned in his stead, who appointed over his father's accounts, and over all his affairs, Achiacharus my brother Anan's son.

22 And Achiacharus intrusting for me, I returned to Nineve. Now Achiacharus was cupbearer, and keeper of the signet, and steward, and overseer of the accounts, and Sarchedonus appointed him next unto him, and he was my brother's son.

CHAP. II

1 Tobit ledeth his meat to bury the dead, 10 and becometh blind. 11 His wife taketh in work to get her living. 12 Her husband and she fall out about a kid.

NOW when I was come home again, and my wife Anna was restored unto me, with my son Tobias, in the feast of Pentecost, which is the first feast of the seven weeks, there was a good dinner prepared me, in the which I sat down to eat.

2 And when I saw abundance of meat, I said to my son, Go and bring what poor man soever thou shalt find out of our brethren, who is mindful of the Lord, and, lo, I tarry for thee.

3 But he came again, and said, Father, still held to be highly criminal in despotic countries to bury without permission persons who are executed. Windus speaking of what takes place in the empire of Morocco says, that nobody dares bury the body of a person executed till the emperor has given orders for it. Harmes

21 — mountains of Ararat ] In Armenia. See 2 Kings xix. Sarchedonus ] Or Isur haddon. See the same related at 2 Kings xix.

Chap. II ver. 1 — I sat down to eat ] The expression in the Greek is, "I lay down to eat" which proves that the custom of reclining at meals, which prevailed among the Jews in our Saviour's time, had obtained at this period. Calmet

It has been supposed by many, that the custom of reclining at meals was derived to the Jews from the Romans; but this passage seems to prove the contrary. Drusus. See the notes on Amos ii 8, Matt. viii 11.

2 — bring what poor man soever thou shalt find &c. ] The Hebrews were accustomed, on their great festivals to allow themselves better fare than ordinary, and Tobit, it appears on such occasions, was not content with providing good entertainment for himself, but charitably gave a portion of it to the poor and stranger. Calmet

6 Remembering that prophecy of Amos, &c. ] Amos prophesied under the reign of Uzziah king of Judah, and Jeroboam II king of Israel, about eighty years before the event here mentioned. Amos in the place referred to, either foretells the misery of the captivity in which the Israelites were involved under the Assyrians, of which Tobit now bewails the accomplishment, or else Tobit accommodates the words of the Prophet to their present unhappy state and circumstances, when, instead of celebrating their feasts with joy and gladness, as was usual in their own country, they groaned under the yoke and tyranny of the oppressors, being denied even the innocent liberty and commendable right of burying their murdered countrymen, without manifestly inciting the danger of their lives. Arnald

4 Then before I had tasted of my meat, I started up, and took him up into a room until the going down of the sun.

5 Then I returned, and washed myself, and ate my meat in heaviness.

6 Remembering that prophecy of Amos, as he said, Your feasts shall be turned into mourning, and all your mirth into lamentation.

7 Therefore I wept, and after the going down of the sun I went and made a grave, and buried him.

8 But my neighbours mocked me, and said, This man is not yet afraid to be put to death for this matter, who fled away, and yet, lo, he burieth the dead again.

9 The same night also I returned from the burial, and slept by the wall of my courtyard, being polluted, and my face was uncovered.

10 And I knew not that there were sparrows in the wall, and mine eyes being open, the sparrows mewed warm dung into mine eyes, and a whiteness came in mine eyes; and I went to the physicians, but they helped me not; moreover Achiacharus did nourish me, until I went into Elymais.

11 And my wife Anna did take women's works to do.

12 And when she had sent them home to the owners, they paid her wages, and gave her also besides a kid.

13 And when it was in my house, and began to cry, I said unto her, From whence

of Israel, about eighty years before the event here mentioned. Amos in the place referred to, either foretells the misery of the captivity in which the Israelites were involved under the Assyrians, of which Tobit now bewails the accomplishment, or else Tobit accommodates the words of the Prophet to their present unhappy state and circumstances, when, instead of celebrating their feasts with joy and gladness, as was usual in their own country, they groaned under the yoke and tyranny of the oppressors, being denied even the innocent liberty and commendable right of burying their murdered countrymen, without manifestly inciting the danger of their lives. Arnald

9 — slept by the wall of my courtyard ] It seems he was unwilling to enter his house on account of the pollution he had contracted from the dead body, since every person or thing that touched one thus defiled, was polluted thereby. Arnald

— being polluted, ] This pollution from touching a dead body lasted seven days, Numb. xix 11, &c. Calmet

10 — sparrows &c. ] Patricius, swallows, as the margin states. The excrement of these animals is appears from Pliny and other naturalists is hot and acrimonious, and may cause blindness. Dr. Gray. Calmet. The Greek word here used signifies any small birds. Calmet

11 — did take women's work ] Such was Tobit's extreme poverty at this time, that his wife was under the necessity of seeking out an employment for the purpose of subsistence. Arnald

19 this kid? is it not stolen? render it to the owners, for it is not lawful to eat any thing that is stolen.

20 But she replied upon me, It was given for a gift more than the wages. Howbeit I did not believe her, but bade her render it to the owners. and I was dashed at her. But she replied upon me, Where are thine alms and thy righteous deeds? Behold, thou and all thy works are known.

CHAP. III.

1 Tobit raised with his wife's tears, prayeth. 11 Sara, reproached by her father's maids, prayeth also. 17 An angel is sent to help them both.

THEN I being grieved did weep, and in my sorrow prayed, saying,

2 O Lord, thou art just, and all thy works and all thy ways are mercy and truth, and thou judgest truly and justly for ever.

3 Remember me, and look on me, punish me not for my sins and ignorances, and the sins of my fathers, who have sinned before thee.

4 For they obeyed not thy commandments: wherefore thou hast delivered us for a spoil, and unto captivity, and unto death, and for a proverb of reproach to all the nations among whom we are dispersed.

5 And now thy judgments are many and true: deal with me according to my sins and my fathers' because we have not kept thy commandments, neither have walked in truth before thee.

6 Now therefore deal with me as seemeth best unto thee, and command my spirit to be taken from me, that I may be dissolved, and become earth: for it is profitable for me to die rather than to live, because I have heard false reproaches, and have much sorrow. command therefore that I may now be delivered out of this distress, and go into the everlasting peace: turn not thy face away from me.

7 It came to pass the same day, that in Ecbatane a city of Media Sara the daughter of Raguel was also reproached by her father's maids,

8 Because that she had been married to seven husbands, whom Asmodeus the evil spirit had killed, before they had lain with her. Dost thou not know, said they, that thou hast strangled thine husbands? thou hast had already seven husbands, neither wast thou named after any of them.

9 Wherefore dost thou beat us for them? if they be dead, go thy ways after them, let us never see of thee either son or daughter.

10 When she heard these things, she was very sorrowful, as that she thought to have strangled herself, and she said, I am the only daughter of my father, and if I do this, it shall be a reproach unto him, and shall bring his old age with sorrow unto the grave.

11 — behold thou and all thy works are known.] She upbraids him with his tenderness of conscience, and the little good it had done him. You need indeed reproach me, behold, your disgrace is known to every one, the charities which you have exercised all your life profit you nothing, they have not kept you from blindness which deprives you of every comfort. You had great hopes that, living so piously, you could not fail to be prosperous and happy: and that since you served God, He would most certainly repay you chap. iv. 14. But where are your alms and righteous deeds now? Have they kept blindness or adversity from you? Have not your extensive and indiscreet charities brought us to the distressed condition we now are in? Arnold.

[Chap. III. ver. 1 — and in my sorrow prayed.] We have here a further instance of Tobit's good disposition, and particular sweetness of temper. He does not return railing for railing, but going to some retired place (as it should seem from ver. 17) pours forth his complaints to God of the great injustice done him, but confesses it the same time in the spirit of humility, that his sin had deserved a worse treatment. Arnold.

11 — Ecbatane a city of Media.] Ecbatane seems to have been built not long after Babylon. We find that Semiramis the wife of Nimrod was against the Medes who had then rebelled to her in election to the place, caused watercourses to be made to it digging up siege through the hills with great labour and charge. Being destroyed by the injury of time, it was rebuilt by Darius the sixth king of the Medes, and afterwards much beautified and enlarged by Seleucus Nicator one of the successors of Alexander the Great in his Asian conquests. For beauty and magnificence it was little inferior to Babylon or Nineveh. In compass it was said to be 180 or 200 furlongs, which make about twenty-four of our miles. The walls thereof are affirmed in the book of Judith to be seventy cubits high, fifty cubits broad, and the towers upon the gates are hundred cubits higher, all built of hewn and polished stones, each stone being six cubits in length, and three in breadth. But this is to be understood only of the innermost wall, there being seven in all about it, each of them higher than the other, and each distinguished by the colour of their several pinnacles, which gave to the eye a most pleasant prospect. It was the ordinary residence of the kings of Persia in the heat of summer: as Susa was in the cold of winter. The royal palace was about a mile in compass and built with all the cost and skill that a stately edifice required. Some of its beams are said to have been of silver and the rest of cedar, which were strengthened with plates of gold. Josephus, the Jewish historian, relates, that it was built by the Prophet Daniel, which must be understood no otherwise than that he overlooked the work, or contrived the model, appointed to do so by the order of Darius the Mede, to whom the building of the same is ascribed by others. Neglected at length by the kings of the Parthian race, it became a ruin. Dr. Wells.

8 — whom Asmodeus the evil spirit had killed.] The name Asmodeus seems to be derived from a Hebrew word which signifies 'to ruin, to destroy, to make desolate,' and therefore most properly belongs to those evil spirits whose aim it is to ruin and destroy the souls of men. It has been thought by some that the evil spirit here mentioned is the demon of impurity, and that God permitted him to punish with death those who approached Sara with evil and criminal dispositions. Calmet.

11 Then she prayed toward the window, and said, Blessed art thou, O Lord my God, and thine holy and glorious name is blessed and honourable for ever let all thy works praise thee for ever

12 And now, O Lord, I set mine eyes and my face toward thee,

13 And say, Take me out of the earth, that I may hear no more the reproach

14 Thou knowest, Lord, that I am pure from all sin with man,

15 And that I never polluted my name, nor the name of my father, in the land of my captivity I am the only daughter of my father, neither hath he any child to be his heir, neither any near kinsman, nor any son of his alive, to whom I may keep myself for a wife. my seven husbands are already dead, and why should I live? but if it please not thee that I should die, command some regard to be had of me, and pity taken of me, that I hear no more reproach

16 So the prayers of them both were heard before the majesty of the great God.

17 And Raphael was sent, to heal them both, that is, to scale away the whiteness of Tobit's eyes, and to give Sara the daughter of Raguel for a wife to Tobias the son of Tobit, and to bind Asmodeus the evil spirit, because she belonged to Tobias by right of inheritance The self-same time came Tobit home, and entered into his house, and Sara the daughter of Raguel came down from her upper chamber

3 Tobit giveth instructions to his son Tobias, 20 and telleth him of money left with Gabriel in Media

21 — toward the window, ] Toward the window which opened towards Jerusalem See Dan vi 10 Arnald

15 — neither any near kinsman, &c ] That is her father had no son to inherit his substance, nor any near kinsman or relation neither brother, nor brother's son to whom, as the law required, she might dispose of herself in marriage Those women of Israel who had no brothers of the same blood, were enjoined by the law of Moses to marry the next of kin, Numb xxviii 8, &c Arnald

17 — Raphael was sent to heal them ] The name 'Raphael' signifies "the medicine of God, or the God who heals Calmet

— came down from her upper chamber ] It seems to have been customary among the devout persons of the Jewish nation of both sexes, to set apart some upper room where they might attend the business of prayer without noise or disturbance see Dan vi 10, Acts i 13 or else this might be a female apartment, where she sat to work, for it was the custom of antiquity to assign the uppermost rooms to the women, that they might be secluded from all intrusion and interruption Arnald

(chap IV ver 3 — when he had called him, he said &c ] The advice which Tobit in this chapter gives his son, when he pre-

IN that day Tobit remembered the money which he had committed to Gabriel in Rages of Media,

2 And said with himself, I have wished, for death, wherefore do I not call for my son Tobias, that I may signify to him of the money before I die

3 And when he had called him, he said, My son, when I am dead, bury me, and despise not thy mother, but honour her all the days of thy life, and do that which shall please her, and grieve her not

4 Remember, my son, that she saw many dangers for thee, when thou wast in her womb, and when she is dead, bury her by me in one grave

5 My son, be mindful of the Lord our God all thy days, and let not thy will be set to sin, or to transgress his commandments do uprightly all thy life long, and follow not the ways of unrighteousness

6 For if thou deal truly, thy doings shall prosperously succeed to thee, and to all them that live justly

7 Give alms of thy substance, and when thou givest alms, let not thine eye be covetous, neither turn thy face from any poor, and the face of God shall not be turned away from thee

8 If thou hast abundance, give alms accordingly if thou have but a little, be not afraid to give according to that little

9 For thou layest up a good treasure for thyself against the day of necessity

10 Because that alms do deliver from death, and suffereth not to come into darkness summed that death was approaching, and that God had heard his petition to be removed from the miseries of life, has always been esteemed an excellent abridgment of moral duties The precepts are very plain and obvious, and require only sincerity and a good disposition to apply them We should observe, that he enters on this advice before he settles his worldly affairs Arnald

2 — bury her by me in one grave ] The ancient patriarchs expressed the same care and concern respecting their interment in this particular Thus Abraham purchased the cave of Machpelah for the burying place of Sarah, Gen xxiii 19, and was afterwards himself deposited in the same, Gen xxv 10 Isaac and Jacob with their wives were buried there also, Gen xlix 31 Arnald

10 — alms do deliver from death, &c ] Meaning, that charity, through the blessing of God, often proves the means and occasion of long life, as seems to be more fully expressed at chap xii 9 or the meaning may be, that charity is effectual for procuring God's favour and mercy, and will make the latter days of the beneficent man easy and comfortable or, lastly, that charity wipes away sins, and delivers from death, the consequence of them Arnald

— to come into darkness ] Our Saviour expresses the state of the wicked in death by a similar term, 'outer darkness,' Matt viii 12, xiii 13 Calmet

12 Beware of all whoredom, my son, and chiefly take a wife of the seed of thy fathers, and take not a strange woman to wife which is not of thy father's tribe, for we are the children of the prophets, Noe, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob remember, my son, that our fathers from the beginning; even that they all married wives of their own kindred, and were blessed in their children, and their seed shall inherit the land.

13 Now therefore, my son, love thy brethren, and despise not in thy heart thy brethren, the sons and daughters of thy people, in not taking a wife of them for in pride is destruction and much trouble, and in lewdness is decay and great want for lewdness is the mother of famine.

14 Let not the wages of any man, which hath wrought for thee, tarry with thee, but give him it out of hand for if thou serve God, he will also repay thee be circumspect, my son, in all things thou doest, and be wise in all thy conversation.

15 Do that to no man in which thou hatest: drink not wine to make thee drunken neither let drunkenness go with thee in thy journey.

16 Give of thy bread to the hungry, and of thy garments to them that are naked, and according to thine abundance give alms, and let not thine eye be envious, when thou givest alms.

17 Pour out thy bread on the burial of the just, but give nothing to the wicked.

18 Ask counsel of all that are wise, and despise not any counsel that is profitable.

12 — in lewdness is decay &c.] The word, translated "lewdness," signifies rather, "idleness, unprofitableness," and to this the observation seems to be applied. Arnald

14 Let not the wages — tarry with thee.] In conformity with this was the merciful provision of the Mosaic law, not to let the wages of him that is hired abide all night until the morning, Levit. xix 13 Deut. xxiv 15 Calmet See also James v 4

15 Do that to no man which thou hatest.] This precept is extremely similar to that admirable precept, which our blessed Lord mentioned by His authority at Matt vii 12 Calmet See the notes there

16 Give of thy bread in thy journey.] Some other copies read "in thy ways." But perhaps Tobit may have had particular respect to the journey on which he was about to send his son, and may have given him a caution against excess in drinking, to which the thirst arising from travelling in a warm climate would especially tempt him. Arnald

17 Pour out thy bread on the burial of the just.] See the note on Lev. xxi

18 Thou hast much wealth, if thou fear God.] This sentiment is so evident that it has been observed upon it, it might be thought to have been spoken by some Christian father to his son, in the time of the Gospel. Tobit had lost his sight, was a captive, and reduced to low circumstance, and yet in the full assurance of faith, from the good treasure of his heart, he pronounced this encouraging maxim to all others in the like dis-

19 Bless the Lord thy God always, and desire of him that thy ways may be directed, and that all thy paths and counsels may prosper for every nation hath not counsel, but the Lord himself giveth all good things, and he humbleth whom he will, as he will, now therefore, my son, remember my commandments, neither let them be put out of thy mind.

20 And now I signify this to thee, that I committed ten talents to Gabrael the son of Gabrias as Rages in Media.

21 And fear not, my son, that we are made poor for thou hast much wealth, if thou fear God, and depart from all sin, and do that which is pleasing in his sight.

* Young Tobias seeketh a guide into Media 6 The angel will go with him, 12 and saith he is his kinsman 16 Tobias and the angel depart together 17 But his mother is grieved for her son's departing

TOBIAS then answered and said, Father, I will do all things which thou hast commanded me.

2 But how can I receive the money, seeing I know him not?

3 Then he gave him the handwriting, and said unto him, Seek thee a man which may go with thee, while I yet live, and I will give him wages and go and receive the money.

4 Therefore when he went to seek a man, he found Raphael that was an angel.

5 But he knew not, and he said unto him, Canst thou go with me to Rages and knowest thou those places well?

troubled circumstances, "Thou hast much wealth, if thou fear God." God will either return with advantage to a persecuted and afflicted servant what he may at any time have lost, especially for the sake of His truth and bless his latter end, as He did that of Job, with the greater flow of prosperity, or, having proved his soul by a great trial of afflictions, reserve for him a treasure in the heaven with which temporal goods are not worthy to be compared. How happy would the case of the poor be, if, like Tobit, they had ever this excellent maxim in their minds, which he here gives in charge to his son! It may not be amiss to observe, and place in one view, the several admirable precepts given by a religious father to his son in this chapter. 1 To remember God, and to praise Him devoutly for His blessings. 2 To pay a reverence and regard to parents for the kindness received from them. 3 To shew charity to the poor. 4 To avoid fornication, and every species of lewdness. 5 To abhor all pride. 6 To be just towards all, and in particular to give the labourer his hire. 7 To honour good and just men, and to pay a respect to their memory by a decent funeral. 8 To ask counsel of the wise, and follow it. 9 To trust in God's goodness, even in the midst of poverty. Arnald

5 But he knew not.] He knew not that he was an angel, having assumed a human form. Arnald

6 To whom the angel said, I will go with thee, and I know the way well for I have lodged with our brother Gabael.

7 Then Tobias said unto him, Tarry for me, till I tell my father.

8 Then he said unto him, Go, and tarry not. So he went in and said to his father, Behold I have found one which will go with me. Then he said, Call him unto me, that I may know of what tribe he is, and whether he be a trusty man to go with thee.

9 So he called him, and he came in, and they saluted one another.

10 Then Tobit said unto him, Brother, shew me of what tribe and family thou art.

11 To whom he said, Dost thou seek for a tribe or family, or an hired man to go with thy son? Then Tobit said unto him, I would know, brother, thy kindred and name.

12 Then he said, I am Azarias, the son of Ananias the great, and of thy brethren.

13 Then Tobit said, Thou art welcome, brother, be not now angry with me, because I have enquired to know thy tribe and thy family, for thou art my brother, of an honest and good stock, for I know Ananias and Jonathas, sons of that great Samaias, as we went together to Jerusalem to worship, and offered the firstborn, and the tenths of the fruits, and they were not seduced with the error of our brethren. My brother, thou art of a good stock.

14 But tell me, what wages shall I give thee? wilt thou a drachm a day, and things necessary, as to mine own son?

15 Yea, moreover, if ye return safe, I will add something to thy wages.

16 So they were well pleased. Then said he to Tobias, Prepare thyself for the journey, and God send you a good journey. And when his son had prepared all things for the journey, his father said, Go thou with this man, and God, which dwelleth in heaven, prosper your journey, and the angel of God keep you company. So they went forth both, and the young man's dog with them.

17 But Anna his mother wept, and said to Tobit, Why hast thou sent away our son? is he not the staff of our hand, in going in and out before us?

18 Be not greedy to add money to money, but let it be as refuse in respect of our child.

19 For that which the Lord hath given us to live with doth suffice us.

20 Then said Tobit to her, Take no care, my sister, he shall return in safety, and thine eyes shall see him.

21 For the good angel will keep him company, and his journey shall be prosperous, and he shall return safe.

22 Then she made an end of weeping.

CHAP. VI

4 The angel biddeth Tobias to take the liver heart and gall out of a fish, 10 and to marry Sara the daughter of Raguel 16 and teacheth how to drive the wicked spirit away.

AND as they went on their journey, they came in the evening to the river Tigris, and they lodged there.

2 And when the young man went down to wash himself, a fish leaped out of the river, and would have devoured him.

14 — Dost thou seek for a tribe or family,] His meaning seems to be, Why dost thou trouble thyself about my tribe or family? intent thyself without any further inquiry, that thou hast a good guide for thy son. Arnald

12 — I am Azarias, &c] The name Azarias signifies God's help or assistance. Raphael was manifestly sent on this occasion for the purpose of being a guide and assistance to Tobias in his journey, and therefore he prudently concealed his quality as an angel that he might more conveniently execute his commission. Stackhouse

14 — a drachm a day] We cannot discover with any certainty the value of this drachm. It is inferred from Matt xvii, that the Greek drachm was a fourth part of the Hebrew shekel, thus allowing the shekel to be about two shillings and upwards of our money, the drachm was equal to about seven-tenths of our money. On the other hand if we suppose the translation of the book of Tobit from the Chaldean into Greek to have been made by some Alexandrian Jew, then we must understand the Alexandrian drachm to be meant, which was equal to half a Hebrew shekel, or about one shilling and twopenny of our money. Arnald

16 — and the young man's dog with them] The mention of Tobias's dog has been frequently represented as a ludicrous and unnecessary particular. But there is often as much want of taste as of candour in criticism of this nature. The introduction of such incidental particulars is not unusual in the most admired works of antiquity. Dr Gray

17 — is he not the staff of our hand &c] This is a Hebrew expression, to which there is a similar phrase at Numb xxvii 17. The sense is, Is he not the staff of our age in managing our affairs and taking care of us? Arnald

20 — my sister] It was often the custom of the Jews to call their wives by this name, as being descended by the same common stock with themselves from their ancestors, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Crotius

21 — the good angel will keep him company,] It was the common persuasion of the ancient Hebrews, that every man has a guardian angel, who watches over his preservation. Calmat

Chap. VI ver 1 — to the river Tigris,] This river runs from Nineveh towards Adiabene, which is the route of persons going to Media. Crotius

2 — a fish leaped out] It is quite uncertain of what species was the fish here mentioned. The gall of the fish called Callo is much celebrated in removing speck and obstruction of the sight. But this fish seems to be too small to come pond with this.

3 Then the angel said unto him, Take the fish. And the young man laid hold of the fish, and drew it to land.

4 To whom the angel said, Open the fish, and take the heart and the liver and the gall, and put them up safely.

5 So the young man did as the angel commanded him, and when they had roasted the fish, they did eat it. Then they both went on their way, till they drew near to Ecbatane.

6 Then the young man said to the angel, Brother Azarias, to what use is the heart and the liver and the gall of the fish?

7 And he said unto him, Touching the heart and the liver, if a devil or an evil spirit trouble my, we must make a smoke thereof before the man or the woman, and the party shall be no more vexed.

8 As for the gall, it is good to anoint a man that hath whiteness in his eyes, and he shall be healed.

9 And when they were come near to Rages,

10 The angel said to the young man, Brother, to day we shall lodge with Raguel, who is thy cousin; he also hath one only daughter, named Sara, I will speak for her, that she may be given thee for a wife.

11 For to thee doth the right of her appertain, seeing thou only art of her kindred.

12 And the maid is fair and wise: now therefore hear me, and I will speak to her father, and when we return from Rages we will celebrate the marriage: for I know that Raguel cannot marry her to another according to the law of Moses, but he shall be guilty of death, because the right of inheritance doth rather appertain to thee than to any other.

13 Then the young man answered the angel, I have heard, brother Azarias, that this maid has been given to seven men, who all died in the marriage chamber.

14 And now I am the only son of my father, and I am afraid, lest, if I go in unto her, I die, as the other before for a wicked spirit loveth her, which hurteth no body, but those which come unto her: wherefore I also fear lest I die, and bring my father's and my mother's life because of me to the grave with sorrow for they have no other son to bury them.

15 Then the angel said unto him, Dost thou not remember the precepts which thy father gave thee, that thou shouldst marry a wife of thine own kindred? wherefore hear me, O my brother, for she shall be given thee to wife, and make thou no reckoning of the evil spirit, for this same night shall she be given thee in marriage.

16 And when thou shalt come into the marriage chamber, thou shalt take the ashes of perfume, and shalt lay upon them some of the heart and liver of the fish, and shalt make a smoke with it.

17 And the devil shall smell it, and flee away, and never come again any more: but when thou shalt come to her, rise up both of you, and pray to God which is merciful, who will have pity on you, and save you: fear not, for she is appointed unto thee from the beginning, and thou shalt preserve her, and she shall go with thee. Moreover I suppose that she shall bear thee children. Now when Tobias had heard these things, he loved her, and his heart was effectually joined to her.

CHAP VII.

11 Raguel telleth Tobias what had happened to his daughter. 12 and giveth her in marriage unto him. 17 She is conveyed to her chamber, and receiveth. 18 Her mother comforteth her.

AND when they were come to Ecbatane, they came to the house of Raguel, and Sara met them. and after they had saluted one another, she brought them into the house.

description. Bochart contends for the bilurus, the Sheat fish, or Sturgeon, called also the Glanis. Thus the naturalists describe as large and voracious and its liver was famous for removing suffusions and dyspepsia. But it is objected that this fish, as having no scales could not be eaten consistently with the restrictions of the Levitical law, Lev xi 10, 11. The livers of many other fishes may have the same medicinal qualities. Dr Gray

12 — cannot marry her to another according to the law of Moses,] According to the precept in the Mosaic law, Numb xxvii 8, a woman who, having no brother, succeeded to the inheritance of her father, ought to marry her nearest kinsman. But the penalty of death here mentioned is nowhere denounced in the law. A preferable sense seems to be that of the Geneva version, "Else he would deserve death, instead of "but he shall be guilty of death." In some copies this clause is wholly omitted. Arnald

16 — the ashes of perfume.] Perfumes were usually burnt at marriages. See note at Cant iii 6. Indeed, at all feasts, it is the common custom of the East to use censers of different perfumes. Sir J Chardin

17 — pray to God — who will have pity on you,] This seems sufficiently to intimate, that the expulsion of the evil spirit was effected by the Divine power, although it is related as having been effected by a natural cause, the smoke of the fish. Stackhouse — for she is appointed unto thee from the beginning,] Meaning she belongs to thee, according to the law, and is thine by Divine appointment and designation. Arnald

How like is this young man to Tobit my cousin!

3 And Raguel asked them, From whence are ye, brethren? To whom they said, We are of the sons of Nephthahim, which are captives in Nineve.

4 Then he said to them, Do ye know our kinsman? And they said, We know him. Then said he, Is he in good health?

5 And they said, He is both alive, and in good health. And Tobias said, He is my father.

6 Then Raguel leaped up, and kissed him, and wept.

7 And blessed him, and said unto him, Thou art the son of an honest and good man. But when he had heard that Tobit was blind, he was sorrowful, and wept.

8 And likewise Edna his wife, and Sara his daughter wept. Moreover they entertained them cheerfully, and after that they had killed a ram of the flock, they set store of meat on the table. Then said Tobias to Raphael, Brother Azarias, speak of those things of which thou didst talk in the way, and let this business be dispatched.

9 So he communicated the matter with Raguel, and Raguel said to Tobias, Eat and drink, and make merry.

10 For it is meet that thou shouldst marry my daughter: nevertheless I will declare unto thee the truth.

11 I have given my daughter in marriage to seven men, who died that night they came in unto her: nevertheless for the present be merry. But Tobias said, I will eat nothing here, till we agree and swear one to another.

12 Raguel said, Then take her from henceforth according to the manner, for thou art her cousin, and she is thine, and the merciful God give you good success in all things.

13 Then he called his daughter Sara, and she came to her father, and he took her by the hand, and gave her to be wife to Tobias, saying, Behold, take her after the law of Moses, and lead her away to thy father. And he blessed them.

14 And called Edna his wife, and took paper, and did write an instrument of covenant, and sealed it.

15 Then they began to eat.

16 After Raguel called his wife Edna, and said unto her, Sister, prepare another chamber, and bring her in thither.

17 Which when she had done as he had bidden her, she brought her thither, and she wept, and she received the tears of her daughter, and said unto her,

18 Be of good comfort my daughter, the Lord of heaven and earth give thee joy for this thy sorrow. Be of good comfort, my daughter.

CHAP VIII

3 Tobias driveth the naked spirit away as he was taught. 4 He and his wife rise up to pray. 10 Raguel thought he was dead. 15 But finding him alive, praiseth God. 19 and maketh a wedding feast.

AND when they had supped, they brought Tobias in unto her.

2 And as he went, he remembered the words of Raphael, and took the ashes of the perfumes, and put the heart and the liver of the fish thereupon, and made a smoke thereof.

3 The which smell when the evil spirit had smelled, he fled into the utmost parts of Egypt, and the angel bound him.

4 And after that they were both shut in together, Tobias rose out of the bed, and said, Sister, arise, and let us pray that God would have pity on us.

5 Then began Tobias to say, Blessed art thou, O God of our fathers, and blessed is thy holy and glorious name for ever, let the heavens bless thee, and all thy creatures.

6 Thou madest Adam, and gavest him

13. — and gave her to be wife to Tobias.] We have here an instance of the very simple mode of celebrating marriage in ancient times. It is the father who performs the ceremony, and joins the right hands of the two parties. As the Latin translation expresses, 'a custom, which was common in Media where this took place, confirming all alliances and treaties.' Cabnet.

[Chap VIII ver 5. The which smell &c.] The supposed effect of fumigation on demons was agreeable to vulgar notions. We will observe, that the perfume is described as having been considered efficacious by faith, prayer, and continence. (ver 4, 5.) and it seems that the burning of the entrails of the fish was enjoined rather as a sign and intimation than as a physical cause, of the defeat of the evil spirit as in John ix 6. Dr Gray.

— into the utmost parts of Egypt.] The evil spirit was sent to those places where the dominion of Satan was especially established among idolaters, Zeck v 11. Bp Wilson.

— and the angel bound him.] We read of the binding of evil spirits in some parts of Scripture. See Rev xx 2. 2 Pet ii 4. Jude ver 6. We are not to understand the expression literally as if the evil spirit were confined or locked up within certain limits of space, but only that his power of doing mischief and of executing his wicked intentions, was restrained within limited bounds. As when God permits any person to be tempted, the power of the tempter is limited to that person, and to the place where he is. Cabnet.

10 I've his wife for my helper and stay of them came mankind thou hast said, It is not good that man should be alone, let us make unto him an aid like unto himself.

7 And now O Lord I take not this my stay for lust, but uprightly therefore mercifully ordain that we may become aged together.

8 And she said with him, Amen.

9 So they slept both that night. And Raguel arose, and went and made a grave,

10 Saying, I fear lest he also be dead.

11 But when Raguel was come into his house,

12 He said unto his wife Edna, Send one of the maid, and let her see whether he be alive: if he be not, that we may bury him, and no man know it.

13 So the maid opened the door, and went in, and found them both asleep.

14 And came forth, and told them that he was alive.

15 Then Raguel praised God, and said, O God, thou art worthy to be praised with all pure and holy praise, therefore let thy saints praise thee with all thy creatures, and let all thine angels and thine elect praise thee for ever.

16 Thou art to be praised, for thou hast made me joyful, and that is not come to me which I suspected, but thou hast dealt with us according to thy great mercy.

17 Thou art to be praised, because thou hast had mercy of two that were the only begotten children of their fathers: grant them mercy, O Lord, and finish their life in health with joy and mercy.

18 Then Raguel bade his servants to fill the grave.

19 And he kept the wedding feast fourteen days.

20 For before the days of the marriage were finished, Raguel had said unto him by an oath, that he should not depart till the fourteen days of the marriage were expired,

19 — he kept the wedding feast fourteen days ] Rejoicings at the Jewish weddings were esteemed so absolutely necessary, that the husband could not by any means be excused from them: but was obliged to continue them seven days at least: even the sabbath day of long counted no hindrance. It appears from several passages of Scripture that the usual time of the marriage feast was seven days. See Gen. xxix. 27. Judg. xiv. 10, 12, Tob. xi. 19. It is to be observed however that although the time was usually limited to a week, yet the parents of the espoused were at liberty to prolong it at their thought fit: and perhaps Raguel doubles the usual time by keeping the feast for fourteen days, from the satisfaction he felt at the escape of his son-in-law from the power and evil intentions of the demon. Anald.

1 Tobias sendeth the angel unto Gabael for the money.

6 The angel bringeth it and Gabael to the wedding.

THEN Tobias called Raphael, and said unto him,

2 Brother Azarias take with thee a servant, and two camels, and go to Rages of Media to Gabael, and bring me the money, and bring him to the wedding.

3 For Raguel hath sworn that I shall not depart.

4 But my father counteth the days, and if I tarry long, he will be very sorry.

5 So Raphael went out, and lodged with Gabael, and gave him the handwriting who brought forth bags which were sealed up, and gave them to him.

6 And early in the morning they went forth both together, and came to the wedding: and Tobias blessed his wife.

Chap. X ver. 6 — take no care for he is safe ] To the great concern expressed by his wife at the long absence of her son, and the apprehension of his death, Tobit calmly and tenderly replies, that it ought not to be thus discouraged and dejected, he was persuaded, through faith and trust in God, that his son was safe: and that some unforeseen accident on Gabael's part, and not any misfortune had occasioned the delay. We cannot but admire the exemplary patience of Tobit on all occasions: who, though poor, blind, old, and almost childless in every sense, yet never desponds or charges God foolishly. Anald.

ceive me not, my son is dead. And she went out every day into the way which they went, and did eat no meat on the daytime, and ceased not whole nights to bewail her son Tobias, until the fourteen days of the wedding were expired, which Raguel had sworn that he should spend there. Then Tobias said to Raguel, Let me go, for my father and my mother look no more to see me.

8 But his father in law said unto him, Tarry with me, and I will send to thy father, and they shall declare unto him how things go with thee.

9 But Tobias said, No, but let me go to my father.

10 Then Raguel rose, and gave him Sara his wife, and half his goods, servants, and cattle, and money.

11 And he blessed them, and sent them away, saying, The God of heaven give you a prosperous journey, my children.

12 And he said to his daughter, Honour thy father and thy mother in law, which are now thy parents, that I may hear good report of thee. And he kissed her. Edna also said to Tobias, The Lord of heaven restore thee, my dear brother, and grant that I may see thy children of my daughter Sara before I die, that I may rejoice before the Lord. Behold, I comit my daughter unto thee of special trust, wherefore do not entreat her evil.

CHAP XI

6 Tobias mother speth her son coming. 10 His father receiveth him at the door and recovereth his sight. 14 He praiseth God, 17 and receiveth his daughter in law.

AFTER these things Tobias went his way, praising God that he had given him a prosperous journey, and blessed Raguel and Edna his wife, and went on his way till they drew near unto Nineve.

2 Then Raphael said to Tobias, Thou knowest, brother, how thou didst leave thy father.

3 Let us haste before thy wife, and prepare the house.

4 And take in thine hand the gill of the fish. So they went their way, and the dog went after them.

5 Now Anna sat looking about toward the way for her son.

6 And when she espied him coming, she said to his father, Behold, thy son cometh and the man that went with him.

7 Then said Raphael, I know, Tobias that thy father will open his eyes.

8 Therefore anoint thou his eyes with the gall, and being pricked therewith, he shall rub, and the whiteness shall fall away and he shall see thee.

9 Then Anna ran forth and fell upon the neck of her son, and said unto him, Seeing I have seen thee, my son, from henceforth I am content to die. And they wept both.

10 Tobit also went forth toward the door, and stumbled. But his son ran unto him, 11 And took hold of his father and he stroke of the gall on his father's eyes, saying, Be of good hope, my father.

12 And when his eyes began to smart, he rubbed them.

13 And the whiteness pilled away from the corners of his eyes and when he saw his son, he fell upon his neck.

14 And he wept, and said, Blessed art thou, O God, and blessed is thy name forever, and blessed are all thine holy angels.

15 For thou hast scourged, and hast taken pity on me, for, behold, I see my son Tobias. And his son went in rejoicing, and told his father the great things that had happened to him in Media.

16 Then Tobit went out to meet his daughter in law at the gate of Nineve, rejoicing, and praising God and they which saw him go marvelled, because he had received his sight.

17 But Tobit gave thanks before them, and then Tobias and Raphael went on before to prepare for their reception in his father's house. Arnald

6 — when she espied him coming ] The words may be properly rendered when she perceived that he was coming, perhaps discovering him by the dog, ver. 4. Allowing this to be the meaning it explains the reason of the dog being mentioned and the incident is by no means low or ridiculous but rather natural and familiar. Dr Gray

13 And the whiteness pilled away ] We must understand the Divine power to have particularly concurred with the natural means for the cure of Tobit's blindness. For although the gall of the fish may have had the natural power yet it could not have effected so instantaneous a cure without special Divine interference. Drusus

10 — and half his goods ] The dowry which the Jewish brides brought to their husbands was different according to the circumstances of their parents. As such was in only child, and disposed of in marriage according to her parents' wishes and agreeably to the determination and appointment of the Mosarcal law, Raguel gives her half his substance in the present and engages to bestow the remainder at his death, chap. viii. 21. Arnald

12 — restore thee, my dear brother ] Grant thee a safe return. 'Brother' is used as an expression of tenderness and affection. Arnald

Chap. XI ver. 1* — till they drew near unto Nineve ] The time that the whole company went together till they came within a days, or some hours journey of Nineveh.

because God had mercy on him. And when he came near to Sara his daughter in law, he blessed her, saying, Thou art welcome, daughter. God be blessed, which hath brought thee unto us, and blessed be thy father and thy mother. And there was joy among all his brethren which were at Nineve.

18 And Achiorus, and Nasbas his brother's son, came.

19 And Tobias' wedding was kept seven days with great joy.

CHAPTER VII

Tobit offereth half to the angel for his pains. 6 But he calleth them both aside and exhorteth them. 15 and tell them that he was an angel, 21 and was seen no more.

THEN Tobit called his son Tobias, and said unto him, My son, see that the man have his wages, which went with thee, and thou must give him more.

2 And Tobias said unto him, O father, it is no harm to me to give him half of those things which I have brought.

3 For he hath brought me again to thee in safety, and made whole my wife, and brought me the money, and likewise healed thee.

4 Then the old man said, It is due unto him.

5 So he called the angel, and he said unto him, Take half of all that ye have brought, and go away in safety.

6 Then he took them both apart, and said unto them, Bless God, praise him, and magnify him, and praise him for the things which he hath done unto you in the sight of all that live. It is good to praise God, and exalt his name, and honourably to shew forth the works of God, therefore be not slack to praise him.

7 It is good to keep close the secret of a king, but it is honourable to reveal the works of God. Do that which is good, and no evil shall touch you.

8 Prayer is good with fasting and alms and righteousness. A little with righteousness is better than much with unrighteousness. It is better to give alms than to lay up gold.

9 For alms doth deliver from death, and shall purge away all sin. Those that exercise alms and righteousness shall be filled with life.

10 But they that sin are enemies to their own life.

11 Surely I will keep close nothing from you. For I said, It was good to keep close the secret of a king, but that it was honourable to reveal the works of God.

12 Now therefore, when thou didst pray, and Sara thy daughter in law, I did bring the remembrance of your prayers before the Holy One. And when thou didst bury the dead, I was with thee likewise.

13 And when thou didst not delay to rise up, and leave thy dinner, to go and cover the dead, thy good deed was not hid from me. But I was with thee.

14 And now God hath sent me to heal thee and Sara thy daughter in law.

15 I am Raphael, one of the seven holy angels, which present the prayers of the saints, and which go in and out before the glory of the Holy One.

16 Then they were both troubled, and fell upon their faces for they feared.

17 But he said unto them, Fear not, for it shall go well with you, praise God therefore.

18 For not of any favour of mine, but by the will of our God I came, wherefore praise him for ever.

19 All these days I did appear unto you, but I did neither eat nor drink, but ye did see a vision.

18 — Achiorus, and Nasbas his brother's son ] Achiorus is mentioned at chap. 1:22, as his brother's son. Thus it has been conjectured that the expression here should be "Achiorus who was also Nasbas, his brother's son." Arnald

19 — Tobias' wedding was kept ] His wedding was celebrated or the entertainments on account of his wedding were continued, for seven days. See note at chap. viii. 19.

Chap. VII ver. 7 — it is honourable to reveal the works of God ] Implying that the more the works of God are made manifest and revealed the more they promote His honour and glory and call for a larger tribute of praise and thanksgiving. Arnald

9 — shall be filled with life ] Though life eternal is not expressly mentioned here yet it is implied and forms the true sense of the passage. Man's living is not a natural means of procuring a long and happy life though God by bestowing His blessing on the chaste life man is often pleased so to order it. Tobit himself was an instance of the power, to which those may sometimes be reduced who shew the greatest zeal in exercising works of charity. The following verse confirms this sense, "they are enemies to their own life," that is they bring upon themselves death and destruction, or they expose themselves to eternal misery. Calmet Arnald

11 — I did bring the remembrance &c. ] The opinion, that the angels are ministers of God presented to Him the supplications of men was extremely ancient. Arnald

15 — one of the seven holy angels ] We find the seven angels or spirits mentioned at Rev. 1:4, 14, 15 & 16. According to some opinions, even is here put for an indefinite number, since we have frequent mention of an infinite number of angels before the throne of God. Dan. vii. 10. Rev. 5:11, but it is more probable that seven principal angels are meant the most exalted, most glorious, and chief of the heavenly host that hold the first rank in the hierarchy of angels and are as princes in the court of the sovereign Lord of the universe. Arnald

20 Now therefore give God thanks for I go up to him that sent me, but write all things which are done in a book

* 20 — write all things — in a book] It has commonly been believed, that Tobit and Tobias wrote their own history, an opinion which has been principally founded on the command here given by the angel Arnold

[Chap XIII ver 2 — he leadeth down to hell] The expression seems taken from the song of Hannah, 1 Sam ii 6, 'The Lord killeth, and maketh alive' He bringeth down to the grave and bringeth up What consolation do these words administer to one of sound faith and how refreshing is it to the afflicted servants of God, to be assured that the chastisement by which He proves their virtue, tends to their good and will end happily at last! Arnold

6 — declare his might and majesty to a sinful nation] By 'a sinful nation' he seems to mean the Israelites now captive on account of their sins Thus he blesses God and magnifies His power and justice, not for His favours but for His chastisement sent upon an ungrateful people, laden with iniquity who had been unworthy of His mercy In this he acts as becoming the true servants of God, who bless Him even for the afflictions with which He is pleased to visit them, and acknowledge the justice of His conduct towards them even though He does not distinguish them lot from that of sinners Arnold Or, by declaring 'His might and majesty to a sinful nation' may be meant that he was then publishing the wonderful works of God to the Assyrians, for the purpose of converting them from their idolatry to the religion of the true God Gratius

10 — that his tabernacle may be builded in thee again] Tobit seems here to refer to Amos ix 11 In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and pray for its accomplishment There is no necessity of supposing, in regard to this or any other expression that Tobit possessed the gift of prophecy, he seems on the contrary entirely to ground his observations on the writings of the inspired Prophets who preceded him Arnold

11 Many nations shall come from far &c] He seems here to refer to Ps lxxii 10 11

16 with sapphires and emeralds, &c] This description seems to be taken from Is liv 11, 12 Gratius

CHAP XIV

Tobit gives instructions to his son 8 specially to leave Nineve 11 He and his wife die, and are buried 12 Tobias remoneth to Tobit, 14 and there died, after he had heard of the destruction of Nineve

SO Tobit made an end of praising God 2 And he was eight and fifty years old when he lost his sight, which was restored to him after eight years and he gave alms, and he increased in the fear of the Lord God, and praised him

3 And when he was very aged, he called his son, and the six sons of his son, and said to him, My son, take thy children, for, behold, I am aged, and am ready to depart out of this life

4 Go into Media, my son, for I surely believe those things which Jonas the prophet spake of Nineve, that it shall be overthrown, and that for a time peace shall rather be in Media, and that our brethren shall lie scattered in the earth from that good land and Jerusalem shall be desolate, and the house of God in it shall be burned, and shall be desolate for a time,

5 And that again God will have mercy on them, and bring them again into the land, where they shall build a temple, but not like to the first, until the time of that age be fulfilled, and afterward they shall return from all places of their captivity, and build up Jerusalem gloriously, and the house of God shall be built in it || for ever with a glorious building, as the prophets have spoken thereof

6 And all nations shall turn, and fear the Lord God truly, and shall bury their idols

7 So shall all nations praise the Lord, and his people shall confess God, and the Lord shall exalt his people, and all those which love the Lord God in truth and justice shall rejoice, shewing mercy to our brethren

8 And now, my son, depart out of Nineve, because that those things which the prophet Jonas spake shall surely come to pass.

9 But keep thou the law and the commandments, and shew thyself merciful and just, that it may go well with thee

10 And bury me decently, and thy mother with me, but tarry no longer at Nineve. Remember, my son, how Aman handled Achicharus that brought him up, how out of light he brought him into darkness, and how he rewarded him again yet Achicharus was saved, but the other had his reward for he went down into darkness || Manasses gave alms, and escaped the snares of death || which they had set for him but Aman fell into the snare, and perished

11 Wherefore now, my son, consider what alms doeth, and how righteousness

Chap XIV ver 2 — was eight and fifty years old] The different copies vary considerably respecting Tobit's age at this time and also respecting his age and that of Tobias, when they respectively died, ver 11 14 Arnald

4 — which Jonas the prophet &c.] Jonas did not actually prophesy the destruction of Nineveh, but he foretold generally the revenge which God would take upon the Assyrians for their repeated provocations chap ii in, and though, as is well known his first prediction against the city that it should be destroyed in forty days was not at that time fulfilled, on account of his repentance and humiliation of the inhabitants yet it was to be understood that the same judgment still hung over the city to be put in execution whenever the people should return to their wicked and abandoned way Arnald

The prophecy of Jonas at chap iii 4 of his book may be supposed to include the destruction of Nineveh by the Medes and Babylonians. It a accomplishment was protracted but not frustrated

It should be observed that in this instance Tobit does not pretend to the spirit of prophecy himself but speaks entirely from what had been foretold by Jon Dr Gray

— Jerusalem shall be desolate, &c.] He says this on the authority of those inspired Prophets, who had foretold this desolation of Jerusalem, and of the house of God, Mic in 12, Jer xxvi 15 Arnald

In this and the subsequent verse, Tobit mentions four great events of futurity the knowledge of which is derived from the Prophets namely, 1st, The end of the Jewish age or state and a long captivity of his nation ensuing upon it 2dly A general return from that captivity 3dly The rebuilding gloriously of the city and temple and lastly the conversion of all the Gentiles from idolatry when the horn or kingdom of his people should be exalted Bp Chandler

6 — and shall bury their idols] The destruction of idolatry is often mentioned by the Prophets as a principal circumstance in their description of the flourishing state of the Church, which should come to pass in aftertimes. See Is i 9, Jer in 17, Zech xiii 2 Mic v 12 15 Arnald

10 — Aman — Achicharus — Manasses] Who these persons were is wholly unknown it has been conjectured that this Achicharus is the nephew of Tobit mentioned at chap i 21 ver 18 but this is quite uncertain Arnald

Aman here mentioned was certainly not Haman, the proud enemy of Mordecai, Esth iii 5 nor was this Manasses the husband of Judith Judith vii 2, but some predecessor or contemporary of Tobit, with whose history we are unacquainted Dr Gray

15 — he heard of the destruction of Nineve,] This remarkable event is generally placed in the twenty-ninth year of king Josiah, and the fixing it to this time exactly agrees with the account given by the heathen historians Arnold

— by Nabuchodonosor and Assuerus] Nabuchodonosor appears to have been a name among the Babylonians commonly given to their kings, as that of Pharaoh was among the Egyptians or at least the Jews called by this name all the princes that reigned beyond the Euphrates, and in this instance it seems to mean Nabopolassar the father of Nebuchadnezzar Also that the Assuerus here mentioned was Astyages appears from the book of Daniel chap ix 1 For Darius the Mede, who was Cyaxares the son of Astyages, is there called the son of Ahiacrus Dean P deaur

INTRODUCTION.

THE author and the period of this history are both uncertain. Some commentators imagine that it was written by Jochem or Thidam, whom they conceive to have been high priest in the reign of Manasseh, and that it was translated into Chaldee for the use of those Jews in the captivity of Babylon, who had forgotten their own language. Others attribute the work to Joshua, the son of Josedech the companion of Zerubbabel. But by whomsoever, or in whatever language it was produced, the original is not now extant. The Hebrew copy which some have professed to have seen at Constantinople, was probably a work of modern composition, and our English translation as well as the Syriack, is made from a Greek version which existed probably long before the time of Theodotion, as it seems to have been known to Clemens Romanus. The most probable opinion is, that the book was originally written in Chaldee by some Jew of Babylon, and it might possibly have been designed to enliven the confidence of the Jews during the captivity, and to invigorate their hopes of a deliverance.

The circumstances described in this history must have occurred previously to the destruction of Jerusalem, since the Persian empire is still subject to the Assyrian empire, and Nineveh, which is here mentioned as the capital of Nabuchodonosor's empire, was overthrown before that destruction, and upon the impending invasion of Holofernes the Jews are said in this book to have been troubled for Jerusalem, and for the temple of the Lord their God. Under therefore Lloyd and Prideaux have agreed on considering the history as coeval with the time of Manasseh, placing it in about the forty-fourth year of his reign, in the year of the world 3448. Dr Gray

Still though the history cannot with consistency be assigned to any other time than that of Manasseh, there are some objections to that period, which may be attributed to corruptions which have taken place in the copies we possess, or to the obscurities which necessarily hang over a period so distant, and so little illustrated by the remains of ancient history.

It appears from the accounts of Origen and St. Jerome, that the Jews reckoned this book among their apocryphal writings. It is not where cited by our Saviour or His Apostles; nor was it received as canonical by any of the Christian fathers, or the more ancient councils.

This book presents an interesting scene of ambition frustrated, and of intemperance punished. The history is written with great grandeur and imitation, and the Assyrian and Hebrew manners are well described. The prayer and hymn of Judith, (chap. ix. and xvi.) are composed with much piety. If the address, with which she accomplished her designs, should be thought to partake too much of an insidious character, we may be permitted at least to admire the heroic patriotism and piety which prompted her to undertake the exploit, the urgency and importance of the occasion will likewise excuse the indiscreet exposure of her person to intemperate passion, and in the general description of her character, she may be allowed to have presented an exemplary display of the virtues which become the widowed state. Dr Gray

CHAP. I.

2 Aphtarad doth fortify Ecbatane 5 Nabuchodonosor maketh war against him, 7 and craveth aid 12 He threateneth those that would not aid him 15 and killeth Aphtarad, 16 and returneth to Nineve

IN the twelfth year of the reign of Nabuchodonosor, who reigned in Nineve, the great city, in the days of Aphtarad, which reigned over the Medes in Ecbatane,

2 And built in Ecbatane walls round about of stones hewn three cubits broad and six cubits long, and made the height of the wall seventy cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits.

5 And set the towers thereof upon the gates of it, an hundred cubits high, and the breadth thereof in the foundation threescore cubits.

4 And he made the gates thereof, even gates that were raised to the height of seventy cubits, and the breadth of them was forty cubits, for the going forth of his mighty armies, and for the setting in array of his footmen.

5 Even in those days king Nabuchodonosor made war with king Aphtarad in the great plain, which is the plain in the borders of Ragau.

6 And there came unto him all they that dwelt in the hill country, and all that dwelt by Euphrates, and Tigris, and Hydaspe, and the plain of Arioch the king of the Elymeans, and very many nations of the sons of Chelod, assembled themselves to the battle

7 Then Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians sent unto all that dwelt in Persia, and to all that dwelt westward, and to those that dwelt in Cilicia, and Damascus, and Libanus, and Antilibanus, and to all that dwelt upon the sea coast,

8 And to those among the nations that were of Carmel, and Galaad, and the higher Galilee, and the great plain of Esdrelom,

9 And to all that were in Samaria and the cities thereof, and beyond Jordan unto Jerusalem, and Betane, and Chellus, and Kades, and the river of Egypt, and Taphnes, and Ramesse, and all the land of Gessen,

10 Until ye come beyond Tanis and Memphis, and to all the inhabitants of Egypt, until ye come to the borders of Ethiopia

11 But all the inhabitants of the land made light of the commandment of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians, neither went they with him to the battle, for they were not afraid of him. yea, he was before them as one man, and they sent away his ambassadors from them without effect, and with disgrace

12 Therefore Nabuchodonosor was very angry with all this country, and swore by his throne and kingdom, that he would surely be avenged upon all those coasts of Cilicia, and Damascus, and Hyrna, and that he would slay with the sword all the inhabitants of the land of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and all Judea, and all that were in Egypt, till ye come to the borders of the two seas.

13 Then he marched in battle array with his power against king Arphaxad in the seventeenth year, and he prevailed in his battle, for he overthrew all the power of Arphaxad, and all his horsemen, and all his chariots,

14 And became lord of his cities, and came unto Ecbatane, and took the tower, and spoiled the streets thereof, and turned the beauty thereof into shame

15 He took also Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau, and smote him through with his darts, and destroyed him utterly that day.

16 So he returned afterward to Nineve, both he and all his company of sundry nations, being a very great multitude of men of war, and there he took his ease, and banqueted, both he and his army, in hundred and twenty days

CHAP. II

4 Holofernes is appointed general, 11 and charged to spare none that will not yield 15 His army and provision 23 The places which he won and wasted as he went

AND in the eighteenth year, the two and twentieth day of the first month, there was talk in the house of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians, that he should, as he said, avenge himself on all the earth.

6 — king of the Elymeans,] The Elymeans bordered on Media, and perhaps were included in its limits. The Latin copies read, "king of the Elitians." Calmet

— the sons of Chelod,] Who these were, is wholly unknown. There is considerable variation as to the proper names here mentioned in the different versions. Calmet

8 — the great plain of Esdrelom] Or Esdracelon, chap. iii. 9, otherwise Jezreel. See the note at Judg. vi. 33. The name Jezreel was moulded into Esdracela by the Greeks, which was the name of the town in Lucian's time, and the adjoining plain is still denoted by the name of the plain of Esdracelon. Mr Maundrell says that two clans of Arabs were encamped upon it when he went over it. Dr Wall

9 — all the land of Gessen,] Meaning the land of Goshen, in lower Egypt, where Joseph placed his father and brethren when they came down to live in that country, Gen. xlvii. 27. Calmet It has been thought improbable by some commentators, that Nabuchodonosor should summon the people to his assistance, from such remote countries as Egypt &c. But it is by no means difficult to believe, that so imperious a prince as Nabuchodonosor is described to be, should send his orders to these remote people, although he had no power to enforce them, which indeed sufficiently appears in the next verse. Arnold

mentions, that the Scythians particularly used this form when a more solemn oath than ordinary was to be taken. It appears from the Gospel, Matt. v. 34, xliii. 22, that the Jews sometimes swore by God's throne, which was virtually swearing by God Himself. And it is related by Tavernier, that the Persians use a similar oath to this day. Calmet, Arnold — to the borders of the two seas] Meaning probably the Mediterranean and the Red sea. It seems to have been an ancient method of describing Egypt, to call it the country bordering on the two seas. Nor has this expression been disused in later ages. It is remarkable that the title given to Ali Bey by the sheriff of Mecca in gratitude for his having been aided by Ali to that honour, was Sultan of Egypt, and the two seas. Harmer

Chap. II ver. 1 And in the eighteenth year] It is remarkable, that the dates in the Latin copies of this book precede by five years those of the Greek, from which our translation is made. The Latin copy mentions at chap. i. ver. 13 that the battle at Ragau took place in the twelfth year of Nabuchodonosor, and affirms that what is here related took place in the thirteenth, instead of the eighteenth. Thus both agree in giving to the events of the second chapter a date subsequent by one year to that of the first. Arnold The dates given in the Latin copy are probably the true dates. Dean Prideaux

— on all the earth] This expression is of course not to be taken literally, but to be considered as including those people and

2 So he called unto him all his officers, and all his nobles, and communicated with them his secret counsel, and concluded the afflicting of the whole earth out of his own mouth.

3 Then they decreed to destroy all flesh, that did not obey the commandment of his mouth.

4 And when he had ended his counsel, Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians called Holofernes the chief captain of his army, which was next unto him, and said unto him,

5 Thus saith the great king, the lord of the whole earth, Behold, thou shalt go forth from my presence, and take with thee men that trust in their own strength, of footmen an hundred and twenty thousand, and the number of horses with their riders twelve thousand.

6 And thou shalt go against all the west country, because they disobeyed my commandment.

7 And thou shalt declare unto them, that they prepare for me earth and water. for I will go forth in my wrath against them, and will cover the whole face of the earth with the feet of mine army, and I will give them for a spoil unto thee.

8 So that their slain shall fill their valleys and brooks, and the river shall be filled with their dead, till it overflow:

9 And I will lead them captives to the utmost parts of all the earth.

10 Thou therefore shalt go forth, and take beforehand for me all their coats: and if they will yield themselves unto thee, thou shalt reserve them for me till the day of their punishment.

nations only, who had refused to obey his summons. The words "whole earth" or "world" often occur in this qualified sense. See particularly Luke ii 1. Arnold.

4 — called Holofernes.] Some annotators are of opinion, that the word "Holofernes" is of Persian extract, in the same manner as Irsaphernes, Intophernes, &c, but others imagine, that this general was a native either of Pontus or Cappadocia. Polybius makes mention of one of that name, who having conquered Cappadocia, soon lost it again by endeavouring to change the ancient customs of the country, and to introduce drunkenness together with feasts and rites to Bacchus. Whereupon Casaubon conjectures that this was the same Holofernes that commanded Nebuchadnezzar's forces, and it must be owned, that his riot and debauchery as well as the rapidity of his conquests, make him not unlike him. Arnold.

7 — prepare for me earth and water.] See the margin. During King of Persia when he wished to make trial whether the Greeks would submit to him sent heralds to all their cities to demand earth and water. It appears from this account, that the custom of making this demand was not peculiar to the Persians, but was common to other nations of the East. Arnold.

11 — let not thine eye spare them.] A Hebrew expression, meaning that to compass on would be to bewitch them. Calnet.

11 But concerning them that rebel, let not thine eye spare them, but put them to the slaughter; and spoil them wheresoever thou goest.

12 For as I live, and by the power of my kingdom, whatsoever I have spoken, that will I do by mine hand.

13 And take thou heed that thou transgress none of the commandments of thy lord, but accomplish them fully, as I have commanded thee, and defer not to do them.

14 Then Holofernes went forth from the presence of his lord, and called all the governors and captains, and the officers of the army of Assur,

15 And he mustered the chosen men for the battle, as his lord had commanded him, men an hundred and twenty thousand, and twelve thousand archers on horseback,

16 And he ranged them, as a great army is ordered for the war.

17 And he took camels and asses for their carriages, a very great number, and sheep and oxen and goats without number for their provision.

18 And plenty of victual for every man of the army, and very much gold and silver out of the king's house.

19 Then he went forth and all his power to go before king Nabuchodonosor in the voyage, and to cover all the face of the earth westward with their chariots, and horsemen, and their chosen footmen.

20 A great number also of sundry countries came with them like locusts, and like the sand of the earth for the multitude was without number.

21 And they went forth of Nineve three

12 — whatsoever I have spoken, that will I do &c.] When we consult that Divine light which teaches us, that men can do nothing but as God shall please to enable them, or shall allow to be done, one cannot help being surprised at the vanity of the Assyrian prince, who flushed with the concert of his victory over Arphaxad, and the advantages hitherto gained, resolves upon the vast attempt of subduing the whole earth, as if his power was invincible, and his project, founded either on pride, ambition, or resentment could not fail of success. From the secrecy and well concerted measures of his expedition, and the number of forces ready to engage in it, he assures himself of conquest, not considering that success depends on God's good pleasure, who often delights to defeat the unjust designs and unwarrantable enterprises of such princes, who aim at establishing their own glory and greatness upon the ruin of innocent and less powerful states. The event of this history in particular shews the vanity of such presumptuous boasting in defiance of the Most High, and that even weak and inconsiderable means will have the power, by God's appointment, to stop the career, and confound the pride of the mighty. Arnold.

days' journey toward the plain of Bectileth, and pitched from Bectileth near the mountain which is at the left hand of the upper Cilicia

22 Then he took all his army, his footmen, and horsemen, and chariots, and went from thence into the hill country,

23 And destroyed Phud and Lud, and spoiled all the children of Raases, and the children of Ismael, which were toward the wilderness at the south of the land of the Chellians

24 Then he went over Euphrates, and went through Mesopotamia, and destroyed all the high cities that were upon the river Arbonai, till ye come to the sea.

25 And he took the borders of Cilicia, and killed all that resisted him, and came to the borders of Japheth, which were toward the south, over against Arabia.

26 He compassed also all the children of Madian, and burned up their tabernacles, and spoiled their sheepestes

27 Then he went down into the plain of Damascus in the time of wheat harvest, and burnt up all their fields, and destroyed their flocks and herds, also he spoiled their cities, and utterly wasted their countries, and smote all their young men with the edge of the sword.

28 Therefore the fear and dread of him fell upon all the inhabitants of the sea coasts, which were in Sidon and Tyrus, and them that dwelt in Sur and Ocina, and all that dwelt in Jemnaan; and they that dwelt in Azotus and Ascalon feared him greatly.

the chief captain of Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians had done to the nations, and after what manner he had spoiled all their temples, and brought them to nought.

2 Therefore they were exceedingly afraid of him, and were troubled for Jerusalem, and for the temple of the Lord their God.

3 For they were newly returned from the captivity, and all the people of Judea were lately gathered together and the vessels, and the altar, and the house, were sanctified after the profanation

1 Therefore they sent into all the coasts of Samaria, and the villages, and to Bethonon, and Belmen, and Jericho, and to Choba, and Esora, and to the valley of Salem

5 And possessed themselves beforehand of all the tops of the high mountains, and fortified the villages that were in them, and laid up victuals for the provision of war for their fields were of late reaped

6 Also Joacim the high priest, which was in those days in Jerusalem, wrote to them that dwelt in Bethulia, and Betomestham, which is over against Esdrælon toward the open country, near to Dothani,

7 Charging them to keep the passages of the hill country for by them there was an entrance into Judea, and it was easy to stop them that would come up, because the passage was strait, for two men at the most

8 And the children of Israel did as Joacim the high priest had commanded them, with the ancients of all the people of Israel, which dwelt at Jerusalem.

9 Then every man of Israel cried to God, with great fervency, and with great vehemency did they humble their souls

10 Both they, and their wives, and their children, and their cattle, and every stranger and hieling, and their servants bought with money, put sackcloth upon their loins.

11 Thus every man and woman, and the little children, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell before the temple, and cast ashes upon their heads, and spread out their sackcloth before the face of the Lord also they put sackcloth about the altar,

12 And cried to the God of Israel all with one consent earnestly, that he would not give their children for a prey, and their wives for a spoil, and the cities of their inheritance to destruction, and the sanctuary to profanation and reproach, and for the nations to rejoice at 13 So God heard their prayers, and looked upon their afflictions for the people fasted many days in all Judea and Jerusalem before the sanctuary of the Lord Almighty.

14 And Joacim the high priest, and all the priests that stood before the Lord, and they which ministered unto the Lord, had their loins girt with sackcloth, and offered the daily burnt offerings, with the vows and free gifts of the people,

15 And had ashes on their mitres, and

[Chap IV ver 3 For they were newly returned from the captivity.] This passage, together with that at chap. v 18, 19 has led many to conclude, that the events here related occurred subsequent to the Babylonish captivity. It should be observed however, that this passage is entirely omitted in the Latin translation of this book, and that the captivity here spoken of may be, not the great Babylonish captivity, but one which was slight in comparison, when Manassah was carried captive to Babylon at that time, what is here related of the country being desolate, the people dispersed, and the temple profaned, really happened, and upon Manassah's restoration to his kingdom, through God's blessing upon his exemplary penitence, the temple was purified, and the service of the sanctuary restored to its ancient dignity. 2 Chron xxxiii 12—14 Arnold

Then every man — cried to God &c.] We should reflect upon the behaviour of the Israelites on this occasion, who, while they used every precaution of defence against their enemies, still did not place their whole confidence in human policy and foresight but according to the direction of the high priest, had recourse to prayer, humiliation, and fasting, for the purpose of obtaining that favour of God, which alone could render them invincible. And it was this profound humiliation before God, which alone could avail to oppose and subdue the pride and haughtiness of Holofernes. Other nations had hastily submitted through the very terror of his name, but this people, providing better for their safety, humbled themselves in the sight of God, and thereby obtained the help of His mighty hand, and were enabled to triumph over their enemies. Arnold

14 — Joacim the high priest, &c. — had their loins girt with sackcloth.] The high priest was forbidden by the law to mourn for the death of his nearest kin, Lev xxi. 10, 11, but public calamities, such as afflicted the very being of the state, admitted of an exemption from the ordinary rule. The Prophet Joel, in such a time of distress, exhorts that the priests, the ministers of the altar, should gird themselves, lament and howl, and lie all night in sackcloth, Joel i 13. Arnold

<sup>5</sup> Achior telleth Holofernes what the Jews are, 8 and what their God had done for them, 21 and adviseeth not to meddle with them 22 All that heard him were offended at him

THEN was it declared to Holofernes, the chief captain of the army of Assur, that the children of Israel had prepared for war, and had shut up the passages of the hill country, and had fortified † all the tops of the high hills, and had laid impediments in the champaign countries

<sup>2</sup> Wherewith he was very angry, and called all the princes of Moab, and the captains of Ammon, and all the governors of the sea coast,

<sup>3</sup> And he said unto them, Tell me now, ye sons of Chanaan, who this people is, that dwelleth in the hill country, and what are the cities that they inhabit, and what is the multitude of their army, and wherein is their power and strength, and what king is set over them, or captain of their army, <sup>4</sup> And why have they determined not to come and meet me, more than all the inhabitants of the west.

<sup>5</sup> <sup>a</sup> Then said Achior, the captain of all the sons of Ammon, Let my lord now hear a word from the mouth of thy servant, and I will declare unto thee the truth concerning this people, which dwelleth near thee, and inhabiteth the hill countries: and there shall no lie come out of the mouth of thy servant.

them out from the face of their gods, and they fled into Mesopotamia, and sojourned there many days

<sup>9</sup> Then <sup>c</sup> their God commanded them to, <sup>d</sup> depart from the place where they sojourned, and to go into the land of Chanaan where they dwelt, and were increased with gold and silver, and with very much cattle

<sup>10</sup> But when a famine covered all the land of Chanaan, they went down into Egypt, and sojourned there, while they were nourished, and became there a great multitude, so that one could not number their nation.

<sup>15</sup> So they dwelt in the land of the Amorites, and they destroyed by their strength all them of Esebon, and passing over Jordan they possessed all the hill country

<sup>18</sup> <sup>k</sup> But when they departed from the way which he appointed them, they were destroyed in many battles very sore, <sup>l</sup> and were led captives into a land that was not their's, and the temple of their God was cast to the ground, and their cities were taken by the enemies

3 Holofernes despiseth God 7 He threateneth Achior, and sendeth him away 14 The Babylonians receive and hear him 18 They fall to prayer, and comfort Achior

AND when the tumult of men that were about the council was ceased, Holofernes the chief captain of the army of Assur said unto Achior and all the Moabites before all the company of other nations,

2 And who art thou, Achior, and the stroyed, but only profaned. See 2 Kings xxi, 2 Chron. xxxiii. But, as these words were spoken by a stranger, an Ammonite, he may have mentioned without grounds the actual destruction of the temple, as Rabshakeh does, 2 Kings xviii 22, with regard to Hezekiah's taking away the altar of the Lord. Arnald

From the expressions here used respecting the Jews by Achior, the general of the Ammonites, it appears how famous and how well known in those days was the distinguishing providence of God towards the Jewish nation, and how certainly even strangers expected mercies and judgments upon them, according to their obedience or disobedience to their God, the God of Israel, and according to those ancient promises and threats, which had ever assured them of such conduct of the Almighty towards them. Arnald

20 — if there be any error. Any sin or transgression. Arnald This speech of Achior to Holofernes was framed and grounded on the continued provocations of those times — and contained such advice as a faithful counsellor, well acquainted with the affairs of the Jews, should have given to his lord, who did not so well understand them. Bp Patrick

[Chap VI ver 2 — hirelings of Ephraim.] A contemptuous name for the Jews, as also that at ver 5, the "nation that hirelings of Ephraim, that thou hast prophesied among us as to day, and hast said, that we should not make war with the people of Israel, because their God will defend them? and who is God but Nabuchodonosor?

3 He will send his power, and will destroy them from the face of the earth, and their God shall not deliver them: but we his servants will destroy them as one man, for they are not able to sustain the bowels of our horses.

4 For with them we will tread them under foot, and their mountains shall be drunken with their blood, and their fields shall be filled with their dead bodies, and their footsteps shall not be able to stand before us, for they shall utterly perish, with King Nabuchodonosor, lord of all the earth: for he said, None of my words shall be in vain.

5 And thou, Achior, an hireling of Ammon, which hast spoken these words in the day of thine iniquity, shalt see my face no more from this day, until I take vengeance of this nation that came out of Egypt.

6 And then shall the sword of mine army, and the multitude of them that serve me, pass through thy sides, and thou shalt fall among their slain, when I return.

7 Now therefore my servants shall bring thee back into the hill country, and shall set thee in one of the cities of the passages.

8 And thou shalt not perish, till thou be destroyed with them.

9 And if thou persuade thyself in thy mind that they shall not be taken, let not thy countenance fall. I have spoken it, and none of my words shall be in vain.

came out of Egypt," intimating that they were a race of slaves. We are reminded by this speech of Holofernes, conceived in the spirit of military pride, and expressed in terms of the most impious insolence, of the words of Goliath the Philistine, defying the armies of Israel, 1 Sam. xvii, and of those of Rabshakeh "whom the king of Assyria sent to reproach the living God," 2 Kings xix 4. But the event in every instance showed, that the confidence of such profane boasters was but vain, their blasphemies drew down upon them the judgments of God, and their overthrow made it appear, that "the Lord, He is the God, the Lord, He is the God." Arnald

5 — an hireling of Ammon, which hast &c.] That is, who hast been hired by the Jews to prophesy falsely, in order to discourage my army, and hast this day betrayed thy perfidiousness and treachery. Arnald

9 — let not thy countenance fall.] The meaning here seems to be, If thou art assured of the truth of what thou sayest, do not betray alarm and let not signs of conscious guilt and confusion appear on thy countenance, if thou art a true prophet, there is no occasion for fear, but if by the event thou art detected to be a false one, thy perfidiousness must draw on thee more severe punishment. Arnald

10 Then Holofernes commanded his servants, that waited in his tent, to take Achior, and bring him to Bethulia, and deliver him into the hands of the children of Israel.

11 So his servants took him, and brought him out of the camp into the plain, and they went from the midst of the plain into the hill country, and came unto the fountains that were under Bethulia.

12 And when the men of the city saw them, they took up their weapons, and went out of the city to the top of the hill: and every man that used a sling kept them from coming up by casting of stones against them.

13 Nevertheless having gotten privily under the hill, they bound Achior, and cast him down, and left him at the foot of the hill, and returned to their lord.

14 But the Israelites descended from their city, and came unto him, and loosed him, and brought him into Bethulia, and presented him to the governors of the city:

15 Which were in those days Ozias the son of Micha, of the tribe of Simeon, and Chabris the son of Gethoniel, and Charmis the son of Melchiel.

16 And they called together all the ancients of the city, and all their youth ran together, and their women, to the assembly, and they set Achior in the midst of all their people. Then Ozias asked him of that which was done.

17 And he answered and declared unto them the words of the council of Holofernes, and all the words that he had spoken in the midst of the princes of Assur, and whatsoever Holofernes had spoken proudly against the house of Israel.

18 Then the people fell down and worshipped God, and cried unto God, saying,

19 O Lord God of heaven, behold their pride, and pity the low estate of our nation, and look upon the face of those that are sanctified unto thee this day.

20 Then they comforted Achior, and praised him greatly.

21 And Ozias took him out of the assembly unto his house, and made a feast to the elders, and they called on the God of Israel all that night for help.

CHAP VII

1 Holofernes besiegeth Bethulia, 7 and stoppeth the water from them 22 They fast, and murmur against the governors, 30 who promise to yield within few days.

THE next day Holofernes commanded all his army, and all his people which were come to take his part, that they should remove their camp against Bethulia, to take aforehand the ascents of the hill country, and to make war against the children of Israel.

2 Then their strong men removed their camps in that day, and the army of the men of war was an hundred and seventy thousand footmen, and twelve thousand horsemen, beside the baggage, and other men that were aloft among them, a very great multitude.

3 And they camped in the valley near unto Bethulia, by the fountain, and they spread themselves in breadth over Dothaim even to Belmaim, and in length from Bethulia unto Cyamon, which is over against Esdrachon.

4 Now the children of Israel, when they saw the multitude of them, were greatly troubled, and said every one to his neighbour, Now will these men lick up the face of the earth, for neither the high mountains, nor the valleys, nor the hills, are able to bear their weight.

5 Then every man took up his weapons of war, and when they had kindled fires upon their towers, they remained and watched all that night.

6 But in the second day Holofernes brought forth all his horsemen in the sight of the children of Israel which were in Bethulia.

7 And viewed the passages up to the city, and came to the fountains of their waters, and took them, and set garrisons of men of war over them, and he himself removed toward his people.

8 Then came unto him all the chief of the children of Esau, and all the governors of the people of Moab, and the captains of the sea coast, and said, 9 Let our lord now hear a word, that there be not an overthrow in thine army.

10 For this people of the children of Israel do not trust in their spears, but in the height of the mountains wherein they dwell, because it is not easy to come up to the tops of their mountains.

11 Now therefore, my lord, fight not against them in battle array, and there shall not so much as one man of thy people perish.

12 Remain in thy camp, and keep all the men of thine army, and let thy servants get into their hands the fountain of water, which issueth forth of the foot of the mountain.

13 For all the inhabitants of Bethulia have their water thence, so shall thirst kill them, and they shall give up their city, and we and our people shall go up to the tops of the mountains that are near, and will camp upon them, to watch that none go out of the city.

14 So they and their wives and their children shall be consumed with famine, and before the sword come against them, they shall be overthrown in the streets where they dwell.

15 Thus shalt thou render them an evil reward, because they rebelled, and met not thy person peaceably.

16 And these words pleased Holofernes and all his servants, and he appointed to do as they had spoken.

17 So the camp of the children of Ammon departed, and with them five thousand of the Assyrians, and they pitched in the valley, and took the waters, and the fountains of the waters of the children of Israel.

18 Then the children of Esau went up with the children of Ammon, and camped in the hill country over against Dothaim, and they sent some of them toward the south, and toward the east, over against Ekribel, which is near unto Chusi, that is upon the brook Mochmim, and the rest of the army of the Assyrians camped in the plain, and covered the face of the whole land; and their tents and carriages were pitched to a very great multitude.

19 Then the children of Israel cried unto the Lord their God, because their heart failed, for all their enemies had compassed them round about, and there was no way to escape out from among them.

20 Thus all the company of Assur remained about them, both their footmen, chariots, and horsemen, four and thirty days, so that all their vessels of water failed all the inhabitants of Bethulia.

21 And the cisterns were emptied, and they had not water to drink their fill for one day; for they gave them drink by measure.

22 Therefore their young children were out of heart, and their women and young men fainted for thirst, and fell down in the streets of the city, and by the passages of the gates, and there was no longer any strength in them.

23 Then all the people assembled to Oras, and to the chief of the city, both young men, and women, and children, and cried with a loud voice, and said before all the elders.

24 God be judge between us and you, for ye have done us great injury, in that ye have not required peace of the children of Assur.

25 For now we have no helpers, but God hath sold us into their hands, that we should be thrown down before them with thirst and great destruction.

26 Now therefore call them unto you, and deliver the whole city for a spoil to the people of Holofernes, and to all his army.

27 For it is better for us to be made a spoil unto them, than to die for thirst, for we will be his servants, that our souls may live, and not see the death of our infants before our eyes, nor our wives nor our children to die.

28 We take to witness against you the heaven and the earth, and our God and Lord of our fathers, which punisheth us according to our sins and the sins of our fathers, that he do not according as we have said this day.

29 Then there was great weeping with one consent in the midst of the assembly; and they cried unto the Lord God with a loud voice.

30 Then said Ozias to them, Brethren, he of good courage, let us yet endure five days, in the which space, the Lord our God may turn his mercy toward us; for he will not forsake us utterly.

31 And if these days pass, and there come no help unto us, I will do according to your word.

32 And he dispersed the people, every one to their own charge; and they went unto the walls and towers of their city, and sent the women and children into their houses; and they were very low brought in the city.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The state and behaviour of Judith a widow. 2 She blameth the governors for their promise, and adviseth them to trust in God. 3 They confirm their promise. 32 She promiseth to do something for them.

NOW at that time Judith heard thereof, which was the daughter of Merari, the son of Or, the son of Joseph, the son of Oziel, the son of Elia, the son of Amias, the son of Gedeon, the son of Raphaim, the son of Achish, the son of Eliu, the son of Eliab, the son of Nathanael, the son of Simeon, the son of Salomon, the son of Israel.

2 And Manasses was her husband, of her tribe and kindred, who died in the barley harvest.

30 — let us yet endure five days.] We meet with a similar instance to this in the sacred writings at 1 Sam. xi. 9, where, upon the threats of Nabash, king of the children of Ammon, the elders of Israel desire a respite of seven days to send messengers to all the coasts of Israel, and promise to surrender themselves if in that time none should come effectually to their relief. And in that instance the event answered, for "the Spirit of the Lord came upon Saul," and stirred him up to come to their assistance within the expected time, and they proved victorious. Arnald

Chap. VIII. ver. 2 — of her tribe and kindred.] That is, of the tribe of Simeon, as Judith was, chap. ix. 2. Thus Anna and Tobias were of the same tribe and kindred, Tob. iii. 15, 17, vi. 12. And Joseph and Mary were both of the house and lineage of David, and as such were espoused, Luke i. 4. Arnald

3 — stood overseeing them that bound sheaves.] It appears from 2 Kings iv. 18, that in those times persons of note used to employ themselves in their fields in overlooking their labourers. Arnald

— the heat came upon his head.] It is known from various sources, that the scorching heat of the sun in warm climates has often proved fatal in this manner.

4 — was a widow — three years and four months.] Meaning, not that this was the whole period of her widowhood, for she was to be aged, and was never married afterwards; but that she had been so long a widow when the events here to be related occurred. Arnald

5 — she made her a tent upon the top of her house.] She probably did this for the purpose of being private and secure from

3 For as he stood overseeing them that bound sheaves in the field, the heat came upon his head, and he fell on his bed, and died in the city of Bethulia; and they buried him with his fathers in the field between Dothaim and Balamo.

4 So Judith was a widow in her house three years and four months.

5 And she made her a tent upon the top of her house, and put on sackcloth upon her loins, and wore her widow's apparel.

6 And she fasted all the days of her widowhood, save the eves of the sabbaths, and the sabbaths, and the eves of the new moons, and the new moons, and the feasts, and solemn days of the house of Israel.

7 She was also of a goodly countenance, and very beautiful to behold; and her husband Manasses had left her gold, and silver, and menservants, and maidservants, and cattle, and lands; and she remained upon them.

Or could she do this

8 And there was none that gave her an ill word; for she feared God greatly.

9 Now when she heard the evil words of the people against the governor, that they fasted for lack of water; for Judith had heard all the words that Ozias had spoken unto them, and that he had sworn to deliver the city unto the Assyrians after five days;

interruption in her devotions; according to what is recorded of St. Peter, Acts. 2. Respecting the fast upon the eve of the Eastern festival, see notes at Deut. xx. 8, Judges xvi. 27; and Neh. viii. 16.

6 — she fasted all the days — save the eves &c.] This was a great instance of her pious disposition, and of her regard to the memory of her husband. This strictness and severity of life was customary among the Jewish women. See the account of Anna at Luke ii. 37, 38. As to the solemn feasts, the sabbaths, and the new moons, the Jews seem to have carefully observed these in their worst as well as in their best state, from their earliest to their latest times. But at what time the regard, which is here mentioned, as paid to the eves of the sabbaths and new moons, first began, has been much controverted. It seems clear, that the custom of observing the eves of festivals in the Christian Church was derived from the same custom in the Jewish. Arnald. Perhaps the custom of observing the eve of a festival arose from the cautious wish to keep duly the whole of the festival, and to prevent there being any remains of antecedent sorrow on that day. Grotius. Or the following reason may be assigned for the fast being dispensed with on the eve of a festival. A festival was held to begin between the two evenings, that is, between three and six o'clock in the afternoon. Now, as the fast of the Hebrew did not end before sunset, it was manifestly not possible to observe a fast on the eve of a festival, because then it could not be continued beyond three in the afternoon, and therefore could not be a proper and legitimate fast. Calmei, Arnald.

10 — the ancients of the city.] Meaning certain officers or magistrates called by this name. Arnald

11 And they came unto her, and she said unto them, Hear me now, O ye governors of the inhabitants of Bethulia: for your words that ye have spoken before the people this day are not right, touching this oath which ye made and pronounced between God and you, and have promised to deliver the city to our enemies, unless within these days the Lord turn to help you.

12 And now who are ye that have tempted God this day, and stand instead of God among the children of men?

13 And now try the Lord Almighty, but ye shall never know any thing.

14 For ye cannot find the depth of the heart of man, neither can ye perceive the things that he thinketh: then how can ye search out God, that hath made all these things, and know his mind, or comprehend his purpose? Nay, my brethren, provoke not the Lord our God to anger.

15 For if he will not help us within these five days, he hath power to defend us when he will, even every day, or to destroy us before our enemies.

16 Do not bind the counsels of the Lord our God: for God is not as man, that he may be threatened; neither is he as the son of man, that he should be wavering.

17 Therefore let us wait for salvation of him, and call upon him to help us, and he will hear our voice, if it please him.

18 For there arose none in our age, neither is there any now in these days, neither tribe, nor family, nor people, nor city, among us, which worship gods made with hands, as hath been aforetime.

19 For the which cause our fathers were given to the sword, and for a spoil, and had a great fall before our enemies.

20 But we know none other god, therefore we trust that he will not despise us, nor any of our nation.

21 For if we be taken so, all Judea shall be waste, and our sanctuary shall be spoiled; and he will requite the profanation thereof at our mouth.

22 And the slaughter of our brethren, and the captivity of the country, and the desolation of our inheritance, will be turn upon our heads among the Gentiles, whosoever we shall be in bondage, and we shall be an offence and a reproach to all them that possess us.

23 For our servitude shall not be directed to favour: but the Lord our God shall turn it to dishonour.

24 Now therefore, O brethren, let us shew an example to our brethren, because their hearts depend upon us, and the sanctuary, and the house, and the altar, rest upon us.

25 Moreover let us give thanks to the Lord our God, which trieth us, even as he did our fathers.

26 Remember what things he did to Abraham, and how he tried Isaac, and what happened to Jacob in Mesopotamia of Syria, when he kept the sheep of Laban his mother's brother.

27 For he hath not tried us in the fire, as he did them, for the examination of their hearts, neither hath he taken vengeance on us: but the Lord doth scourge them that come near unto him, to diminish them.

28 Then said Ozias to her, All that thou hast spoken hast thou spoken with a good heart, and there is none that may gainsay thy words.

29 For this is not the first day wherein thy wisdom is manifested, but from the beginning of thy days all the people have known thy understanding, because the disposition of thine heart is good.

30 But the people were very thirsty, and compelled us to do unto them as we have spoken, and to bring an oath upon ourselves, which we will not break.

31 Therefore now pray thou for us, because thou art a godly woman, and the Lord will send us rain to fill our cisterns, and we shall faint no more.

32 Then said Judith unto them, Hear me, and I will do a thing, which shall go throughout all generations to the children of our nation.

mind of the Lord is, the result must be, that you cannot pretend to do so with any certainty. Arnald

21 For if we be taken so, &c.] She insinuates, that on the preservation of the city of Bethulia depended even that of the holy city Jerusalem, and consequently of the temple and altar, and the regular performance of their religious service, that therefore it would be an instance both of weakness and of rashness to resolve to deliver up the city if not relieved within a limited period, since the whole nation and religion would be involved in the common danger. Arnald

1 — who we that have tempted God &c.] To tempt God, in Scriptural language, frequently signifies to distrust His power, truth, or providence after sufficient demonstrations and reasons given for encouragement to depend upon them. See Is vii 12, 14 or x 9, 13. And this distrust they had shewn by confining their expectations of help from God to such a limited period as five days, as if He could not afford relief if He did not do so precisely within the time fixed by them, contrary to the sentiment expressed at ver 15. Arnald

18 — now try the Lord Almighty, &c.] That is try if you can find out in this, or in any other matter of consequence, what the

1 Judith humbleth herself, 2 and prayeth God to prosper her purpose against the enemies of his sanctuary

THEN Judith fell upon her face, and put ashes upon her head, and uncovered the sackcloth wherewith she was clothed, and about the time that the incense of that evening was offered in Jerusalem in the house of the Lord, Judith cried with a loud voice, and said,

2 O Lord God of my father Simeon, to whom thou gavest a sword to take vengeance of the strangers, who loosed the girdle of a maid to defile her, and uncovered the thigh to her shame, and polluted her virginity to her reproach, for thou saidst, It shall not be so, and yet they did so

3 Wherefore thou gavest their rulers to be slain, so that they dyed their bed in blood, being deceived, and smotest the servants with their lords; and the lords upon their thrones;

Gcn 9 1

33 — with my waiting woman ] The word in the original signifies rather a companion, a lady of honour, than a servant. almel In the Greek, the same word is applied to the women that attended both Pharaoh's daughter, Exod ii. 5, and queen Esther, Esth iv. 4. Stallhouse

Chap IX ver 1 — and uncovered the sackcloth ] The Syriack version explains the meaning of this expression. 'She tore her upper garments so as to uncover the sackcloth underneath' almel

2 O Lord God of my father Simeon, to whom &c ] She alludes to the vengeance taken on the Shechemites by Simeon and Levi, or the defilement of their sister Dinah. See Gcn xxxiv, and the notes there. By the expression "to whom Thou gavest a sword," we are not to understand it to be implied that God approved the action which they committed. He gave them a sword in the same sense as He gives it to tyrants and robbers, permitting them to execute their purposes, and using them as instruments of His justice, and as means to carry into effect the ends of His moral government. Calmet

8 Throw down their strength in thy power, and bring down their force in thy wrath: for they have purposed to defile thy sanctuary, and to pollute the tabernacle where thy glorious name resteth, and to cast down with sword the horn of thy altar.

It may well be asked, How could Judith betray God to favour her in such a design, which was contrary to the laws of God, however it might be deemed (in and allowable in the opinions of those times? Certainly we cannot approve either the prayer or the action of Judith, we may commend her good intentions, and may allow that the uprightness of her design might abate much of her crime. Yet no excuse of this kind can avail to justify her. A falsehood told with so much solemnity, and carried on through her whole conversation with Holofernes, is indefensible, not in the employment of her beauty to inflame his passion, and thereby to expose her person to his attack, admit of any justification. Calmet

3 Judith doth set forth herself 10 She and her maid go forth into the camp 17 The watch take and conduct her to Holofernes

NOW after that she had ceased to cry unto the God of Israel, and had made an end of all these words,

2 She rose where she had fallen down, and called her maid, and went down into the house, in the which she abode in the sabbath days, and in her feast days,

3 And pulled off the sackcloth which she had on, and put off the garments of her widowhood, and washed her body all over with water, and anointed herself with precious ointment, and braided the hair of her head, and put on a tire upon it, and put on her garments of gladness, wherewith she was clad during the life of Manasses her husband

4 And she took sandals upon her feet, and put about her her bracelets, and her chains, and her rings, and her earrings, and all her ornaments, and decked herself bravely, to allure the eyes of all men that should see her

5 Then she gave her maid a bottle of wine, and a cruse of oil, and filled a bag with parched corn, and lumps of figs, and with fine bread, so she folded all these things together, and laid them upon her

clapped

Chap X ver 2 — went down into the house ] She had probably been praying in 'the tent upon the top of her house' mentioned at chap viii 5

3 — washed her body, — and anointed herself ] Such was the custom of the Jews, first to wash and then to anoint themselves. So Naomi says to Ruth, 'Wash and anoint thyself,' Ruth ii 3. so also David, after the death of his child, 2 Sam xii 20. The anointing was applied to the head especially on festive and other solemnities. Of this, instances occur very frequently in Scripture.

6 Thus they went forth to the gate of the city of Bethulia, and found standing there Ozias, and the ancients of the city, Chabris and Charnan.

7 And when they saw her, that her countenance was altered, and her apparel was changed, they wondered at her beauty very greatly, and said unto her,

8 The God, the God of our fathers, give thee favour, and accomplish thine enterprises to the glory of the children of Israel, and to the exaltation of Jerusalem. Then they worshipped God

9 And she said unto them, Command the gates of the city to be opened unto me, that I may go forth to accomplish the things whereof ye have spoken with me. So they commanded the young men to open unto her, as she had spoken

10 And when they had done so, Judith went out, she, and her maid with her, and the men of the city looked after her, until she was gone down the mountain, and till she had passed the valley, and could see her no more

11 Thus they went straight forth in the valley: and the first watch of the Assyrians met her,

12 And took her, and asked her, Of what people art thou? and whence comest thou? and whither goest thou? And she said, I am a woman of the Hebrews, and am fled from them: for they shall be given you to be consumed.

13 And I am coming before Holofernes the chief captain of your army, to declare words of truth, and I will shew him a way, whereby he shall go, and win all the hill country, without losing the body or life of any one of his men

14 Now when the men heard her words, and beheld her countenance, they wondered greatly at her beauty, and said unto her,

15 Thou hast saved thy life, in that thou hast hasted to come down to the presence of our lord: now therefore come to his tent, and some of us shall conduct thee, until they have delivered thee to his hands.

16 And when thou standest before him,

— with fine bread, ] The words in the original properly mean "pure bread," that is, perhaps, bread unfermented and free from leaven. She seems to have taken her provisions with her that she might not be obliged to partake of the food of the Gentiles, which the law taught her to regard as polluted and defiled. See Chap xii 2. 17 Then they chose out of them an hundred men || to accompany her and her maid; and they brought her to the tent of Holofernes.

18 Then was there a concourse through- out all the camp for her coming was noised among the tents, and they came about her, as she stood without the tent of Holofernes, till they told him of her.

19 And they wondered at her beauty, and admired the children of Israel because of her, and every one said to his neighbour, Who would despise this people, that have among them such women? surely it is not good that one man of them be left, who being let go might deceive the whole earth.

20 And they that lay near Holofernes went out, and all his servants, and they brought her into the tent.

21 Now Holofernes rested upon his bed under a canopy, which was woven with purple, and gold, and emeralds, and precious stones.

22 So they shewed him of her; and he came out before his tent with silver lamps going before him.

23 And when Judith was come before him and his servants, they all marvelled at the beauty of her countenance, and she fell down upon her face, and did reverence unto him, and his servants took her up.

CHAP. XI.

3 Holofernes asketh Judith the cause of her coming
6 She telleth him how and when he may prevail 20
He is much pleased with her wisdom and beauty

THEN said Holofernes unto her, Woman, be of good comfort, fear not in thine heart for I never hurt any that was willing to serve Nabuchodonosor, the king of all the earth.

21 — rested upon his bed under a canopy,] We observe here an instance of the effeminate manners of warriors in the East this description being more suited to the softness of an Eastern monarch, than to a soldier. Arnald

22 — came out before his tent with silver lamps &c] Their tents generally consisted of an inner apartment, and an antichamber, and by his coming out before his tent, it is probably meant that he came out into his antichamber to receive Judith. The silver lamps were carried before him, either because it was always customary to carry fire before him, as it was before the kings of Persia, or rather, because the light of the lamps was wanted, in consequence of the darkness of the inner tent. Calmet

23 — she fell down upon her face] This act of pretended reverence was an artifice to work upon his vanity, for the purpose

2 Now therefore, if thy people that dwelleth in the mountains had not set light by me, I would not have lifted up my spear against them but they have done these things to themselves.

3 But now tell me wherefore thou art fled from them, and art come unto us for thou art come for safeguard, be of good comfort, thou shalt live this night, and hereafter:

4 For none shall hurt thee, but entreat thee well, as they do the servants of king Nabuchodonosor my lord.

5 Then Judith said unto him, Receive the words of thy servant, and suffer thine handmaid to speak in thy presence, and I will declare no lie to my lord this night.

6 And if thou wilt follow the words of thine handmaid, God will bring the thing perfectly to pass by thee, and my lord shall not fail of his purposes.

7 As Nabuchodonosor king of all the earth liveth, and as his power liveth, who hath sent thee for the upholding of every living thing: for not only men shall serve him by thee, but also the beasts of the field, and the cattle, and the fowls of the air, shall live by thy power under Nabuchodonosor and all his house.

8 For we have heard of thy wisdom and thy policies, and it is reported in all the earth, that thou only art || excellent in all the kingdom, and mighty in knowledge, and wonderful in feats of war. || Or of recommending herself to his favour, and thereby drawing him into her snare. Arnald

Chap. XI ver 6 — God will bring the thing perfectly to pass] That is, God will execute what He has decreed and purposed, and will grant a complete victory. The expression seems to be equivocal. Holofernes probably understood her to speak of a victory to himself over the Israelites, while Judith meant that the victory should be obtained over him. Arnald

7 As Nabuchodonosor — liveth] His custom of swearing by the life of their kings, or of some person of high rank and dignity, was usual amongst Eastern nations. Thus Joseph swears by the life of Pharaoh, Gen. xlii 15, Abner by the life of Saul, 1 Sam. viii 55. Calmet

10 — our nation shall not be punished, — except &c] This

11 And now, that my lord be not defeated and frustrate of his purpose, even death is now fallen upon them, and their sin hath overtaken them, wherewith they will provoke their God to anger, whosoever they shall do that which is not fit to be done.

12 For their victuals fail them, and all their water is scant, and they have determined to lay hands upon their cattle, and purposed to consume all those things, that God hath forbidden them to eat by his laws.

13 And are resolved to spend the first-fruits of the corn, and the tenths of wine and oil, which they had sanctified, and reserved for the priests that serve in Jerusalem before the face of our God, the which things it is not lawful for any of the people so much as to touch with their hands.

14 For they have sent some to Jerusalem, because they also that dwell there have done the like, to bring them a licence from the senate.

15 Now when they shall bring them word, they will forthwith do it, and they shall be given thee to be destroyed the same day.

16 Wherefore I thine handmaid, knowing all this, am fled from their presence; and God hath sent me to work things with thee, whereat all the earth shall be astonished, and whosoever shall hear it.

17 For thy servant is religious, and serveth the God of heaven day and night: now therefore, my lord, I will remain with thee, and thy servant will go out by night into the valley, and I will pray unto God, and he will tell me when they have committed their sin:

18 And I will come and shew it unto thee then thou shalt go forth with all thine army, and there shall be none of them that shall resist thee.

19 And I will lead thee through the midst of Judea, until thou come before Jerusalem; and I will set thy throne in the midst thereof; and thou shalt drive them as sheep that have no shepherd, and a dog shall not so much as open his mouth at thee: for these things were told me according to my foreknowledge, and they were declared unto me, and I am sent to tell thee.

20 Then her words pleased Holofernes and all his servants, and they marvelled at her wisdom, and said,

21 There is not such a woman from one end of the earth to the other, both for beauty of face, and wisdom of words.

22 Likewise Holofernes said unto her, God hath done well to send thee before the people, that strength might be in our hands, and destruction upon them that lightly regard my lord.

23 And now thou art both beautiful in thy countenance, and witty in thy words surely: if thou do as thou hast spoken, thy God shall be my God, and thou shalt dwell in the house of king Nabuchodonosor, and shall be renowned through the whole earth.

an observation, the truth of which the Jews experienced in every stage of their state, from their first becoming a nation to their ceasing to be so, by the captivity of the twelve tribes, their obedience or disobedience respectively ruined or saved them. Arnald

11 — even death is now fallen upon them, &c. ] There is some obscurity in this and the following verses, as they stand in our translation. The drift of Judith's speech is to the following effect. The elders of Bethulia have judged it already allowable, and in case of necessity lawful to eat what at other times is forbidden by the law: for former sake indeed they have sent deputies to Jerusalem for a dispensation from the Jewish Sanhedrim, of which from their own practice in a similar case they are assured. But even now the inhabitants of Bethulia are guilty, and will suffer as such for their guilty intention. Judith's design was without doubt to move Holofernes, as is plain from chap. ix. 10, 13, and her story was framed to coincide with what Achior had before told him that if the Hebrews had sinned or should sin again, then God might easily overcome them. She now shows that the case was such as in their hearts, as would stir up the anger of their God the moment they should commit it, that the execution of it waited only the return of the messengers with the license instantly expected, that they would then be immediately given up to destruction, and even Jerusalem itself and all Judea, as the sin would hereby become general, be a prey and spoil unto him. Arnald

19 — I will lead thee through the midst of Judea, ] Her reserved meaning is that the head of Holofernes should be carried in triumph through Judea, while he understands her to signify, that he himself was to go thither in triumph. Arnald

— a dog shall not so much as &c. ] A proverbial expression taken from Exod. xl. 7. Calmet

22 — thy God shall be my God, ] Probably Holofernes was not in earnest in saying this, but only intended to flatter Judith, perceiving that she was a woman of piety, and attached to her religion, and he hoped in this manner to gain her affections. Calmet. Chap. XII. ver. 2 — I will not eat thereof lest there be an offence ] That is, lest I draw upon me the indignation of God.

shall be made for me of the things that I have brought.

3 Then Holofernes said unto her, If thy provision should fail, how should we give thee the like? for there be none with us of thy nation.

4 Then said Judith unto him, As thy soul liveth, my lord, thine handmaid shall not spend those things that I have, before the Lord work by mine hand the things that he hath determined.

5 Then the servants of Holofernes brought her into the tent, and she slept till midnight, and she arose when it was toward the morning watch,

6 And sent to Holofernes, saying, Let my lord now command that thine handmaid may go forth unto prayer.

7 Then Holofernes commanded his guard that they should not stay her: thus she abode in the camp three days, and went out in the night into the valley of Bethulia, and washed herself in a fountain of water by the camp.

8 And when she came out, she besought the Lord God of Israel to direct her way to the raising up of the children of her people.

9 So she came in clean, and remained in the tent, until she did eat her meat at evening.

10 And in the fourth day Holofernes made a feast to his own servants only, and called none of the officers to the banquet.

11 Then said he to Bagoas the eunuch, who had charge over all that he had, Go now, and persuade this Hebrew woman which is with thee, that she come unto us, and eat and drink with us.

12 For, lo, it will be a shame for our person, if we shall let such a woman go, not having had her company, for if we draw her not unto us, she will laugh us to scorn.

13 Then went Bagoas from the presence of Holofernes, and came to her, and he said, Let not this fair damsel fear to come to my lord, and to be honoured in his presence, and drink wine, and be merry with us, and be made this day, as one of the daughters of the Assyrians, which serve in the house of Nabuchodonosor.

14 Then said Judith unto him, Who am I now, that I should gainsay my lord? surely whatsoever pleaseth him I will do speedily, and it shall be my joy unto the day of my death.

15 So she arose, and decked herself with her apparel and all her woman's attire, and her maid went and laid soft skins on the ground for her over against Holofernes, which she had received of Bagoas for her daily use, that she might sit and eat upon them.

16 Now when Judith came in and sat down, Holofernes his heart was ravished with her, and his mind was moved, and he desired greatly her company, for he waited a time to deceive her, from the day that he had seen her.

lest I incur guilt and blame by slighting the institutions of my forefathers. The Divine law had not forbidden them the use of every thing belonging to Gentiles, but she seems to have used the caution here related on the present occasion, either in consequence of prohibitions imposed by the traditions of the Jews, or from some peculiar scrupulousness of mind, or from the fear, of giving offence to others, or from the circumstance of idolatrous invocations and prayers having been offered up over the meats which were served up to Holofernes. Daniel is similarly scrupulous, Dan. i. 8, 12, and also Tobit, chap. i. 11. See also 2 Macc. vi. 21—23. Calmet

6 — may go forth unto prayer] It was customary to retire apart for prayer, in order that it might be performed with greater earnestness and without interruption, but the true reason of Judith's proceeding on this occasion seems to have been founded on artifice. By this pretext she induced Holofernes to think, that what was contrived for his ruin was most advantageous to his designs, and under the appearance of praying for victory to him in his undertaking, she opened a way to triumph more securely over the great enemy of her country. Arnold

7 — washed herself in a fountain of water] Purification, or washing the hands and body before prayers and sacrifices offered to the Deity, was a very ancient religious ceremony, as well among the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, as among the Jews. The Jews even to this day wash their hands before they enter into the synagogue to pray, and it appears from Mark vi. 2—4, that, when they returned from the market, or other public place, they performed this ceremony with great exactness, to purify themselves from any defilement which they might have contracted among strangers. With the same view, it is probable, Judith, remaining all day in the camp of the Assyrians, took the opportunity of the night to wash herself, that she might be purified from any defilement which she might have contracted by mixing amongst the heathens. Arnold

9 — until she did eat her meat at evening] Thus she fasted during the whole day, for the purpose of giving effect to her prayers, by conciliating the favour of God. Calmet

10 — and called none of the officers] In order that he might be more at liberty, and might have no persons to witness his intemperate conduct. Calmet

11 — Bagoas the eunuch] The name of "Bagoas" was very common, as applied generally to an eunuch. Pliny mentions, that at Babylon eunuchs were generally called by this name. Quintus Curtius calls Alexander's eunuch by the same. Josephus mentions, that Herod had one called by the same title, and indeed it often signified generally a chief officer in the prince's court. Calmet, Arnold

15 — laid soft skins on the ground] It was the custom to spread skins or carpets on the ground, to prevent injury from the damp, when they sat or lay down. The modern Arabs do in this manner on carpets in their tents. Sir J. Chardin says, that it is now common in Persia to lay first on the ground a covering of felt or skin, and then, over that, to place a rich carpet. Harmer

— that she might sit] The Greek word properly means, that she might recline or lie down. Arnold See note at Tobit ii. 1 17 Then said Holofernes unto her, Drink now, and be merry with us.

18 So Judith said, I will drink now, my lord, because my life is magnified in me this day more than all the days since I was born.

19 Then she took and ate and drank before him what her maid had prepared.

20 And Holofernes took great delight in her, and drank much more wine than he had drunk at any time in one day since he was born.

CHAP XIII.

Judith is left alone with Holofernes in his tent. 4 She prayeth God to give her strength. 8 She cut off his head while he slept, 10 and returned with it to Bethulia. 17 They saw it, and commend her.

NOW when the evening was come, his servants made haste to depart, and Bagoas shut his tent without, and dismissed the waiters from the presence of his lord; and they went to their beds: for they were all weary, because the feast had been long.

2 And Judith was left alone in the tent, and Holofernes lying along upon his bed: for he was filled with wine.

3 Now Judith had commanded her maid to stand without her bedchamber, and to wait for her coming forth, as she did daily: for she said she would go forth to her prayers, and she spake to Bagoas according to the same purpose.

4 So all went forth, and none was left in the bedchamber, neither little nor great. Then Judith, standing by his bed, said in her heart, O Lord God of all power, look at this present upon the works of mine hands for the exaltation of Jerusalem.

5 For now is the time to help thine inheritance, and to execute mine enterprises to the destruction of the enemies which are risen against us.

6 Then she came to the pillar of the bed, which was at Holofernes' head, and took down his fauchion from thence,

7 And approached to his bed, and took hold of the hair of his head, and said, Strengthen me, O Lord God of Israel, this day.

8 And she smote twice upon his neck with all her might, and she took away his head from him.

9 And tumbled his body down from the bed, and pulled down the canopy from the pillars, and anon after she went forth, and gave Holofernes his head to her maid.

10 And she put it in her bag of meat, so they twain went together according to their custom unto prayer: and when they passed the camp, they compassed the valley, and went up the mountain of Bethulia, and came to the gates thereof.

11 Then said Judith afar off to the watchmen at the gate, Open, open now the gate: God, even our God, is with us, to shew his power yet in Jerusalem, and his forces against the enemy, as he hath even done this day.

12 Now when the men of her city heard her voice, they made haste to go down to the gate of their city, and they called the elders of the city.

13 And then they ran all together, both small and great, for it was strange unto them that she was come: so they opened the gate, and received them, and made a fire for a light, and stood round about them.

14 Then she said to them with a loud voice, Praise, praise God, praise God, I say, for he hath not taken away his mercy from the house of Israel, but hath destroyed our enemies by mine hands this night.

15 So she took the head out of the bag, and shewed it, and said unto them, Behold the head of Holofernes, the chief captain of the army of Assur, and behold the canopy, wherein he did lie in his drunkenness; and the Lord hath smitten him by the hand of a woman.

16 As the Lord liveth, who hath kept me in my way that I went, my countenance hath deceived him to his destruction, and yet hath he not committed sin with me, to defile and shame me.

17 Then all the people were wonderfully astonished, and bowed themselves, and worshipped God, and said with one accord, Blessed be thou, O our God, which hast

Chap XIII ver 3 — and to wait for her coming forth,] It seems that her attendant was waiting at her tent door, in order to attend her out of the camp to prayers, as on former nights: for it does not appear from the whole history that Judith had communicated her design to her woman, but rather that she had taken on herself the whole risk. Calmet

18 These slaves have dealt most shamefully; one woman of the Hebrews hath brought shame upon the house of king Nabuchodonosor: for, behold, Holofernes hath upon the ground without a head.

19 When the captains of the Assyrian army heard these words, they rent their coats, and their minds were wonderfully troubled, and there was a cry and a very great noise throughout the camp.

CHAP. XV.

1 The Assyrians are chased and slain. 8 The high priest cometh to see Judith. 11 The stuff of Holofernes is given to Judith. 13 The women crown her with a garland.

AND when they that were in the tents heard, they were astonished at the thing that was done.

2 And fear and trembling fell upon them, so that there was no man that durst abide in the sight of his neighbour, but coming out all together, they fled into every way of the plain, and of the hill country.

3 They also that had camped in the mountains round about Bethulia fled away. Then the children of Israel, every one that was a warrior among them, rushed out upon them.

4 Then sent Ozias to Betomasthem, and to Bebai, and Chobai, and Cola, and to all the coasts of Israel, such as should tell the things that were done, and that all should rush forth upon their enemies to destroy them.

5 Now when the children of Israel heard it, they all fell upon them with one consent, and slew them unto Chobai: likewise also they that came from Jerusalem, and from all the hill country, (for men had told them what things were done in the camp of their enemies,) and they that were in Galaad, and in Galilee, chased them with a great slaughter, until they were past Damascus and the borders thereof.

6 And the residue, that dwelt at Bethulia, fell upon the camp of Assur, and spoiled them, and were greatly enriched.

7 And the children of Israel that returned from the slaughter had that which remained: and the villages and the cities, that were round about in the plain, were made desolate: for the multitude was very great.

Then Joseph the high priest, and the residents of Jerusalem, heard that dwelt in Jerusalem, and that the good thing that God had showed to Israel, and to the church, and to the people.

And when they came unto her, they bowed her with respect, and said unto her, Thou art the exaltation of Jerusalem, thou art the glory of Israel, thou art the great rejoicing of the church.

Then had done all these things by the hand of God, and had done much good to Israel, and had pleased herewith: and she was called the Lady for evermore. And all the people said, So be it.

And the people spoiled the camp the space of thirty days: and they gave unto Judith Holofernes his tent, and all his plate, and beds, and vessels, and all his stuff: and she took it, and laid it on her mule, and made ready her mule, and laid thereon.

12 Then all the women of Israel ran together to see her, and blessed her, and made a dance among them for her: and she took branches in her hand, and gave also to the women that were with her.

13 And they put a garland of olive upon her, and her maid that was with her, and she went before all the people in the dance, leading all the women: and all the men of Israel followed in their armour with garlands, and with songs in their mouths.

13. — a garland of olive] As the olive was a tree in veneration among the ancients, its boughs were used on certain festival occasions. It was deemed by them an emblem of peace, and as such, it was now very pertinently applied to distinguish and adorn her who was on this occasion the happy procurer of it to the Israelites. Arnald.

3 For God wrought the battles: for among the camps in the midst of the people he hath delivered me out of the hands of them that persecuted me.

4 And as soon as the mountains from the north, he came with ten thousand of his army, the multitude thereof stopped the torrents, and their rivers have overflowed the hills.

5 He brought down his sword upon my borders, and left nothing men with the sword, and dash the sucking children against the ground, and make mine infants as a prey, and my young as a spoil.

6 But the Almighty Lord hath disappointed them in the hand of a woman.

7 For as soon as he did not fail by the young men, nor the sons of the Titans, nor the giants set upon him: but his daughter of Menan weakened him with the beauty of her countenance.

8 And she put off the garments of her widowhood, and the ornament of those that were sorrowful, and adorned her face with gold, and bound her hair in a crown, and put on a garment of deceive him.

9 And he ravished his eyes, and became his mind prisoner, and the sword passed through his neck.

10 The Persians quaked at her boldness, and the Medes were dismayed at her hardness.

11 Then they afflicted shouted for joy, and my weak ones cried aloud, but they were astonished: then lifted up their voices, but they were overthrown.

12 The sons of the Titans have pierced them through, as wounded men as fugitive children, they perished by the battle of the Lord.

13 I will sing unto the Lord a new song: O Lord, thou art great and glorious, wonderful in strength, and invincible.

14 Let all creatures serve thee, for thou spakest, and they were made, thou didst send forth thy spirit, and it created them, and there is none that can resist thy voice.

15 For the mountains shall be moved from their foundations with the waters, the rocks shall melt as wax at thy presence, yet thou art merciful to them that fear thee.

16 For all sacrifice is too little for a sweet savour unto thee, and all the fat is not sufficient for thy burnt offering: but he that feareth the Lord is great at all times.

17 Woe to the nations that rise up against my kindred: the Lord Almighty will take vengeance of them in the day of judgment, in putting fire and worms in their flesh, and they shall feel them, and weep ever.

18 Now as soon as they entered into Jerusalem, they worshipped the Lord; and as soon as the people were purified, they offered their burnt offerings, and their free offerings, and their gifts.

19 Judith also dedicated all the stuff of Holofernes, which the people had given her, and gave the canopy, which she had taken out of his bedchamber, for a gift unto the Lord.

20 So the people continued feasting in Jerusalem before the sanctuary for the space of three months, and Judith remained with them.

21 After this time every one returned to his own inheritance, and Judith went to Bethulia, and remained in her own possession, and was in her time honourable in all the country.

22 And many desired her, but none knew her all the days of her life, after that

Chap XVI ver 4 — [came out of the mountains from the north,] though Assyria, and the other provinces beyond the Euphrates, be not directly north of Judea, yet the Prophets usually describe our armies as coming from the north, the reason of which seems to have been, that they entered Judea by the defiles of the mountains of Libanus and Hermon, which lay north of Judea.

4 — [the multitude wherof stopped the torrents,] The Hebrews press torrents and valleys by the same word, so that the sense may be, that the Assyrian armies covered all the valleys.

7 — [neither did the sons of the Titans] The Titans were famous giants in the mythological fables of antiquity. The person who translated this book of Judith into Greek was probably familiar with this name, as a common name of giants, and used it this passage accordingly.

9 [Her sandals ravished his eyes,] The beauty of the feet was discovered by the shape and size of the ancient sandals, which were made extremely rich, and adorned with jewels. See Isa. iii. 18, Cant vii. 1. Arnold.

10 [The Persians — the Medes] It hence appears, that there were some of both these nations in the army of Holofernes. Perhaps these had become subject to Nabuchodonosor after his victory over king Arphaxad, or Phraortes, chap. i. 13. Culmet.

17 — [in putting fire and worms in their flesh,] The general meaning is, they shall be a lasting monument of God's justice, like Sodom, set forth for an example of the Divine vengeance, and of that eternal fire which is prepared for the ungodly. See Mark ix. 44, Lucius vii. 17. We meet with an expression of the like import at Is. lvi. 24. Arnold.

19 — [dedicated all the stuff — unto the Lord.] As an acknowledgment that the victory proceeded from Him. We have frequent instances in Scripture of the spoils of the enemy being dedicated to God. See 1 Sam. xxi. 9. 2 Sam. vii. 12, &c. Arnold.

Manasses her husband was dead, and was gathered to his people.

25 — none that made — Israel — afraid &c.] It seems probable that we should not understand this in a literal sense, but consider it as a general description of the effects of Judith's heroism, for there was no period of uninterrupted peace in the Jewish history of so long continuance as that here described. Dr Gray. The history represents Judith as a woman of great courage, but it nowhere intimates that she was without faults. The manner of her preparation for her enterprise, and the success which attended it, may make us presume that its design was originally from God; but that the continued train of falsehood and dissimulation, with which it was carried on, must needs persuade us that the means of conducting it were left to the woman, who has given on this occasion a remarkable specimen of sagacity and artifice. ## BOOK OF ESTHER,

WHICH ARE FOUND NEITHER IN THE HEBREW, NOR IN THE CHALDEE

INTRODUCTION.

THE chapters entitled "The rest of the chapters of the Book of Esther" are not extant in the Hebrew nor in the Chaldee language, but only in the Greek and Latin copies. It is at least very doubtful whether they ever existed in the Hebrew language; it is certain, that they never were admitted into the canon of the Hebrew Scriptures. They appear to have been additions subsequently made in various parts of the Greek copies of the canonical Book of Esther, by some person who was desirous of giving embellishment to the history, and who inserted in the body of the work such traditional circumstances as his inquiry could furnish. It is manifest, on considering the canonical book, that it is a complete and perfect work, and these Apocryphal parts, which are introduced into the Greek copies, will appear to those who take the pains to examine them, to be superfluous and cumbrous additions. They are written in a different style from that of the authentick chapters, and in part consist of particulars contained in them. The first chapter, which in the Greek copies is annexed to the tenth of the canonical chapters, consists of an interpretation of a pretended dream of Mordecai, which contains some fanciful conceits, and was furnished probably by the same person that fabricated the dream in the following chapter. The intimation contained in the first verse of the second or eleventh chapter, was possibly written by some Jew of Alexandria, it was not in the ancient Jewish version. The dream which is related in this eleventh chapter and which in the Greek is placed before the canonical part, is evidently the reverse of some inventive writer, and was afterwards prefixed to the work. It does not form a proper introduction to the book; besides, in the fifth verse of the second canonical chapter, Mordecai is introduced as a person not before mentioned, his genealogy and other particulars respecting him are described in that and the succeeding verse, with a minuteness which must have been quite redundant, if the second verse of the eleventh chapter had been authentick. The account of the devices, and of the discovery of the two eunuchs who conspired against the life of Artaxerxes, is a repetition, with some alterations, of what is related in the second chapter of the authentick part, Esther is 21—23, and could not properly be prefixed (as it is in the Greek) to the canonical book, which opens the history as if nothing had been previously communicated. The sixth or fifteenth chapter contains a description of Esther's appearance before the king, and reception by him, which is borrowed from the fifth chapter of the genuine history, and embellished with some extraneous particulars. So likewise the prayers of Mordecai and Esther, contained in the thirteenth and fourteenth chapters, as well as the letters in the thirteenth chapter, and that in the sixteenth, which concludes the Apocryphal book, are all obviously fictitious inventions designed by some rhetorical writer to decorate and complete the history. Our Church judiciously adheres to the chapters which are contained in the Hebrew which are indisputably authentick, and furnish an entire and valuable history. The adventitious parts are however suffered to continue in our Bibles as profitable in a subordinate degree. They deserve not to be incorporated with the genuine history, though they illustrate the characters, and dilate on the virtues displayed for our instruction by the sacred writer. Dr Gray.

Part of the Tenth Chapter after the Greek.

5 Mardocheus remembereth and expoundeth his dream of the river and the two dragons

THEN Mardocheus said, God hath done these things

5 For I remember a dream which I saw concerning these matters, and nothing thereof hath failed

6 A little fountain became a river, and there was light, and the sun, and much water this river is Esther, whom the king married, and made queen

7 And the two dragons are I and Aman
8 And the nations were those that were assembled to destroy the name of the Jews

9 And my nation is this Israel, which cried to God, and were saved for the Lord hath saved his people, and the Lord hath delivered us from all those evils, and God hath wrought signs and great wonders, which have not been done among the Gentiles

10 Therefore hath he made two lots,

Chap X ver 4 — Mardocheus] This is the Greek mode of expressing the name of Mordecai, as it occurs in the genuine book of Esther

7 — Aman] Or Haman, as the name occurs in the genuine book of Esther one for the people of God, and another for all the Gentiles

11 And these two lots came at the hour, and time, and day of judgment, before God among all nations

12 So God remembered his people, and justified his inheritance

13 Therefore those days shall be unto them in the month Adar, the fourteenth and fifteenth day of the same month, with an assembly, and joy, and with gladness before God, according to the generations for ever among his people

CHAP. XI

2 The stock and quality of Mardocheus 6 He dreameth of two dragons coming forth to fight, 10 and of a little fountain, which became a great water

IN the fourth year of the reign of Ptolemy and Cleopatra, Dositheus, who said he was a priest and Levite, and Ptolemy his son, brought this epistle of Phurim, which they said was the same, and that Lysimachus the son of Ptolemy, that was in Jerusalem, had interpreted it.

2 In the second year of the reign of Artaxerxes the great, in the first day of the month Nison, Mardocheus the son of Jarius, the son of Semei, the son of Cusi, of the tribe of Benjamin, had a dream;

3 Who was a Jew, and dwelt in the city of Susa, a great man, being a servitor in the king's court

4 He was also one of the captives, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon carried from Jerusalem with Jehonias king of Judea, and this was his dream

5 Behold a noise of a tumult, with thunder, and earthquakes, and uproar in the land

6 And, behold, two great dragons came forth ready to fight, and their cry was great

7 And at their cry all nations were prepared to battle, that they might fight against the righteous people

8 And, lo, a day of darkness and obscurity, tribulation and anguish, affliction and great sorrow upon earth

9 And the whole righteous nation was troubled, fearing their own evils, and were ready to perish

10 Then they cried unto God, and upon their cry, as it were from a little fountain, was made a great flood, even much water.

11 The light and the sun rose up, and the lowly were exalted, and devoured the glorious.

12 Now when Mardocheus, who had seen this dream, and which God had determined to do, was awake, he bore this dream in mind, and until night by all means was desirous to know it

CHAP. XII

2 The conspiracy of the two eunuchs is discovered by Mardocheus 6 for which he is entertained by the king, and rewarded

AND Mardocheus took his rest in the court with Gabatha and Tharra, the two eunuchs of the king, and keepers of the palace.

2 And he heard their devices, and searched out their purposes, and learned that they were about to lay hands upon Artaxerxes the king; and so he certified the king of them.

3 Then the king examined the two eunuchs, and after that they had confessed it, they were strangled

4 And the king made a record of these things, and Mardocheus also wrote thereof.

5 So the king commanded Mardocheus to serve in the court, and for this he rewarded him.

6 Howbeit Aman the son of Amadathus the Agagite, who was in great honour with the king, sought to molest Mardocheus and his people because of the eunuchs of the king

cap 6

THE copy of the letters was this: The great king Artaxerxes writeth these things to the princes and governors that are under him from India unto Ethiopia, in an hundred and seven and twenty provinces.

2 After that I became lord over many nations, and had dominion over the whole world, not lifted up with presumption of my authority, but carrying myself always with equity and mildness, I purposed to settle my subjects continually in a quiet life, and making my kingdom peaceable, and open for passage to the utmost coasts, to renew peace, which is desired of all men

|| Or, mild.

3 Now when I asked my counsellors how this might be brought to pass, Aman, that excelled in wisdom among us, and was approved for his constant good will and stedfast fidelity, and had the honour of the second place in the kingdom,

4 Decided unto us, that in all nations throughout the world there was scattered a certain malicious people, that had laws contrary to all nations, and continually despised the commandments of kings, so as the uniting of our kingdoms, honourably intended by us, cannot go forward.

to settled

5 Seeing then we understand that this people alone is continually in opposition unto all men, differing in the strange manner of their laws, and evil affected to our state, working all the mischief they can, that our kingdom may not be firmly established

6 Therefore have we commanded, that all they that are signified in writing unto you by Aman, who is ordained over the affairs, and is next unto us, shall all, with their wives and children, be utterly destroyed by the sword of their enemies, without all mercy and pity, the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar of this present year

second from us

7 That they, who of old and now also are malicious, may in one day with violence go into the grave, and so ever hereafter cause our affairs to be well settled, and without trouble

8 Then Mardocheus thought upon all the works of the Lord, and made his prayer unto him,

9 Saying, O Lord, Lord, the King Almighty for the whole world is in thy power, and if thou hast appointed to save Israel, there is no man that can gainsay thee.

10 For thou hast made heaven and earth, and all the wondrous things under the heaven

11 Thou art Lord of all things, and there is no man that can resist thee, which art the Lord.

12 Thou knowest all things, and thou knowest, Lord, that it was neither in contempt nor pride, nor for any desire of glory, that I did not bow down to proud Aman

13 For I could have been content with good will for the salvation of Israel to kiss the soles of his feet.

14 But I did this, that I might not prefer the glory of man above the glory of God: neither will I worship any but thee, O God, neither will I do it in pride

15 And now, O Lord God and King, spare thy people for their eyes are upon us to bring us to nought; yea, they desire to destroy the inheritance, that hath been thine from the beginning.

16 Despise not the portion, which thou hast delivered out of Egypt for thine own self.

17 Hear my prayer, and be merciful unto thine inheritance: turn our sorrow into joy, that we may live, O Lord, and praise thy name and destroy not the mouths of them that praise thee, O Lord

shut or stop not

18 All Israel in like manner cried most earnestly unto the Lord, because their death was before their eyes.

CHAP. XIV.

The prayer of queen Esther for herself and her people

QUEEN Esther also, being in fear of death, resorted unto the Lord

2 And laid away her glorious apparel, and put on the garments of anguish and mourning and instead of precious ointments, she covered her head with ashes and dung, and she humbled her body greatly, and all the places of her joy she filled with her torn hair.

* Chap XIII ver 6 — the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar] The thirteenth day is mentioned in Esth iii 12 — viii 12, ix 1. We must either suppose an error to have been made in this Apocryphal book, or else both the thirteenth and the fourteenth to have been fixed upon for the days of the slaughter Calmet

Chap XIV ver 2 — all the places of her joy] In the Latin copies, 'all the places in which she was wont to delight' Calmet

3 And she prayed unto the Lord God of Israel, saying, O my Lord, thou only art our King help me, desolate woman, which have no helper but thee.

4 For my danger is in mine hand.

5 From my youth up I have heard in the tribe of my family, that thou, O Lord, tookest Israel from among all people, and our fathers from all their predecessors, for a perpetual inheritance, and thou hast performed whatsoever thou didst promise them

6 And now we have sinned before thee therefore hast thou given us into the hands of our enemies,

7 Because we worshipped their gods O Lord, thou art righteous

8 Nevertheless it satisfieth them not, that we are in bitter captivity but they have stricken hands with their idols,

9 That they will abolish the thing that thou with thy mouth hast ordained, and destroy thine inheritance, and stop the mouth of them that praise thee, and quench the glory of thy house, and of thine altar,

10 And open the mouths of the heathen to set forth the praises of the idols, and to magnify a fleshly king for ever

11 O Lord, give not thy sceptre unto them that be nothing, and let them not laugh at our fall, but turn their device upon themselves, and make him an example, that hath begun this against us.

12 Remember, O Lord, make thyself known in time of our affliction, and give me boldness, O King of the nations, and Lord of all power

13 Give me eloquent speech in my mouth before the lion turn his heart to hate him that fighteth against us, that there may be an end of him, and of all that are like-minded to him

14 But deliver us with thine hand, and help me that am desolate, and which have no other help but thee

15 Thou knowest all things, O Lord, thou knowest that I hate the glory of the unrighteous, and abhor the bed of the un-circumcised, and of all the heathen

16 Thou knowest my necessity for I abhor the sign of my high estate, which is upon mine head in the days wherein I show myself, and that I abhor it as a menstruous rag, and that I wear it not when I am private by myself.

17 And that thine handmaid hath not eaten at Aman's table, and that I have not greatly esteemed the king's feast, nor drunk the wine of the drunk offerings

18 Neither had thine handmaid any joy upon the day that I was brought hither to this present, but in thee, O Lord God of Abraham.

19 O thou mighty God above all, hear the voice of the forlorn, and deliver us out of the hands of the mischievous, and deliver me out of my fear.

CHAPTER XV.

8 Father cometh into the king's presence. 9 He looketh angrily, and she smiteth. 10 The king doth take her up, and comfort her

AND upon the third day, when she had ended her prayer, she laid away her mourning garments, and put on her glorious apparel

2 And being gloriously adorned, after she had called upon God, who is the beholder and saviour of all things, she took two maids with her

3 And upon the one she leaned, as carrying herself daintily;

4 And the other followed, bearing up her train

5 And she was ruddy through the perfection of her beauty, and her countenance was cheerful and very amiable but her heart was in anguish for fear.

6 Then having passed through all the doors, she stood before the king, who sat upon his royal throne, and was clothed with all his robes of majesty, all glittering with gold and precious stones, and he was very dreadful

7 Then lifting up his countenance that shone with majesty, he looked very fiercely upon her and the queen fell down, and was pale, and fainted, and bowed herself upon the head of the maid that went before her

CHAP. XVI.

1 The letter of Artaxerxes to wherein he telleth Aman, 17 and revoketh the decree procured by Aman to destroy the Jews 22 and commandeth the day of their deliverance to be kept holy

THE great king Artaxerxes unto the princes and governors of an hundred and seven and twenty provinces from India unto Ethiopia, and unto all our faithful subjects, greeting

2 Many, the more often they are honoured with the great bounty of their gracious princes, the more proud they are waxen,

3 And endeavour to hurt not our subjects only, but not being able to bear abundance, do take in hand to practise also against those that do them good

4 And take not only thankfulness away from among men, but also lifted up with the glorious words of lewd persons, that were never good, they think to escape the justice of God, that seeth all things, and hateth evil

5 Oftentimes also fair speech of those that are put in trust to manage their friends' affairs, hath caused many that are in authority to be putakers of innocent blood, and hath entwined them in remediless calamities

6 Beginning with the falsehood and deceit of their lewd disposition the innocency and goodness of princes

7 Now ye may see this as we have declared, not so much by ancient histories, ye may, if ye search what hath been wickedly done of late through the pestilent behaviour of them that are unworthily placed in authority

8 And we must take care for the time to come, that our kingdom may be quiet and peaceable for all men,

9 Both by changing our purposes, and always judging things that are evident with more equal proceeding

10 For Aman, a Macedonian, the son of Amadatha, being indeed a stranger from the Persian blood, and far distant from our goodness, and as a stranger received of us,

11 Had so far forth obtained the favour that we shew toward every nation, as that he was called our father, and was continually honoured of all men, is the next person unto the king

12 But he, not bearing his great dignity, went about to deprive us of our kingdom and life

13 Having by manifold and cunning deceits sought of us the destruction, as well of Mandocheus, who saved our life, and continually procured our good, as also of blameless Esther, partaker of our kingdom, with their whole nation

14 For by these means he thought, finding us destitute of friends, to have translated the kingdom of the Persians to the Macedonians

15 But we find that the Jews, whom this wicked wretch hath delivered to utter destruction, are no evildoers, but live by most just laws

[Chap. XV ver 9 — I am thy brother] An expression of kindness and affection

13 — I saw thee — as an angel of God] Meaning that the request of his countenance appeared to her like that of an angel We find similar expressions at 1 Sam xxix 9 2 Sam xiv 17 1 Chron xii 17

[Chap. XVI ver 4 — with the glorious words] With the proud boastful words

10 — Aman a Macedonian] At 1 Thim i and in the Apocryphal book chap xvi 6 he is called Hama the Agagite to express that in the old of Macedonians in the 10th we find ought to read Amalekite which corresponds with the term Agagite Or perhaps the term Macedonian may be here used generally for a stranger or foreigner since the Apocryphal book of Esther may probably have been written at a time when the Jews were filled with the name and fame of the Macedonian nation

Certainly the expression in ver 11 of Aman's desire of transferring the kingdom of the Persians to the Macedonians is adapted to the circumstances and circumstances of a later period of history than the time of Esther it seems to refer to the period when the Persians and Macedonians were at war

16 And that they be children of the most high and most mighty living God, who hath ordered the kingdom both unto us and to our progenitors in the most excellent manner

17 Wherefore ye shall do well not to put in execution the letters sent unto you by Amán the son of Amadatha

18 For he, that was the worker of these things, is hanged at the gates of Susa with all his family. God, who ruleth all things, speedily rendering vengeance to him according to his deserts

19 Therefore ye shall publish the copy of this letter in all places, that the Jews may freely live after their own laws.

20 And ye shall aid them, that even the same day, being the thirteenth day of the twelfth month Adar, they may be avenged on them, who in the time of their affliction shall set upon them

21 For Almighty God hath turned to joy unto them the day, wherein the chosen people should have perished

22 Ye shall therefore among your solemn feasts keep it an high day with all feasting.

23 That both now and hereafter there may be safety to us, and the well affected Persians, but to those which do conspire against us a memorial of destruction

24 Therefore every city and country whatsoever, which shall not do according to these things, shall be destroyed without mercy with fire and sword, and shall be made not only unpassable for men, but also most hateful to wild beasts and fowls for ever.

— not only unpassable for men but &c ] Expressions similar to this frequently occur in the Prophets to denote a total destruction, a desolation without hope of reestablishment, Jer ix 10 xii 4, xxiii 43, Ezek xiv 13 xxv 13, &c Calmel

THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON.

INTRODUCTION

THE works of Solomon in general were emphatically styled the Books of Wisdom, and were so cited by the Father, and in the ecclesiastical language the Book of Wisdom comprehends not only all the authentick books of Solomon, but also Ecclesiasticus, and that which is called 'the Book of Wisdom, or according to the Greek "the Wisdom of Solomon." The author of the book assumes the title, and speaks in the character, of that monarch; but though the book may perhaps contain some sentiments selected from his work, and others ascribed to him by tradition, it cannot be received as an inspired book, and it was certainly composed long after the time of Solomon.

The copy, which has the highest pretensions to be considered as the original, is in Greek prose. But in whatever language the book was written, it has always been esteemed as a treasure of wisdom. It was composed in imitation of the style of Solomon, though perhaps designed not to pass for his work, but to communicate such instructions as might be consistent with this assumed character. The antiquity and high importance of the book appear to have excited great reverence in the ancient church, but the Fathers in general, however they might be dazzled by particular passages, or might consider them as fragments of inspired writings, represent the book as inferior to the canonical books, they esteem it as a work of admirable tendency, and is of a scriptural character, but not a divinely derived from the suggestions of the Holy Spirit.

The book was probably written by an Hellenistical Jew, but, whether before or after Christ, has been disputed. Grotius is of opinion that it was originally written in Hebrew by a Jew, who lived at some time intermediate between Ezra and Simon the Just, and that it was translated by a Christian with some freedom and with additions of evangelical doctrine. But the style, as St. Jerome has observed, indicates rather the artificial texture of Grecian eloquence, than the terseness and compressive simplicity of the Hebrew language. The book is also replete with allusions to Greek mythology, and with imitations of Grecian writers, with whose works, and especially with those of Plato, the author appears to have been intimately acquainted. Upon the whole, there is reason to believe that the work was written previously to the birth of Christ. It is probable that, since it professes to be the production of Solomon, it was published under the Jewish dispensation, as indeed by the generality of writers it was thought to be. And the supposed resemblances between passages in this book and others in the New Testament, may be thought on examination to be either imitations of similar passages in the sacred books of the Old Testament, or such casual coincidences of sentiments or expressions, as may be found between all works treating of the same subject.

Though this work be not derived from that infallible Spirit, of which the stamp and character are to be found only in the sacred books, it was evidently the production of a pious and enlightened mind, of one, who by application to revealed wisdom had acquired some portion of its excellence, and learned to imitate its language. And except in some few passages, where we are tempted to suspect a taint of false philosophy chap. viii. 20, or some fictitious additions to the accounts of sacred history chap. xvi. 17—19, xvii. 1—6, there is nothing in the book inconsistent with the accounts, or unfavourable to the designs, of revelation. It offers much sublime admonition to the princes and leaders of mankind. It paints in very eloquent description the folly and consequences of idolatry, and overthrows many pernicious errors, and delivers just information concerning a future life and judgment. The six first chapters, which form as it were a preface to the book, are a kind of paraphrase of the nine first chapters of the book of Proverbs, in the seventh and eighth chapters the author proposes himself as an example under the name of Solomon. The ninth chapter is a paraphrase of the prayer which Solomon made to the Lord at the beginning of his reign, and from the tenth chapter to the end is a continuation of the same prayer dilated, which, though extended to a considerable length by the intermixture of nice disquisitions and extraneous discourse, is still apparently imperfect. The style of the book is various, although sometimes turgid, it is not seldom elegant and sublime, it abounds in epithets and poetical imagery. The author often imitates the sententious periods of Solomon, but with less success, says Bishop Lowth, than the author of the succeeding book. Dr. Gray

CHAP. I

To whom God sheweth himself 4 and wisdom herself 6 An evil speaker cannot be hid 12 He procureth our own destruction 13 for God created not death

1 Kings 1. LOVE righteousness, ye that be judges of the earth think of the Lord with a good (heart,) and in simplicity of heart seek him

2 For he will be found of them that tempt him not, and sheweth himself unto them such as do not distrust him

3 For froward thoughts separate from him Chrom.

Chap. I ver. 1 — in simplicity of heart] With sincerity and singleness of heart, as Coverdale renders it, in opposition to double-mindedness, which the Scripture so frequently condemns. 1. and

2 — that tempt him not] Those are here said to tempt God, who do not trust in Him. Grotius. Or rather tempting God may be understood most agreeably with the context of a cry in times of hypocrisy and disguise. Arnold

3 For froward thoughts &c] The end of the whole verse seems to be the effect. Guileful thoughts set us at a distance from God and His truth. He is too great and powerful a Being to be deceived with art or craft, and when men presume, by craft, to wade Him they are sure to suffer for their folly. Arnold

God and his power, when it is tried, reproveth the unwise

1 For into a malicious soul wisdom shall not enter, nor dwell in the body that is subject unto sin

5 For the holy spirit of discipline will flee deceit, and remove from thoughts that are without understanding, and will not abide when unrighteousness cometh in

6 For wisdom is a loving spirit, and will not acquit a blasphemer of his words: for God is witness of his reins, and a true beholder of his heart, and a hearer of his tongue

7 For the Spirit of the Lord filleth the world: and that which containeth all things hath knowledge of the voice

8 Therefore he that speaketh unrighteous things cannot be hid: neither shall vengeance, when it punisheth, pass by him

Or 9 For inquisition shall be made into the counsels of the ungodly: and the sound of his words shall come unto the Lord for the manifestation of his wicked deeds.

10 For the ear of jealousy heareth all things: and the noise of murmurings is not hid

Or 11 Therefore beware of murmuring, which is unprofitable, and refrain your tongue from backbiting: for there is no word so secret, that shall go for nought: and the mouth that believeth slayeth the soul

Or 12 Seek not death in the error of your life: and pull not upon yourselves destruction with the works of your hands

13 For God made not death: neither hath he pleasure in the destruction of the living

14 For he created all things, that they might have their being: and the generations of the world were healthful, and there is no poison of destruction in them: nor the kingdom of death upon the earth

15 (For righteousness is immortal)

16 But ungodly men with their work and words called it to them: for when they thought to have it their friend, they consumed to nought, and made a covenant with it, because they are worthy to take part with it

CHAP II

1 The wicked think this life short, and of no other after this: 6 therefore they will take their pleasure in this, 10 and conspire against the just: 21 What then is which doth blind them

FOR the ungodly said, reasoning with themselves, but not with right, <sup>1</sup> Our life is short and tedious, <sup>2</sup> and in the death of a man there is no remedy: neither was there any man known to have returned from the grave

2 For we are born at all adventure: and we shall be hereafter as though we had never been: for the breath in our nostrils is as smoke, and a little spark in the moving of our heart

3 Which being extinguished, our body shall be turned into ashes, and our spirit shall vanish as the soft air,

4 And our name shall be forgotten in time, and no man shall have our works in remembrance, and our life shall pass away as the trace of a cloud, and shall be dis-

5 — the holy spirit of discipline ] An Hebraism for the Spirit which instructs and informs. Badnell

6 For wisdom is a loving spirit ] That is, is benevolent to mankind, and therefore will not suffer a blasphemer to escape with impunity, for that would be an injury to mankind in general. Clarus

7 — hath knowledge of the voice ] Namely, of the voice of all men: and is acquainted with all things that can be uttered by the tongue. Clarus. See Ps cxxxix 1

10 For the ear of jealousy heareth all things ] That is, God overheareth every thing: especially complaints against the dispensations of His providence cannot be kept secret from Him who is jealous of His own honour. Arnald

11 — which is unprofitable ] That is, very mischievous and hurtful. Compare Prov xx 23 Rom 1 28. Arnald

12 Seek not death in the error of your life ] Do not covet to die, and so bring death upon yourself. Clarus

13 For God made not death &c ] Man in his state of innocence had the pleasing prospect of immortality: and if he had continued upright in obedience would have been crowned with it. Arnald

14 For he created all things that they might have their being ] And not that they might perish. He created all things originally perfect and good. Clarus

— and the generations of the world were healthful ] The world at the beginning was so created that there was no evil in it. For God saw every thing that He had made: and behold it was very good. Badnell

— and there is no poison of destruction in them ] As the author is speaking of the original state of the creation the sense would be better if we were to read: there was no poison: namely, when God created them. Arnald, Calmet

16 — called it to them ] Namely, death. What follows about the wicked making a covenant with death, is an allusion to Isaiah, chap xxxiii 14, 15. The words as they now stand are intricate and seem to have suffered a transposition. The following alternation would make the construction clear. Ungodly men with their words and works called it to them: and looking upon it as their friend they made a covenant with it: and consumed away because they deserved to share in it. Arnald

Chap II ver 1 — Our life is short and tedious ] Rather short and painful: as the original signifies. Compare Gen xliii 20 Job vii 1. Clarus

2 For we are born at all adventure ] That is, by mere fortune and chance: without any providence and design of God. Badnell who here is very natural and adapted to the character of the speaker: namely, of the rich and ungodly. Arnald

10 Let us oppress the poor righteous man, let us not spare the widow, nor reverence the ancient gray hairs of the aged 12 Therefore let us lie in wait for the righteous, because he is not for our turn, and he is clean contrary to our doings he upbraideth us with our offending the law, and objecteth to our infamy the transgressings of our education.

13 He professeth to have the knowledge of God and he calleth himself the child of the Lord

14 He was made to reprove our thoughts

15 He is grievous unto us even to be hold for his life is not like other men's, his ways are of another fashion

16 We are esteemed of him as || counterfeits he abstaineth from our ways as from filthiness he pronounceth the end of the just to be blessed, and maketh his boast that God is his father

17 Let us see if his words be true and let us prove what shall happen in the end of him

18 For if the just man be the son of God, he will help him, and deliver him from the hand of his enemies

19 Let us examine him with despitel-ness and torture, that we may know his meekness, and prove his patience

20 Let us condemn him with a shameful death for by his own saying he shall be respected

21 Such things they did imagine, and were deceived for their own wickedness hath blinded them

22 As for the mysteries of God, they knew them not neither hoped they for the wages of righteousness, nor discerned a reward for blameless souls

23 For God created man to be immortal, and made him to be an image of his own eternity.

24 Nevertheless through envy of the devil came death into the world and they that do hold of his side do find it — for it is fast sealed ] A metaphor taken from the practice of sealing things for the purpose of greater security. Thus Daniel sealed the stone upon the mouth of the lions den, Dan. 6:17. In the same manner death is here said to be sealed, so that there can be no return to life. Badnell

— speedily ] I eagerly bestowing our whole care and desire upon the enjoyment. Badnell See the margin

— like as in youth ] Let us live when we are old, as we lived while we were young. Grotius

8 Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds ] At the feasts of the saints, not only the guests but the waiters and even the drinking bowls, were crowned with flower, and the rooms were strewn with them. Arnald

11 Let our strength be the law of justice ] So that we may esteem just whatever we are able to do, and may inquire the law of justice not by the equity of the case but by our own power. Clarus

14 He was made to reprove our thoughts ] Rather He is a reprover of our schemes and design. Arnald

16 — as counterfeits ] As adulterated coin that is, spurious children aliens from the communion of the children of God. Badnell See the margin

18 For if the just man be the son of God he will help him &c ] The expressions from ver. 16 to 21 very much resemble those of the Psalmist Ps. xxii. 8. Compare likewise Matt. xxvii. 13 where the insulting language used by the Jews to our Saviour on the cross much resembles the expressions here. Some of the Fathers of the Church understood the passage as a prophecy of Christ's passion but without regarding it as a direct prophecy we may apply it by way of accommodation to our Saviour who in Scripture is called "the Just One," by way of eminence and in a very particular and appropriate manner calls God "His Father." Arnald

20 — for by his own saying he shall be respected ] Rather, "for his trial shall be according to his own words" alluding to ver. 16. Arnald It shall appear, whether he be patient and blessed at the last as he boasteth. Castellio

21 Such things they did imagine ] That is Thus did they reason, with reference to ver. 1, where the same word is used in the Greek. Arnald

— their own wickedness hath blinded them ] Not unlike what St. Paul says of the wicked 2 Cor. iv. 4. It is very observable that a course of sin and a state of dulness are reciprocal terms in Scripture. Arnald

24 — they that do hold of his side do find it ] They who having forsaken God follow the devil by experience find death to be the consequence. Badnell It appears from the whole tenour of these chapters that the death which wicked men covenant with, and at last take part with is all along to be understood of death or misery eternal. And if such as hold of the devil's side that imitate and copy after him shall have part in this second death. Rev. xxi. 8. Let the libertine and free thinker who are equally the subject of this chapter tremble and tremble. Arnald

CHAP. III

BUT <sup>a</sup> the souls of the righteous are in the hand of God, and there shall no torment touch them.

nurture, he is miserable, and their hope is vain, their labours unfruitful, and their works unprofitable.

BETTER it is to have no children, and to have virtue for the memorial thereof is immortal, because it is known with God, and with men.

Chap III ver 5 — having been a little chastised.] A little in comparison with the magnitude of the rewards which await them. See Rom viii 18, 2 Cor iv 17. Badnall — worthy for himself.] Not absolutely so, but according to the bountiful and gracious judgment of God. See Acts xiii 46; Rev iii 1, xvi 6. Crotius

7 — and run to and fro like sparks among the stubble.] And run then course like sparks catching among the stubble. Cabanis

8 They shall judge the nations.] They shall exercise authority as judges.

11 — Wherefore blessed is the barren that is undefiled &c.] This is to be understood of the barren wife that is chaste and free from adultery, whose great commendation in Scripture is the bed undefiled. Heb xiii 4. No reflection is here intended against marriage, nor my preference given to a continual celibacy; the comparison is between married persons only, namely, a barren wife, and a fruitful adulteress. Arnald

— she shall have fruit in the visitation of souls.] She shall have a reward better than offspring, in the day of judgment. Crotius

14 And blessed is the eunuch &c.] See Is lxvi 5, and the note there.

— the special gift of faith.] Rather a gift or reward for his faith or fidelity. Crotius, Arnald. A special chosen gift, that is, no trivial and ordinary one but such follows, namely, "in inheritance in the temple of the Lord." Badnall

16 — they shall not come to their perfection.] God often denies offspring or grants in unhappy one to adulterers. Cabanis. According to the marginal reading, the sense is the same. Deut xxiii 2. Arnald

19 For horrible is the end of the unrighteous generation.] Versed in this and the following chapter, of the sad prospect miserable fate of the children of adulterers, is to be understood spoken not absolutely, but of such as being abandoned and banished themselves, follow the vicious courses of their parents. And indeed there is often an hereditary taint in wicked and banished families and some particular sins run in it with blood, the seeds of future wickedness. Hence holy Job speaks of such wicked parents, says in very strong and significant terms that they lay or treasure up iniquity for their children, c. xxi 19. Cabanis, Arnald

2 When it is present, men take example at it, and when it is gone, they desire it it weareth a crown, and triumpheth for ever, having gotten the victory, striving for undefiled rewards

3 But the multiplying brood of the ungodly shall not thrive, nor take deep rooting from bastard slips, nor lay any fast foundation

4 For though they flourish in branches for a time, yet standing not fast, they shall be shaken with the wind, and through the force of winds they shall be rooted out

5 The imperfect branches shall be broken off, their fruit unprofitable, not ripe to eat, yet meet for nothing

6 For children begotten of unlawful beds are witnesses of wickedness against their parents in their trial

7 But though the righteous be prevented with death, yet shall he be in rest

8 For honourable age is not that which standeth in length of time, nor that is measured by number of years

9 But wisdom is the gray hair unto men, and in unspotted life is old age

10 He pleased God, and was beloved of him so that living among sinners he was translated

11 Yea, speedily was he taken away, lest that wickedness should alter his understanding, or deceit beguile his soul

12 For the bewitching of natigliness doth obscure things that are honest, and the wandering of concupiscence doth undermine the simple mind

13 He, being made perfect in a short time, fulfilled a long time

14 For his soul pleased the Lord there fore hastened he to take him away from among the wicked

15 This the people saw, and understood it not, neither laid they up this in their minds, That his grace and mercy is with his saints, and that he hath respect unto his chosen

16 Thus the righteous that is dead shall condemn the ungodly which are living, and youth that is soon perfected the many years and old age of the unrighteous

17 For they shall see the end of the wise, and shall not understand what God in his counsel hath decreed of him, and to what end the Lord hath set him in safety

18 They shall see him, and despise him, but God shall laugh them to scorn and they shall hereafter be a vile curse, and a reproach among the dead for evermore

19 For he shall rend them, and cast them down headlong, that they shall be speechless, and he shall shake them from the foundation, and they shall be utterly laid waste, and be in sorrow, and their memorial shall perish

20 And when they cast up the accounts of their sins, they shall come with fear and their own iniquities shall convince them to their face

CHAP. V.

1 The wicked shall wonder at the godly and confess their error, 5 and the vanity of their live 15 God will reward the just, 17 and war against the wicked

THEN shall the righteous man stand in great boldness before the face of such as have afflicted him, and made no account of his labours.

2 When they see it, they shall be troubled with terrible fear, and shall be amazed at the strangeness of his salvation, so far beyond all that they looked for

3 And they repenting and growing for anguish of spirit shall say within themselves, This was he, whom we had sometimes in derision, and a proverb of reproach

4 We fools accounted his life madness, and his end to be without honour

5 How is he numbered among the chil-

[chap IV ver 7 — though the righteous be prevented with death] Though he be surprised, quickly carried off by death — shall he be in rest] His death should not be considered as an evil, but God will convey him to a place of rest

10 He pleased God, &c] This passage is undoubtedly to be understood of Enoch whom, being the first example of eminent sanctity God was pleased to translate as He had condemned the first instance of transgression, to shew His great detestation of sin

13 He being made perfect &c] Measuring his life not by the number of his years but by the perfection of his goodness by his consummate virtue and extraordinary sanctity, in the corrupt age in which he lived he may be allowed, to all useful purposes of living, to have fulfilled in honourable age

16 Thus the righteous — shall condemn the ungodly] By leaving without excuse the wicked that outlive him, and grow old in their wickedness

Chap V ver 2 When they see it they shall be troubled with terrible fear] The wicked shall be confounded at the sight of him whom they so much abused and shall behold with amazement the sudden and wonderful turn of Providence in favour of the righteous beyond what they expected or thought of and from the happiness conferred on the righteous, shall anticipate their own misery To give the more lively impression of the author represents them both standing together before the judgment seat of God

dien of God, and his lot is among the ants<sup>1</sup>

6 Therefore have we eried from the way of truth, and the light of righteousness hath not shined unto us, and the sun of righteousness rose not upon us

7 We || wearied ourselves in the way of wickedness and destruction yea, we have gone through deserts, where there lay no way but is for the way of the Lord, we have nor known it

8 What hath pride profited us? or what good hath riches with our vaunting brought us?

1 Chron
11 Cup 9 All those things are<sup>b</sup> passed away like a shadow, and as a post that hasted by,

10 And is a ship that passeth over the waves of the water, which when it is gone by, the trace thereof cannot be found, neither the pathway of the keel in the waves;

11 Or as when a bird || hath flown through the air, there is no token of her way to be found, but the light air being beaten with the stroke of her wings, and parted with the violent noise and motion of them, is passed through, and therein afterwards no sign where she went is to be found,

12 Or like as when an arrow is shot at a mark, it parteth the air, which immediately cometh together again, so that a man cannot know where it went through

13 Even so we in like manner, as soon as we were born, began to draw to our end, and had no sign of virtue to shew, but were consumed in our own wickedness

14 For the hope of the ungodly is like dust that is blown away with the wind, like a thin froth that is driven away with the storm, like as the || smoke which is dispersed here and there with a tempest, and passeth away as the remembrance of a guest that turneth but a day

15 But the righteous live for evermore, their reward also is with the Lord, and the care of them is with the most High

16 Therefore shall they receive a glo-

9 10 11, 12] We meet with several of these comparisons with respect to the shortness of his life and its enjoyments in Job 14 9, 10 and among the memorable sayings of Apsal Prov xxx 13 The way of an eagle in the air and the way of a ship in the midst of the sea are noticed as so obscure and uncertain as to leave no trace behind them The images are very natural and placed in different lights to be more affecting they seem compassionately designed to warn others lest they also come into that place of merit should 17 He shall take to him his jealousy &c 1 He has finished his discourse concerning the righteous the author returns to describe the punishments which God shall inflict upon the wicked in the

from the Lord's hand for with his right hand shall he cover them, and with his arm shall he protect them

17 He shall take to him his jealousy for complete armour, and make the creature his weapon for the revenge of his enemies

18 He shall put on righteousness as a breastplate, and true judgment instead of an helmet

19 He shall take holiness for an invincible shield

20 His severe wrath shall he sharpen for a sword, and the world shall fight with him against the unwise

21 Then shall the right among thunder bolts go abroad, and from the clouds, from a well drawn bow, shall they fly to the mark

22 And hailstones full of wrath shall be cast as out of a stone bow, and the water of the sea shall rage against them, and the floods shall cruelly drown them

23 Yea, a mighty wind shall stand up against them, and like a storm shall blow them away thus iniquity shall lay waste the whole earth, and ill dealing shall overthrow the thrones of the mighty

CHAP VI

1 Kings must give ear 5 They have then power from God, 5 who will not spare them 12 Wisdom is soon found 21 Princes must seek for it 24 for a wise prince is the stay of his people

HEAR therefore, O ye kings, and understand, learn, ye that be judges of the ends of the earth

2 Give ear, ye that rule the people, and glory in the multitude of nations

3 For power is given you of the Lord, R 1 and sovereignty from the Highest, who shall try your works, and search out your counsels

4 Because, being ministers of his kingdom ye have not judged aright, nor kept the law, nor walked after the counsel of God,

universal judgment these punishments are described by figures taken from earthly things as being more level to our understandings. God of us

20 — the world shall fight with him against the unwise] Th same in effect with that sentence in the 17th verse He shall make the creature that is the creature His weapon for th revenge of His enemy It is observed in the book of Job that all the works of nature are prepared by God to be His instrument either for judgment or for mercy chap xxxvii 12 13

Horribly and speedily shall he come upon you for a sharp judgment shall be to them that be in high places

6 For mercy will soon pardon the meanest but mighty men shall be mightily tormented

7 For he which is Lord over all shall fear no man's person, neither shall he stand in awe of any man's greatness for he hath made the small and great, and earth for all like

8 But a sore trial shall come upon the mighty

9 Unto you therefore, O kings, do I speak, that ye may learn wisdom, and not fall away

10 For they that keep holiness holily shall be judged holy and they that have learned such things shall find what to answer

11 Wherefore set your affection upon my words, desire them, and ye shall be instructed

12 Wisdom is glorious, and never fadeth away yet she is easily seen of them that love her, and found of such as seek her

13 She preventeth them that desire her, in making herself first known unto them

14 Whoso seeketh her early shall have no great travail for he shall find her sitting at his doors

15 To think therefore upon her is perfection of wisdom and whoso watcheth for her shall quickly be without care

16 For she goeth about seeking such as are worthy of her, sheweth herself favourably unto them in the ways, and meeteth them in every thought

17 For the very true beginning of her is the desire of discipline, and the care of discipline is love,

18 And love is the keeping of her laws, and the giving heed unto her laws is the issuance of incorruption,

19 And incorruption maketh us new unto God

20 Therefore the desire of wisdom bringeth to a kingdom

21 If your delight be then in thrones and sceptres, O ye king of the people, honour wisdom, that ye may reign for ever more

22 As for wisdom, what she is, and how she came up, I will tell you, and will not hide mysteries from you but will call her out from the beginning of her nativity, and bring the knowledge of her into light, and will not pass over the truth

23 Neither will I go with consuming envy, for such a man shall have no fellowship with wisdom

24 But the multitude of the wise is the welfare of the world and a wise king is the upholding of the people

25 Receive therefore instruction through my words, and it shall do you good

CHAP VII

1 All men have their beginning and end alike 6 He preferred wisdom before all things else 8 God gave him all the knowledge which he had 12 The praise of wisdom

I MYSELF also am a mortal man, like to all, and the offspring of him that was first made of the earth,

2 And in my mother's womb was fashioned to be flesh in the time of ten months, being compacted in blood, of the seed of man, and the pleasure that came with sleep

3 And when I was born, I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, which is of like nature, and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do

4 I was nursed in swaddling clothes, and that with cares

5 For there is no king that had any other beginning of birth

6 For all men have one entrance into life, and the like going out

7 Wherefore I prayed, and understood sire of discipline or instruction which proceed from the good opinion that a man entertains of it and the love that he bears to it And this love is the cause of his perseverance and willing obedience and obedience will produce the reward of happiness which consists in incorruption that is in a state of immortality, and crown of glory that fadeth not away 1 Pet v 1 End

22 — I will tell you } Namely, in the two following chapters

Chap VII ver 1 I myself also } Solomon is here personated, speaking of himself Di Isham

6 — and the like going out } The meaning is plain that all men born and all must die not that all depart by the same means or in the same manner, as our version seems to intimate I will

Chap VI ver 5 — for a sharp judgment shall be to them that be in high places } The meaning is that if king and princes pervert the design of their institution and violate the rule of justice they will be punished in a greater degree in proportion to their superior station, and to the importance of their trust End

6 — mighty men shall be mightily tormented } For to whom much has been given of him shall be required the more End

13 She preventeth them } She anticipates them

17 For the very true beginning of her &c } The several degrees are here set down, by which a person well disposed toward wisdom may rise to the perfection of it The first step is the desire

ing was given me I called upon God, and the spirit of wisdom came to me

8 I preferred her before sceptres and thrones, and esteemed riches nothing in comparison of her

9 Neither compared I unto her any precious stone, because all gold in respect of her is as a little sand, and silver shall be counted as clay before her

10 I loved her above health and beauty, and chose to have her instead of light for the light that cometh from her never goeth out

11 All good things together came to me with her, and innumerable riches in her hands

12 And I rejoiced in them all, because wisdom goeth before them and I knew not that she was the mother of them

13 I learned diligently, and do communicate her liberally I do not hide her riches

14 For she is a treasure unto men that never faileth which they that use become the friends of God, being commended for the gifts that come from learning

15 God hath granted me to speak as I would, and to conceive as is meet for the things that are given me because it is he that leadeth unto wisdom, and directeth the wise

16 For in his hand are both we and our words, all wisdom also, and knowledge of workmanship

17 For he hath given me certain knowledge of the things that are, namely, to know how the world was made, and the operation of the elements

18 The beginning, ending, and midst of the times the alterations of the turning of the sun, and the change of seasons

12 — because wisdom goeth before them ] That is, wisdom not only brings them with her, but conducts them like their leader and counsellor. Arnald

13 — I knew not that she was the mother of them ] I had neither expected nor hoped for such great blessings from her. Crotius

14 — to speak as I would ] With such facility and propriety of language as my intellect expresses the thought and conception of the mind. Isidore

15 — to know how the world was made &c ] Divine wisdom created by God and continued in sacred history teaches us a few wonderful great truths, that the world was the work of God, prove that it was made in time, that He made it out of nothing, that it is preserved and continued in being, and that His infinite wisdom is displayed in the beauty, symmetry, and contrivance of the world, that His omnipotence in the act of creation. Arnald It is also designed by this eulogium to set forth the superiority of Divine wisdom, and to advise it above all other things, or philosophy, or the heathen. Calvert

18 — The beginning, ending, and the times ] That is, the

19 The circuits of years, and the positions of stars

20 The natures of living creatures, and the furies of wild beasts the violence of winds, and the reasonings of men the diversities of plants, and the virtues of roots

21 And all such things as are either secret or manifest, them I know

22 For wisdom, which is the worker of all things, taught me for in her is an understanding spirit, holy, <sup>† or</sup> one only, manifold, subtil, lively, clear, undefiled, plain, <sup>† or</sup> not subject to hurt, loving the thing that is good, quick, which cannot be letted, ready to do good.

23 Kind to man, steadfast, sure, free from care, having all power, overseeing all things, and going through all understanding, pure, and most subtil, spirits

24 For wisdom is more moving than any motion she passeth and goeth through all things by reason of her pureness

25 For she is the breath of the power of God, and a pure influence flowing from the glory of the Almighty therefore can no defiled thing fall into her

26 For she is the brightness of the everlasting light, the unspotted mirror of the power of God, and the image of his goodness

27 And being but one, she can do all things and remaining in herself, she maketh all things new and in all ages entering into holy souls, she maketh them friends of God, and prophets

28 For God loveth none but him that dwelleth with wisdom

29 For she is more beautiful than the sun, and above all the order of stars being compared with the light, she is found before it the elements, their beginning, continuance, and ending, and the successive and regular returns. Crotius, Arnald

22 — For wisdom which is the worker of all things taught me ] What is said in this book concerning wisdom is to be understood sometimes of uncreated wisdom, and sometimes of wisdom created and inspired into man. Calvert This distinction is very necessary for the right understanding of the present chapter. Isidore

23 — which cannot be letted ] Which cannot be impeded in operation. Calvert

24 — going through all understanding — spirits ] That is, intellectual spirit. Wisdom is a Divine attribute penetrates not only into things corporeal but into things spiritual and intellectual. Arnald

25 — is more moving than any motion ] Is swifter than any thing is. D. Isidore

26 — therefore can no defiled thing fall into her ] From the excellent purity of her nature she is totally exempt from all manner of earthly pollution. Crotius

30 For after this cometh night. but vice shall not prevail against wisdom

CHAP VIII

He is in love with wisdom 4 for he that hath it hath every good thing. 21 It cannot be had out from God

WISDOM reacheth from one end to another mightily and sweetly doth she order all things

2 I loved her, and sought her out from my youth, I desired to make her my spouse, and I was a lover of her beauty

3 In that she is conversant with God, she magnifieth her nobility: yea, the Lord of all things himself loved her

4 For she is privy to the mysteries of the knowledge of God and a lover of his works

5 It riches be a possession to be desired in this life, what is richer than wisdom, that worketh all things?

6 And if prudence work, who of all that are is a more cunning workman than she?

7 And if a man love righteousness, her labours are virtues: for she teacheth temperance and prudence, justice and fortitude which are such things, as men can have nothing more profitable in their life

8 If a man desire much experience, she knoweth things of old, and conjectureth aright what is to come: she knoweth the subtilties of speeches, and can expound dark sentences: she foreseeth signs and wonders, and the events of seasons and times

9 Therefore I purposed to take her to me to live with me, knowing that she would be a counsellor of good things, and a comfort in cares and grief

10 For her sake I shall have estimation among the multitude, and honour with the elders, though I be young

11 I shall be found of a quick conceit in judgment, and shall be admired in the sight of great men

12 When I hold my tongue, they shall bide my leisure, and when I speak, they shall give good ear unto me: if I talk much, they shall lay their hands upon their mouth.

13 Moreover by the merit of her I shall obtain immortality, and leave behind me an everlasting memorial to them that come after me

14 I shall set the people in order, and the nations shall be subject unto me

15 Horrible tyrants shall be afraid, when they do but hear of me, I shall be found good among the multitude, and valiant in war

16 After I am come into mine house, I will repose myself with her: for her conversation hath no bitterness, and to live with her hath no sorrow, but mirth and joy

17 Now when I considered these things in myself, and pondered them in my heart, how that to be allied unto wisdom is immortality,

18 And great pleasure it is to have her friendship, and in the works of her hands are infinite riches, and in the exercise of conference with her, prudence, and in talking with her, a good report, I went about seeking how to take her to me

19 For I was a witty child, and had a good spirit

20 Yea rather, being good, I came into a body undefiled

21 Nevertheless, when I perceived that I could not otherwise obtain her, except God gave her me, and that was a point of wisdom also to know whose gift she was, I prayed unto the Lord, and besought him, and with my whole heart I said,

CHAP IX.

1 A prayer unto God for his wisdom, 6 without which the best man is nothing worth, 12 neither can he tell how to please God

O GOD of my fathers, and Lord of mercy, who hast made all things with thy word,

And ordained man through thy wisdom, that he should have dominion over the creatures which thou hast made,

30 For after this cometh night &c.] Night continually succeeds the day, and therefore the light is constantly interrupted by darkness. But Divine wisdom admits of no such privation or inequality: it has no mixture of light and darkness of good and evil but is always the same yesterday and to day and for ever. Heb xiii 8 Arnold

Chap VIII ver 1 — reacheth from one end to another] That is, governing the whole course of actions. Dr Isham

8 — foreseeth signs and wonders] This seems to refer to astronomy and the heavenly appearances. Dr Isham

10 — I was a witty child] That is, naturally well disposed towards wisdom, and of a good capacity for receiving her instructions. Arnold

20 Yea rather, being good I came into a body undefiled] The sentence seems agreeable to the opinion that souls of men pre-existed and descended into unstable bodies, which was a notion of the Pythagoreans and Platonists and of the Jewish doctors and rabbinical writers. Arnold It appears from John ix 2 that many of the Hebrews had imbibed it. Colerus

3 And order the world according to equity and righteousness, and execute judgment with an upright heart

Give me wisdom, that sitteth by thy throne, and reject me not from among thy children.

For I am thy servant and son of thine handmaid, and a feeble person, and of a short time, and too young for the understanding of judgment and laws.

6 For though a man be never so perfect among the children of men, yet if thy wisdom be not with him, he shall be nothing regarded.

Thou hast chosen me to be a <sup>d</sup> king of thy people, and a judge of thy sons and daughters.

5 Thou hast commanded me to build a temple upon thy holy mount, and an altar in the city wherein thou dwellest, a resemblance of the holy tabernacle, which thou hast prepared from the beginning

9) And wisdom was with thee which knoweth thy works, and was present when thou madest the world, and knew what was acceptable in thy sight, and right in thy commandments.

10 O send her out of thy holy heavens, and from the throne of thy glory, that being present she may labour with me, that I may know what is pleasing unto thee

11 For she knoweth and understandeth all things, and she shall lead me soberly in my domgs, and preserve me || in her power

12 So shall my works be acceptable, and then shall I judge thy people righteously, and be worthy to sit in my father's seat

13 For what man is he that can know the counsel of God? or who can think what the will of the Lord is?

16 For the thoughts of mortal men are || miserable, and our devices are but uncertain.

15 For the corruptible body presseth down the soul, and the earthly tabernacle weigheth down the mind that museth upon many things<sup>1</sup>.

16 And hardly do we guess aught of things that are upon earth, and with labour do we find the things that are before us: but the things that are in heaven—who hath searched out?

17 And thy counsel who hath known, except thou give wisdom, and send thy Holy Spirit from above ?

18 For so the ways of them which lived on the earth were reformed, and men were taught the things that are pleasing unto thee, and were saved through wisdom.

the waste land that smoketh is a testimony, and plants bearing fruit that never come to ripeness and a standing plain of salt is a avengement of an unbelieving soul.

8 For regarding not wisdom, they gat not only this hurt, that they knew not the things which were good, but also left behind them to the world a memorial of their foolishness so that in the things wherein they offended they could not so much as be hid.

9 But wisdom delivered from pain those that attended upon her.

10 When the righteous fled from his brother's wrath she guided him in right paths, shewed him the kingdom of God, and gave him knowledge of holy things, made him rich in his travels, and multiplied the fruit of his labours.

11 In the covetousness of such as oppressed him she stood by him, and made him rich.

12 She defended him from his enemies, and kept him safe from those that lay in wait, and in a sore conflict she gave him the victory, that he might know that godliness is stronger than all.

13 When the righteous was sold, she forsook him not, but delivered him from sin she went down with him into the pit,

14 And left him not in bonds, till she brought him the sceptre of the kingdom, and power against those that oppressed him as for them that had accused him, she shewed them to be liars, and gave him perpetual glory.

15 She delivered the righteous people and blameless seed from the nation that oppressed them.

16 She entered into the soul of the servant of the Lord, and withstood dreadful kings in wonders and signs, 17 Rendered to the righteous reward of their labours, guided them in a marvellous way, and was unto them for a cover by day, and a light of star in the night season, 18 Brought them through the Red sea, and led them through much water.

19 But she drowned their enemies, and cast them up out of the bottom of the deep.

20 Therefore the righteous praised the ungodly, and praised the holy name of the Lord and magnified with one accord thine hand, that fought for them.

21 For wisdom opened the mouth of the dumb, and made the tongues of them that cannot speak eloquent.

CHAP XI

5 The Egyptians were punished and the Isachites served in the same thing. 15 They were plagued with the same things wherein they sinned. 20 God could have destroyed them otherwise. 25 But he is merciful to all.

SHE prospered their works in the hand of the holy prophet.

2 They went through the wilderness, that was not inhabited, and pitched tents in places where there lay no way.

3 They stood against their enemies, and were avenged of their adversaries.

4 When they were thirsty, they called upon thee, and water was given them out of the flinty rock, and their thirst was quenched out of the hard stone.

5 For by what things their enemies were punished, by the same they in their need were benefited.

6 For instead of a fountain of a perpetual running river troubled with foul blood,

7 For a manifest reproof of that commandment, whereby the infants were slain, thou gavest unto them abundance of water by a means which they hoped not for.

8 Declaring by that thirst then how thou hadst punished their adversaries.

9 For when they were tried, albeit but in mercy chastised, they knew how the ungodly were judged in wrath and tormented, thirsting in another manner than the just.

10 For these thou didst admonish and try, as a father but the other, as a severe king, thou didst condemn and punish.

11 Whether they were absent or present, they were vexed alike.

11 Whether they were absent or present they were vexed alike } The Egyptians were equally tormented in the desert and presence of the Isachites. When they were in Egypt the Isachites were visited with ten different plagues on their account and were envious and uneasy at their prosperity after their departure from Egypt.

12 For a double grief came upon them, and a mourning for the remembrance of things past

13 For when they heard by their own punishments the other to be benefited, they had some feeling of the Lord

14 For whom they rejected with scorn, when he was long before thrown out at the casting forth of the infants, him in the end, when they saw what came to pass, they admitted

15 But for the foolish devices of their wickedness, wherewith being deceived they worshipped serpents void of reason, and vile beasts, thou didst send a multitude of unreasonable beasts upon them for vengeance,

16 That they might know, that wherewithal a man smeth, by the same also shall he be punished

17 For thy Almighty hand, that made the world of matter without form, wanted not means to send among them a multitude of bears, or fierce lions,

18 Or unknown wild beasts, full of rage, newly created, breathing out either a fiery vapour, or filthy scents of scattered smoke, or shooting horrible sparkles out of their eyes

19 Wherof not only the harm might dispatch them at once, but also the terrible sight utterly destroy them

20 Yea, and without these might they have fallen down with one blast, being persecuted of vengeance, and scattered abroad through the breath of thy power but thou hast ordered all things in measure and number and weight

21 For thou canst shew thy great strength at all times when thou wilt, and who may withstand the power of thine arm?

22 For the whole world before thee is as a little grain of the balance, yea, as a drop of the morning dew that falleth down upon the earth

23 But thou hast mercy upon all, for thou canst do all things, and winkest at the sins of men, because they should amend

24 For thou lovest all the things that are, and abhorrest nothing which thou hast made (for never wouldst thou have made any thing, if thou hadst hated it)

25 And how could any thing have endured, if it had not been thy will to be preserved, if not called by thee?

26 But thou sparest all for they are thine, O Lord, thou lover of souls

2 Therefore chastenest thou them by little and little that offend, and warnest them by putting them in remembrance wherein they have offended that leaving their wickedness they may believe on thee, O Lord

4 Whom thou hatedst for doing most odious works of witchcrafts, and wicked sacrifices,

5 And also those merciless murderers of children, and devourers of man's flesh, and the feasts of blood, the ungodly under the hand of the righteous in battle, or to destroy them at once with cruel beasts, or with one rough word.

10 But executing thy judgments upon them by little and little, thou gavest them place of repentance, not being ignorant that they were a naughty generation, and that their malice was bred in them, and that their cogitation would never be changed.

11 For it was a cursed seed from the beginning: neither didst thou for fear of my name give them pardon for those things wherein they sinned.

12 For who shall say, What hast thou done? or who shall withstand thy judgment? or who shall accuse thee for the nations that perish, whom thou hast made? or who shall come to stand against thee, to be revenged for the unrighteous men?

13 For neither is there any God but thou that canst do all, to whom thou mightest shew that thy judgment is not unright.

14 Neither shall king or tyrant be able to set his face against thee for any whom thou hast punished.

15 Forasmuch then as thou art righteous thyself, thou orderest all things righteously: thinking it not agreeable with thy power to condemn him that hath not deserved to be punished.

16 For thy power is the beginning of righteousness, and because thou art the Lord of all, it maketh thee to be gracious unto all.

17 For when men will not believe that thou art of a full power, thou shewest thy strength, and among them that know it thou makest their boldness manifest.

18 But thou, mastering thy power, judgest with equity, and orderest us with great favour: for thou mayest use power when thou wilt.

19 But by such works hast thou taught thy people, that the just man should be merciful, and hast made thy children to be of a good hope that thou givest repentance for sins.

20 For if thou didst punish the enemies of thy children, and the condemned to death, with such deliberation, giving them time and place, whereby they might be delivered from their malice.

21 With how great circumspection dost thou judge thine own sons, unto whose fathers thou hast sworn, and made covenants of good promises?

22 Therefore, where is thou dost chasten us, thou scourgest our enemies: and thou dost times more, to the intent that, when we judge, we should carefully think of thy goodness, and when we ourselves are judged, we should look for mercy.

23 Wherefore, whereas men have lived dissolutely and unrighteously, thou hast tormented them with their own iniquities.

24 For they went astray very far in the ways of error, and held them for gods, which even among the beasts of their enemies were despised, being deceived children of no understanding.

25 Therefore unto them, as to children without the use of reason, thou didst send a judgment to mock them.

26 But they that would not be reformed by that correction, wherein he dilled with them, shall feel a judgment worthy of God.

27 For, look, for what things they grudged, when they were punished, that is, for them whom they thought to be gods, [now] being punished in them, when they saw it, they acknowledged him to be the true God, whom before they denied to know, and therefore came extreme damnation upon them.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 They have not excused that worshipped any of God's works: 10 But more wretched are they that worship the works of men's hands.

16 For thy power is the beginning of righteousness &c.] Among men, supreme power is very commonly united with the greatest vanity: but Thy supreme authority is tempered with supreme mercy and compassion: so that in proportion as Thou art more powerful, Thou becomest with more gentleness and clemency towards Thy creatures. Badnell

17 among them that know it.] And yet set in defiance of it. Arnold

21 With how great circumspection didst thou judge.] Rather, as some versions render, "wilt Thou judge?" With how much more circumspection and caution wilt Thou punish Thine own people than those with whose fathers Thou didst enter into covenant, and didst make to them therein solemn and precious promises. Arnold

24 — I led them for gods, which even among the beasts of their enemies were despised.] The words of their enemies are superfluous: the curse is complete without them. They are termed as god-creatures that are vile, as common street boys. Arnold

26 But they that would not be reformed &c.] Intimating that those who will not be reformed by the gentle methods wherein God may be said only to dille with them, shall afterwards feel a heavier and much more severe correction. Arnold

27 For, look, for what things &c.] The case seems to be, For what when corrected only, they were displeased and angry, seeing themselves yet more severely dealt with, and punished on account of those whom they thought to be gods, they acknowledged the true God, whom before they denied, and therefore to the end that they might acknowledge Him, came extreme damnation upon them: that is, they were cut off by an eternal retribution. Arnold

SURELY I am are all men by nature,

4 But if they were astonished at their power and virtue, let them understand by them, how much mightier he is that made them

5 For by the greatness and beauty of the creatures proportionably the maker of them is seen

6 But yet for this they are the less to be blamed for they peradventure err, seeking God, and desirous to find him

7 For being conversant in his works they search him diligently, and believe

8 Howbeit neither are they to be par-

10 But miserable are they, and in dead things is their hope, who called them gods, which are the works of men's hands, gold work to dress his meat, hath filled himself,

13 And taking the very refuse among those which served to no use, being a crooked piece of wood, and full of knots, hath carved it diligently, when he had nothing else to do, and formed it by the skill of his understanding, and fashioned it to the image of a man,

14 Or made it like some vile beast, laying it over with vermilion and with purple colouring it red, and covering every spot therein,

15 And when he had made a convenient room for it, set it in a wall, and made it fast with iron

16 For he provided for it that it might not fall, knowing that it was unable to help itself, for it is an image, and hath need of help

17 Then maketh he prayer for his goods, for his wife and children, and is not ashamed to speak to that which hath no life

18 For health he calleth upon that which is weak for life prayeth to that which is dead for aid humbly beseecheth that which hath least means to help and for a good journey he asketh of that which can-waves, calleth upon a piece of wood more rotten than the vessel that carrieth him.

2 For verily desire of gain devised that, and the workman built it by his skill.

3 But thy providence, O Father, governeth it for thou hast made a way in the sea, and a safe path in the waves,

4 Shewing that thou canst save from all danger yea, though a man went to sea without art.

5 Nevertheless thou wouldest not that the works of thy wisdom should be idle, and therefore do men commit their lives to a small piece of wood, and passing the rough sea in a weak vessel are saved.

6 For in the old time also, when the proud giants pushed, the hope of the world governed by thy hand escaped in a weak vessel, and left to all ages a seed of generation.

7 For blessed is the wood whereby righteousness cometh.

8 But that which is made with hands is cursed, as well it, as he that made it he, because he made it, and it, because, being corruptible, it was called god.

9 For the ungodly and his ungodliness are both alike hateful unto God.

10 For that which is made shall be punished together with him that made it.

11 Therefore even upon the idols of the Gentiles shall there be a visitation: because in the creature of God they are become an abomination, and a stumbling-block to the souls of men, and a snare to the feet of the unwise.

12 For the devising of idols was the beginning of spiritual fornication, and the invention of them the corruption of life.

13 For neither were they from the beginning, neither shall they be for ever.

14 For by the vain glory of men they entered into the world, and therefore shall they come shortly to an end.

15 For a father afflicted with untimely mourning, when he hath made an image of his child soon taken away, now honoured him as a god, which was then a dead man, and delivered to those that were under him ceremonies and sacrifices.

16 Thus in process of time an ungodly custom grown strong was kept as a law, and graven images were worshipped by the commandments of kings.

17 Whom men could not honour in presence, because they dwelt far off, they took the counterfeits of his visage from tin, and made an express image of a king, whom they honoured, to the end that by this their forwardness they might flatter him that was absent, as if he were present.

18 Also the singular diligence of the artificers did help to set forward the ignorant to more superstition.

19 For he, peradventure willing to please one in authority, forced all his skill to make the resemblance of the best fashion.

20 And so the multitude, allured by the grace of the work, took him now for a god, which a little before was but honoured as a man.

21 And this was an occasion to deceive the world for men, serving either calamity or tyranny, did ascribe unto stones and stocks the incommunicable name.

22 Moreover this was not enough for them, that they erred in the knowledge of God, but whereas they lived in the great war of ignorance, those so great plagues called they peace.

23 For whilst they slew their children in sacrifices, or used secret ceremonies, or made revellings of strange rites, 24 They kept neither lives nor marriages any longer undefiled but either one slew another traiterously, or grieved him by adultery.

25 So that there reigned in all men without exception blood, manslaughter, theft, and dissimulation, corruption, unfaithfulness, tumults, perjury.

26 Inquieting of good men, forgetfulness of good turns, defiling of souls, changing of kind, disorder in marriages, adultery, and shameless uncleanness.

27 For the worshipping of idols from the beginning, the cause, and the end, of all evil.

be merry, or prophesy lies, or live unjustly, or else lightly forswear themselves.

29 For inasmuch as their trust is in idols, which have no life, though they swear falsely, yet they look not to be hurt.

30 Howbeit for both causes shall they be justly punished both because they thought not well of God, giving heed unto idols, and also unjustly sworn in deceit, despising holiness.

31 For it is not the power of them by whom they swear but it is the just vengeance of sinners, that punisheth always the offence of the ungodly.

CHAP XV

1 He do acknowledge the true God 7 The folly of idol makers, 14 and of the enemies of God's people, 15 how base, besides the idols of the Gentiles, 18 they worshipped with beasts

BUT thou, O God, art gracious and true, longsuffering, and in mercy ordering all things.

2 For if we sin, we are thine, knowing thy power but we will not sin, knowing that we are counted thine.

3 For to know thee is perfect righteousness yea, to know thy power is the root of immortality.

4 For neither did the mischievous invention of men deceive us, nor an image spotted with divers colours, the painter's fruitless labour;

5 The sight whereof enticeth fools to lust after it, and so they desire the form of a dead image, that hath no breath.

6 Both they that make them, they that desire them, and they that worship them, are lovers of evil things, and are worthy to have such things to trust upon.

7 For the potter, tempering soft earth, fashioneth every vessel with much labour for our service yea, of the same clay he maketh both the vessels that serve for clean uses, and likewise also all such as serve to the contrary but what is the use of either sort, the potter himself is the judge.

8 And employing his labours lawdly he maketh a vain god of the same clay, even he which a little before was made of earth himself, and within a little while after returneth to the same, out of the which he was taken, when his life which was lent him shall be demanded.

9 Notwithstanding his care is, not that he shall have much labour, nor that his life is short but striveth to excel goldsmiths and silversmiths, and endeavoureth to do like the workers in brass, and counteth it his glory to make counterfeit things.

10 His heart is ashes, his hope is more vile than earth, and his life of less value than clay.

11 Forasmuch as he knew not his Maker, and him that inspired into him an active soul, and breathed in a living spirit.

12 But they counted our life a pastime, and our time here a market for gain for, say they, we must be getting every way, though it be by evil means.

13 For this man, that of earthly matter maketh brittle vessels and graven images, knoweth himself to offend above all others.

14 And all the enemies of thy people, that hold them in subjection, are most foolish, and are more miserable than very babes.

15 For they counted all the idols of the heathen to be gods which neither have the use of eyes to see, nor noses to draw breath, nor ears to hear, nor fingers of hands to handle, and as for their feet, they are slow to go.

16 For man made them, and he that borrowed his own spirit fashioned them but no man can make a god like unto himself.

17 For being mortal, he worketh a dead thing with wicked hands for he himself is better than the things which he worshippeth whereas he lived once, but they never.

18 Yea, they worshipped those beasts also that are most hateful for being compared together, some are worse than others.

CHAP. XVI.

2 God gave strange meat to his people, to stir up their appetite and beasts to their enemies, to take it from them. 5 He smote with his serpents, 12 but soon healed them by his word only. 17 The creatures altered their nature to pleasure God's people, and to offend their enemies.

THEREFORE by the like were they punished worthily, and by the multitude of beasts tormented.

2 Instead of which punishment, dealing graciously with thine own people, thou preparedst for them meat of a strange taste, even quails to stir up their appetite.

3 To the end that they, desiring food, might for the ugly sight of the beasts sent among them lothe even that, which they must needs desire, but these, suffering penury for a short space, might be made partakers of a strange taste.

4 For it was requisite, that upon them exercising triumph should come penury, which they could not avoid: but to these it should only be shewed how their enemies were tormented.

5 For when the horrible fierceness of beasts came upon these, and they perished with the stings of crooked serpents, thy wrath endured not for ever.

6 But they were troubled for a small season, that they might be admonished, having a sign of salvation, to put them in remembrance of the commandment of thy law.

7 For he that turned himself toward it was not saved by the thing that he saw, but by thee, that art the Saviour of all.

8 And in this thou madest thine enemies confess, that it is thou who deliverest from all evil.

9 For them the bitings of grasshoppers, and flies killed, neither was there found any remedy for their life: for they were worthy to be punished by such.

10 But thy sons not the very teeth of venomous dragons overcome, for thy mercy was ever by them, and healed them.

11 For they were pricked, that they should remember thy words, and were quickly saved, that not falling into deep forgetfulness, they might be continually mindful of thy goodness.

12 For it was neither herb, nor molting plaster, that restored them to health: but thy word, O Lord, which healeth all things.

13 For thou hast power of life and death: thou leadest to the gates of hell, and bringest up again.

14 A man indeed killeth through his malice: and the spirit, when it is gone forth, returneth not, neither the soul received up cometh again.

15 But it is not possible to escape thine hand.

16 For the ungodly, that denied to know thee, were scourged by the strength of thine arm: with strange rains, hails, and showers, were they persecuted, that they could not avoid, and through fire were they consumed.

17 For, which is most to be wondered at, the fire had more force in the water, that quencheth all things: for the world is lighted for the righteous.

[1] — in respect of beasts. That is, of other beasts. I should almost all beasts are preferable in point of beauty to serpents and scorpions which the Egyptians held in such great veneration and love.

— but they went without the praise of God and his blessing. That is, says Calmet, they are not of the number of those whom God praised and blessed: they have by being persecuted to do duty, lost in some measure God's benediction and withal their original goodness and beauty, of which they were possessed in common with other creatures when they first came out of the hand of their Creator, Gen. 1, 31. On the sense may be, All created beings, animate and inanimate, praise God in their duty, and derive it from His hand as a blessing: but odious and deformed objects such as for their ugliness are called monsters, proclaim not their Maker's praise, as not having received from His bounty those amiable and good qualities, which are to be stamped blessings. Arnold.

[Chap. XVI. ver. 2 — meat of a strange taste.] Meat to which they had not been accustomed. Dr. Isham.

[To the end that they.] Meaning the Egyptians.

— lothe even that, which they must needs desire. Through the disagreeableness of the animals sent among them, particularly the frogs, which tainted and spoiled their meat, the Egyptians loathed the thoughts and the desire even of necessary food and refreshment. Arnold.

— but thou, suffering. The Israelites suffering. 6 — having a sign of salvation. Namely, the brazen serpent. See John 3, 14. Dr. Isham.

7 For he that turned himself toward it &c. Meaning, that the brazen serpent had no natural power to effect a cure in those who beheld it: but that the power of God gave this supernatural effect in recompense for their faith and obedience. Calmet.

15 — to escape thine hand. To be out of the reach of Thy power either in body or soul. Dr. Isham.

17 — the fire had more force in the water, that quencheth all things. The fire, sent from heaven to punish the Egyptians continued burning though mixed with rain and hail: and instead of being quenched by the water, became the more violent for it. Arnold.

— the world is lighted for the righteous. See the note on chap.

18 For sometime the flame was mitigated, that it might not burn up the beasts that were sent against the ungodly, but themselves might see and perceive, that they were persecuted with the judgment of God

19 And at another time it burneth even in the midst of water above the power of fire, that it might destroy the fruits of an unjust land

20 Instead whereof thou feddest thine own people with angels' food, and didst send them from heaven bread prepared without their labour, able to content every man's delight, and agreeing to every taste

21 For thy sustenance declared thy sweetness to thy children, and serving to the palate of the caterpillar, tempered itself to every man's liking

22 But snow and ice endured the fire, and melted not, that they might know that the burning in the hail, and sparkling in the rain, did destroy the fruits of the enemies

23 But this again did even forget his own strength, that the righteous might be nourished

24 For the creature that serveth thee, who art the Maker, increaseth his strength against the unrighteous for their punishment, and abateh his strength for the benefit of such as put their trust in thee.

25 Therefore even then was it altered into all fashions, and was obedient to thy grace, that nourisheth all things, according to the desire of them that had need

26 That thy children, O Lord, whom thou lovest, might know, that it is not the growing of fruits that nourisheth man but that it is thy word, which preserveth them that put their trust in thee

27 For that which was not destroyed of the fire, being warmed with a little sunbeam, soon melted away

28 That it might be known, that we must prevent the sun to give thee thanks, and at the dayspring pray unto thee

29 For the hope of the unthankful shall melt away as the winter's hoar frost, and shall run away as unprofitable water

CHAP XVII

1 Why the Egyptians were punished with darkness 12 The terrors of an ill conscience

FOR great are thy judgments, and cannot be expressed therefore || unnurtured souls have erred

2 For when unrighteous men thought to oppress the holy nation, they being shut up || in their houses, the prisoners of darkness, and fettered with the bonds of a long night, lay [there] || exiled from the eternal providence

3 For while they supposed to be hid in their secret sins, they were scattered || under a dark veil of forgetfulness, being horribly astonished, and troubled with [strange] || apparitions

4 For neither might the corner that held them keep them from fear but noises [as of waters] falling down sounded about them, and sad visions appeared unto them with heavy countenances.

5 No power of the fire might give them light neither could the bright flames of the stars endure to lighten that horrible night

6 Only there appeared unto them a fire kindled of itself, very dreadful for being much terrified, they thought the things which they saw to be worse than the sight they saw not

7 As for the illusions of art magick,

18 — [that it might not burn up the beasts] The frogs, lice, and other vermin mentioned in Exod viii

21 For thy sustenance declared thy sweetness] That is the manna, the sustenance sent by Thee to Thy people, sweet in its flavour was both manna and an emblem of Thy tender love and kindness to them Arnold

22 But snow and ice endured the fire &c] A comparison is drawn on here between the effect of the lightning mixed with hail upon the fruits of the Egyptians, and that of the fire upon the manna of the Israelites expressing that as the former burnt on clay and usually for the destruction of their trees and plants so the latter lost or as the author expresses it forgot its own strength for the preservation and nourishment of the Israelites Arnold

24 For the creature that serveth thee &c] He speaks of the element of fire which was fiercer and more powerful and that the water when it was ordered to smelt the Egyptians but abated its fury to contribute to the good and advantage of the Israelites Arnold

28 That it might be known, that &c] That, as it was necessary to collect the manna before sunrise, that it might not be melted, so those who wish for the blessings and favour of God should rise with the sun to pray to Him and to bless His name Calmet

Chap XVII ver 1 — therefore] That is, for want of considering these judgments Dr Isham

2 — exiled from the eternal providence] From the common blessings of God's providence, light, heat, and the sight of the heavens Calmet

3 For while they supposed &c] The true rendering seems to be, While they thought or flattered themselves that they lay hid in their secret sins, under a dark veil of forgetfulness, they themselves were darkened or overtaken by this plague of darkness Arnold

7 As for the illusions of art magick, &c] The magicians themselves were not able to assist them, nor to remove this plague of darkness Arnold they were put down, and their vaunting in wisdom was reprov'd with disgrace.

8 For they, that promised to drive away terrors and troubles from a sick soul, were sick themselves of fear, worthy to be laughed at 9 For though no terrible thing did fear them, yet being scared with beasts that passed by, and hissing of serpents,

10 They died for fear, || denying that they saw the air, which could of no side be avoided

11 For wickedness, condemned by her own witness, is very timorous, and being pressed with conscience, always forecasteth grievous things

12 For fear is nothing else but a betraying of the succours which reason offereth

13 And the expectation from within, being less, counteth the ignorance more than the cause which bringeth the torment.

14 But they sleeping the same sleep that night, || which was indeed intolerable, and which came upon them out of the bottoms of inevitable hell,

15 Were partly vexed with monstrous apparitions, and partly fainted, their heart failing them for a sudden fear, and not looked for, came upon them

16 So then whosoever there fell down was strictly kept, shut up in a prison without iron bars

17 For whether he were husbandman, or shepherd, or a labourer in the field, he was overtaken, and endured that necessity, which could not be avoided for they were all bound with one chain of darkness.

18 Whether it were a whistling wind, or a melodious noise of birds among the spreading branches, or a pleasing fall of water running violently,

19 Or a terrible sound of stones cast down, or a running that could not be seen of skipping beasts, or a roaring voice of most savage wild beasts, or a rebounding echo from the hollow mountains, these things made them to swoon for fear

20 For the whole world shined with clear light, and none were hindered in their labour

21 Over them only was spread an heavy night, an image of that darkness which should afterwards receive them but yet were they unto themselves more grievous than the darkness

CHAP. XVIII

4 Why Egypt was punished with darkness 5 and not the death of their children 18 They themselves saw the cause thereof 20 God also plagued his own people 21 By what means that plague was stayed

NEVERTHELESS thy saints had a very great light, whose voice they hearing, and not seeing their shape, because they also had not suffered the same things, they counted them happy

2 But for that they did not hurt them now, of whom they had been wronged before, they thanked them, and besought them pardon for that they had been enemies

3 Instead whereof thou gavest them a burning pillar of fire, both to be a guide of the unknown journey, and an harmless sun to entertain them honourably

4 For they were worthy to be deprived of light, and imprisoned in darkness, who had kept thy sons shut up, by whom the incorrupt light of the law was to be given unto the world

5 And when they had determined to slay the babes of the saints, one child being cast forth, and saved, to reprove them, thou tookest away the multitude of their children, and destroyedst them altogether in a mighty water.

6 Of that light were our fathers certified afore, that assuredly knowing unto what oaths they had given credence, they might afterwards be of good cheer

10 — denying that they saw the air, &c.] Rather as in the margin refusing to look upon the air. They closed their eyes and durst not look up to the darkness, which could not escape their notice, as it enveloped them on every side. Grotius, Arnald

11 And the expectation from within, being less, &c.] This verse, both in the original and in the translation, is unintelligible. By a slight alteration it may be rendered thus. And the expectation of lesser evil, when it is from within, that is, when it cometh from the mind or the imagination, looketh upon it as greater through ignorance of the cause which occasioneth the torment. Arnald

18 Whether it were a whistling wind, &c.] Here is a description of the panic of the Egyptians under the miraculous darkness, which was so great that nothing could be without causing alarm to them. Arnald

21 — an image of that darkness &c.] Of that darkness which is reserved for them hereafter alluding to the future punishment which awaited the Egyptians. Calmet

— were they unto themselves more grievous.] By reason of the terrors and darkness of their minds. Dr. Isham

Chap. XVIII ver. 1 — thy saints.] Meaning the Israelites — whose voice they hearing, &c.] The preferable sense seems to be. The Israelites heard the cries of the Egyptians without seeing their shape, and returned thanks to God that they themselves were not involved in the same darkness and misery. Calmet

2 But for that they did not hurt them &c.] The sentence is obscure. The sense seems to be that the Egyptians thought the Israelites for not revenging themselves upon them in their state of darkness who had provoked them enough, and had been so long oppressed. Calmet

7 So of thy people was accepted both the salvation of the righteous, and destruction of the enemies

8 For wherewith thou didst punish our adversaries, by the same thou didst glorify us, whom thou hadst called

9 For the righteous children of good men did sacrifice secretly, and with one consent made || a holy law, that the saints should be like putrifiers of the same good and evil, the fathers now singing out the songs of praise

10 But on the other side there sounded in all according cry of the enemies, and a lamentable noise was carried abroad for children that were bewailed

11 The master and the servant were punished after one manner, and like as the king, so suffered the common person

12 So they altogether had innumerable dead with one kind of death, neither were the living sufficient to bury them: for in one moment the noblest offspring of them was destroyed.

13 For whereas they would not believe any thing by reason of the enchantments; upon the destruction of the firstborn, they acknowledged this people to be the sons of God

14 For while all things were in quiet silence, and that night was in the midst of her swift course,

15 Thine Almighty word leaped down from heaven out of thy royal throne, as a fierce man of war into the midst of a land of destruction,

16 And brought thine unfeigned commandment as a sharp sword, and standing up filled all things with death, and it touched the heaven, but it stood upon the earth

17 Then suddenly || visions of horrible dreams troubled them sore, and terrors came upon them unlooked for

18 And one thrown here, and another there, half dead, shewed the cause of his death

19 For the dreams that troubled them did foreshew this, lest they should perish, and not know why they were afflicted

20 Yea, the tasting of death touched the righteous also, and there was a destruction of the multitude in the wilderness but the wrath endured not long

21 For then the blameless man made haste, and stood forth to defend them, and bringing the shield of his proper ministry, even prayer, and the propitiation of incense, set himself against the wrath, and so brought the calamity to an end declaring that he was thy servant

22 So he overcame the destroyer, not with strength of body, nor force of arms, but with a word subdued he him that punished, alledging the oaths and covenants made with the fathers

23 For when the dead were now fallen down by heaps one upon another, standing between, he stayed the wrath, and || parted the way to the living

24 For in the long garment was the whole world, and in the four rows of the stones was the glory of the fathers graven, and thy Majesty upon the diadem of his head

25 Unto these the destroyer gave place, and was afraid of them: for it was enough that they only tasted of the wrath

CHAP. XIX

1 Why didst thou show no mercy to the Egyptians, when wonderfully he dealt with his people 11 The Egyptians were worse than the Sodomites 18 The wonderful agreement of the creatures to serve God's people

AS for the ungodly, wrath came upon them without mercy unto the end for he knew before what they would do,

2 How that having given them leave to depart, and sent them hastily away, they would repent and pursue them.

3 For whilst they were yet mourning and making lamentation at the graves of the dead, they added another foolish device, and pursued them as fugitives, whom they had || intreated to be gone

4 For the destiny, wherof they were worthy, drew them unto this end, and made them forget the things that had already happened, that they might fulfil the 20 [You the tasting of death touched the righteous also.] From the destruction of the Egyptian firstborn the author takes occasion to mention the destruction of the Egyptians in the wilderness, and, by a comparison of God's dealings with the Egyptians and with His own people, to open that the former were punished without mercy, but that no such doom Aaron appears in favour of the offending Israelites, though he interceded for the wrath of God's sword.

punishment which was wanting to their torments

5 And that thy people might pass a wonderful way but they might find a strange death

6 For the whole creature in his proper kind was fashioned again new, serving the peculiar commandments that were given unto them, that thy children might be kept without hurt

7 As namely, a cloud shadowing the camp, and where water stood before, dry land appeared, and out of the Red sea a way without impediment, and out of the violent stream a green field

8 Wherethrough all the people went that were defended with thy hand, seeing thy marvellous strange wonders

9 For they went as large like horses, and leaped like lambs, praising thee, O Lord, who hadst delivered them

10 For they were yet mindful of the things that were done while they sojourned in the strange land, how the ground brought forth // flies instead of cattle, and how the river cast up a multitude of frogs instead of fishes

11 But afterwards they saw a new generation of fowls, when, being led with their appetite, they asked delicate meats.

12 For quails came up unto them from the sea for their // contentment.

13 And punishments came upon the sinners not without former signs by the force of thunders for they suffered justly according to their own wickedness, inasmuch as they used a more hard and hateful behaviour toward strangers

14 For the Sodomites did not receive those, whom they knew not when they came but these brought friends into bondage, that had well deserved of them

15 And not only so, but perdition and some respect shall be had of those, because they used strangers not friendly

16 But these very grievously afflicted them, whom they had received with feastings, and were already made partakers of the same laws with them

17 Therefore even with blindness were these stricken, as those were at the doors of the righteous man when, being compassed about with horrible great darkness, every one sought the passage of his own doors.

18 For the elements were changed <sup>† in</sup> themselves by a kind of harmony, like as in a psalteries notes change the name of the tune, and yet are always sounds, which may well be perceived by the sight of the things that have been done

19 For earthly things were turned into watery, and the things, that before swam in the water, now went upon the ground

20 The fire had power in the water, forgetting his own virtue and the water forgot his own quenching nature

21 On the other side, the flames wasted not the flesh of the corruptible living things, though they walked therein, neither melted they the icy kind of heavenly meat, that was of nature apt to melt

22 For in all things, O Lord, thou didst magnify thy people, and glorify them, neither didst thou lightly regard them but didst assist them in every time and place

6 For the whole creature &c.] The sense of the passage is, that the elements were so altered in their operations, and diversified in their effects through the power of God, that there seemed to be a new creation for there was nothing but miracle when God would punish His enemies or protect His people. Arnald

11 — but these brought friends into bondage.] These (the Egyptians) made slaves of strangers (the Israelites) who had been benefactors to them. Arnald

17 — with blindness.] That is, with darkness. Dr Iskan

18 For the elements were changed &c.] They were changed by God from their constant course, as easily as a musician can change tones on instruments. Dr Iskan

19 — earthly things were turned into watery,] Alluding to the passage of the Red sea

It is the opinion of many that this book was originally continued beyond its present conclusion, and that part of it is now lost. Colins Cabinet

THE WISDOM OF JESUS THE SON OF SIRACH.

OR

ECCLESIASTICUS.

INTRODUCTION

THIS book, like the preceding but sometimes been considered as the production of Solomon, from its resemblance to the inspired work of that writer. In the Latin church it was esteemed the last of the five books attributed to him. It is cited as the work of that enlightened king by several of the Fathers, was joined with his books in most of the copies, and like them is written with a kind of metrical arrangement in the Alexandrian manuscript, being supposed to have been composed originally in metre. Still however it must have been written long after the time of Solomon, who with the succeeding Prophets that flourished before and after the captivity here mentioned, chap. xlvii. 13, &c., since also the high priest Simon, who lived a little before the Maccabees is spoken of chap. l. 1—21, since the words of Malachi are cited, chap. xlviii. 10 from Mal. iv. 6, and since the author describes himself in circumstances that could not have occurred to Solomon, chap. xxxiv. 11, 12, li. 6. The book can only be supposed to contain some scattered sentiments of Solomon industriously collected with other materials for the work, by an Hebrew writer styled Jesus, who professes himself the author, chap. l. 27, and who is represented to have so been by his grandson, but who indeed imitates the didactic style of Solomon, and like him assumes the character of a preacher. Jesus was, as we learn from the same authority, a man who had travelled much in the pursuit of knowledge, who was very conversant with the Scriptures, and desirous of producing in imitation of the sacred writers, some useful work for the instruction of mankind, and who having collected together many valuable sentences from the Prophets, and other writers then successors, compiled them into one work, with some original additions of his own production. What this Jesus produced in the Syriac or vulgar Hebrew of his time, his grandson translated into Greek for the benefit of his countrymen in Egypt, who by long disuse had forgotten the Hebrew tongue.

To this grandson we are indebted for the possession of a valuable work, of which the original is now lost, though St. Jerome professes to have seen it. It has been a subject of some dispute, whether the grandfather or grandson be the person who should be described as the Son of Sirach. However as the book is entitled "The Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach," this title must be supposed to apply rather to the author than to the translator. The author likewise describes himself as the Son of Sirach in the 51st chapter, which appears to be the work of the same author. The translator, who is usually called Jesus, is likewise styled the Son of Sirach by Epiphanius, and by the author of the anonymous prologue which is supposed to have been written by Athanasius, and it is not improbable that the younger Jesus may likewise have been a Son of Sirach, as names were often so entailed in families. The author of the book is by Chusiet and others supposed to have flourished so late as under the pontificate of Onias the third, and to have fled into Egypt on account of the afflictions brought on his country by Antiochus Epiphanes, about 171 years before Christ, to whose persecution they conceive that some parts of the book refer, chap. xxxvi. xxxv. 12, xxxv. and li. The translator professes to have found the book after he had continued some time in Egypt, where it might have been deposited by his grandfather, it was called Ecclesiasticus by the Latins, a title nearly synonymous with that of Ecclesiastes, or "the Preacher." In Greek it is called the Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach. It is much to be admired for the excellency of its precepts, and none of the Apocryphal books furnish such admirable instruction as this. But it has no title to be considered as an inspired work, though it contains many passages derived from the sacred writings, and especially from those of Solomon, and some which have a slight resemblance to parts of the New Testament, by accidental coincidence of thought and expression, or by concurrent imitation of the early writers of the Old Testament. The book never was in the Hebrew canon, nor was it received by the primitive church of Christ, since it is not in the most ancient and authentic catalogues, and is expressly represented as an uncanonical book by many ancient writers. It is however cited with great reverence by the Fathers of the Greek and Latin churches, many of whom endeavoured to strengthen their religious opinions by the sentiments contained in a book so deservedly and so generally approved. It is cited as Scripture, in a general sense of the word, by many provincial synods, and received as in a lower degree canonical by some councils after the fourth century. It was however universally considered as inferior to the books derived from the Hebrew canon, till received as of equal authority by the unadvised and indiscriminating decree of the council of Trent.

The work begins with an eulogium on Wisdom, and many important instructions are delivered to the twenty-fourth chapter, when Wisdom herself is introduced, and is supposed to continue to speak, to the fifteenth verse of the forty-second chapter. Here the collection of wise sayings, which are obviously written in imitation of the Proverbs of Solomon, concludes, and the author solemnly enters upon a pious hymn in which he celebrates God's wisdom, in a strain highly rapturous and sublime, and finishes his work with a panegyric on the illustrious characters of his own nation, and with a prayer of thanksgiving for some deliverance which the author had personally experienced. The book contains a fine system of moral, political, and theological precepts, arranged in a less desultory manner than the Proverbs of Solomon, and distributed under certain heads, which seem to have been formally classed under different titles, many of which are still extant in some of the Greek copies. Some learned men have pretended to discover in the book the more secret and abstruse wisdom applied to Solomon, and taught in the schools of the Jewish Doctors. But it is chiefly valuable for the familiar lessons which it affords for the direction of manners in every circumstance and condition, and for the general precepts which it communicates towards the daily regulation of life. Its maxims are explained by much variety of illustration, and occasionally exemplified in the description of characters. The ancient writers considered it as a complete compendium of moral virtues, and perhaps no uninspired production ever displayed a morality more comprehensive, or more captivating and consistent with the revealed law of God. The book furnishes also an instructive detail of the sentiments and opinions that prevailed in the time of the author, it shows the impatience which then prevailed for the appearance of the expected Messiah, chap. xxxvi. 1—17, and the firm confidence in the hope of a future life and judgment which had been built upon the assurances of the Law and the Prophets. It serves likewise to prove that as the Gospel dispensation approached the Jews were prepared for its reception by being more enlightened to understand the spiritual import and the figurative character of the Law. Dr. Gray

The excellent morality of the book, and the justness of its observations, which have stood the test, and gained the approbation, of so many successive ages have deservedly recommended it to general esteem. A celebrated Metropolitan in particular, one of the early lights of the reformation (Chap. Whitgift) had such a high opinion of its worth, and of the great usefulness of its being thoroughly understood, that he purposely caused the learned form to be printed under his patronage and encouragement.

THIS Jesus was the son of Sirach, and grandchild to Jesus of the same name with him this man therefore lived in the latter times, after the people had been led away captive, and called home again, and almost after all the prophets. Now his grandfather Jesus, as he himself witnesseth, was a man of great diligence and wisdom among the Hebrews, who did not only gather the grave and short sentences of wise men, that had been before him, but himself also uttered some of his own, full of much understanding and wisdom. When as therefore the first Jesus died, leaving this book almost perfected, Sirach his son receiving it after him left it to his own son Jesus, who having gotten it into his hands, compiled it all orderly into one volume, and called it Wisdom, intituling it both by his own name, his father's name, and his grandfather's, alluring the hearer by the very name of Wisdom to have a greater love to the study of this book. It containeth therefore wise sayings, dark sentences, and parables, and certain particular excellent godly stories of men that pleased God, also his prayer and song; moreover, what benefits God had vouchsafed his people, and what plagues he had heaped upon their enemies. This Jesus did imitate Solomon, and was no less famous for wisdom and learning, both being indeed a man of great learning, and so reputed also.

only the readers must needs become skillful themselves, but also they that desire to learn be able to profit them which are without, both by speaking and writing my grandfather Jesus, when he had much given himself to the reading of the law, and the prophets, and other books of our fathers, and had gotten therein good judgment, was drawn on also himself to write something pertaining to learning and wisdom, to the intent that those which are desirous to learn, and are addicted to these things, might profit much more in living according to the law. Wherefore let me intreat you to read it with favour and attention, and to pardon us, wherein we may seem to come short of some words, which we have laboured to interpret. For the same things uttered in Hebrew, and translated into another tongue, have not the same force in them and not only these things, but the law itself, and the prophets, and the rest of the books, have no small difference, when they are spoken in their own language. For in the eight and thirtieth year coming into Egypt, when Lysimachus was king, and continuing there some time, I found a book of no small learning: therefore I thought it most necessary for me to bestow some diligence and travail to interpret it; using great watchfulness and skill in that space to bring the book to an end, and set it forth for them also, which in a strange country are willing to learn, being prepared before in manners to live after the law.

8 There is one wise and greatly to be feared, the Lord sitting upon his throne.

9 He created her, and saw her, and numbered her, and poured her out upon all his works.

10 She is with all flesh according to his gift, and he hath given her to them that love him.

6 [To whom hath the root of wisdom been revealed?] Meaning, Who hath shown the depth of Infinite Wisdom and the secrets of God's judgments? The seventh verse is omitted in many Greek copies, and by the Arabic and Syriac translators. It seems to be an explanation of this, and to have crept accidentally into the text from the margin. Arnald

16 To fear the Lord is fulness of wisdom, and filleth men with her fruits.

17 She filleth all their house with things desirable, and the garners with her increase.

18 The fear of the Lord is a crown of wisdom, making peace and perfect health to flourish, both which are the gifts of God, and it enlargeth them rejoicing that love him.

19 Wisdom teacheth down skill and knowledge of understanding, and exalteth them to honour that hold her fast.

20 The root of wisdom is to fear the Lord, and the branches thereof are long life.

21 The fear of the Lord driveth away sins, and where it is present, it turneth away wrath.

and dread of God. Arnald

15 [She hath built an everlasting foundation with men.] Alluding especially to righteous men. The fear of God takes deep root in their hearts, and in those of their children, the good impressions which they have received in infancy are never effaced. Calmet

22 — cannot be justified,] More is intended than is here expressed, it is meant that he is highly criminal, that he shall not escape punishment, as the margin renders it. The expression in the Greek, translated "the sway of his fury" is a metaphor taken from the balance, and means literally, that the excess or preponderancy of passion shall overturn a man. Arnald

23 — afterward joy shall spring up unto him.] Either in this life he will receive the reward of his patience (Arnald) or, after death, he will receive abundant joy and glory. Calmet

28 [Distrust not the fear of the Lord.] By "the fear of the Lord" is meant religion. The precept is, Follow the dictates of religion, being assured of a final reward.

— come not unto him with a double heart.] That is, with affections divided between God and the world. Or else, Do not offer thy devotions with a doubting spirit. James i 6 7. Arnald

14. — instead of sins it shall be added to build thee up] This passage has been variously interpreted. The sense seems to be similar to that of ver 10. "In opposition to sin, (that is, to the effects of sin,) thy house shall be built up." Junius. In Scripture, the building of a man's house is a well known metaphor for rearing up children (Gen. xvi 2, Exod. i 21, &c. Arnald

17. — so shalt thou be beloved of him that is approved] That is, by all worthy and good men such as are themselves for their excellent qualities approved by God and man. Arnald

19. — mysteries are revealed unto the meek] See an illustration of this at Matt. xi 25. "Thou hast hid these things (that is, the mysteries of the Gospel) from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes, where babes, or those who have humility of mind are opposed to such as are self-sufficient and wise in their own conceit." See Ps. lxxv 9, 14. Of Moses it was particularly true, that, as none was more meek than he, so none received greater favours or more frequent communications from God. Arnald. In several copies, and versions this verse is wholly wanting.

CHAP. VIII.

When we may not strive with, 8 nor despise, 10 nor provoke, 11 nor have to do with

STRIVE not with a mighty man, lest thou fall into his hands.

2 Be not at variance with a rich man, lest he overthrow thee: for gold hath destroyed many, and perverted the hearts of kings.

3 Strive not with a man that is full of tongue, and heap not wood upon his fire.

4 Jest not with a rude man, lest thy ancestors be disgraced.

5 Reproach not a man that turneth from sin, but remember that we are all worthy of punishment.

6 Dishonour not a man in his old age, for even some of us wax old.

7 Rejoice not over thy greatest enemy being dead, but remember that we die all.

8 Despise not the discourse of the wise, but acquaint thyself with their proverbs, for of them thou shalt learn instruction, and how to serve great men with ease.

9 Miss not the discourse of the elders, for they also learned of their fathers, and of them thou shalt learn understanding, and to give answer as need requreth.

10 Kindle not the coals of a sinner, lest thou be burnt with the flame of his fire.

11 Rise not up [in anger] at the presence of an injurious person, lest he lie in wait to entrap thee in thy words.

12 Lend not unto him that is mightier than thyself; for if thou lendest him, count it but lost.

13 Be not surety above thy power: for if thou be surety, take care to pay it.

14 Go not to law with a judge, for they will judge for him according to his honour.

15 Travel not by the way with a bold fellow, lest he become grievous unto thee, for he will do according to his own will, and thou shalt perish with him through his folly.

16 Strive not with an angry man, and go not with him into a solitary place, for blood is as nothing in his sight; and where there is no help, he will overthrow thee.

17 Consult not with a fool; for he cannot keep counsel.

18 Do no secret thing before a stranger, for thou knowest not what he will bring forth.

19 Open not thine heart to every man, lest he requite thee with a shrewd turn.

CHAP. IX.

12 — count it but lost. Thou wilt be in danger not only of losing thy debt, but of drawing on thyself a new and powerful enemy, for great men are sometimes offended when they are asked for what they owe. This and some following maxims are maxims of mere prudence. Calmet

Chap. VIII. ver. 3 — and heap not wood upon his fire. The meaning is, Quarrel not with an abusive person, lest thou irritate him the more.

4 Jest not with a rude man. With a person who wants good breeding, for he will make the failings or misfortunes of thy family the subject of his coarse raillery. Arnald The Latin copies give the sense, Keep not company with an ignorant unlearned person. Calmet esse; and he that is to day a king to morrow shall die.

11 For when a man is dead, he shall inherit creeping things, beasts, and worms.

12 The beginning of pride is when one departeth from God, and his heart is turned away from his Maker.

13 For pride is the beginning of sin, and he that hath it shall pour out abomination; and therefore the Lord brought upon them strange calamities, and overthrew them utterly.

14 The Lord hath cast down the thrones of proud princes, and set up the meek in their stead.

15 The Lord hath plucked up the roots of the proud nations, and planted the lowly in their places.

16 The Lord overthrew countries of the heathen, and destroyed them to the foundations of the earth.

17 He took some of them away, and destroyed them, and hath made their memorial to cease from the earth.

18 Pride was not made for men, nor furious anger for them that are born of a woman.

19 They that fear the Lord are a sure seed, and they that love him an honourable plant: they that regard not the law are a dishonourable seed, they that transgress the commandments are a deceivable seed.

20 Among brethren he that is chief is honourable, so are they that fear the Lord in his eyes.

21 The fear of the Lord goeth before the obtaining of authority: but roughness and pride is the losing thereof.

22 Whether he be rich, noble, or poor, then glory is the fear of the Lord.

23 It is not meet to despise the poor man that hath understanding, neither is it convenient to magnify a sinful man.

24 Great men, and judges, and poten-tates, shall be honoured, yet is there none of them greater than he that feareth the Lord.

25 Unto the servant that is wise shall they that are free do service: and he that hath knowledge will not grudge when he is reformed.

26 Be not overwise in doing thy business; and boast not thyself in the time of thy distress.

27 Better is he that laboureth, and aboundeth in all things, than he that boasteth himself, and wanteth bread.

28 My son, glorify thy soul in meekness, and give it honour according to the dignity thereof.

29 Who will justify him that sinneth against his own soul? and who will honour him that dishonoureth his own life?

30 The poor man is honoured for his skill, and the rich man is honoured for his riches.

31 He that is honoured in poverty, how much more in riches? and he that is dishonourable in riches, how much more in poverty?

hat as a physician cures a long and inveterate disease by the application of suitable remedies, so God often takes away suddenly, by the stroke of death, a tyrant who has long been a plague and an evil to the state. Arnald

13 — brought upon them] That is, upon the proud. In this and the following verses the proper force of the Hebrew tense expressed in "brought upon them, &c." is, "usually brings upon him," i.e. wont to bring upon them.

19. — a deceivable seed] In the margin "an unstable generation." In the Greek it is literally "a seed of deceit."

23 — that hath understanding.] Meaning, a man that is just and good, according to the usual sense of the terms, "wisdom" and "understanding" in this book.

— neither is it convenient to magnify] Neither is it proper that a sinful man should be treated with honour. Iustus Many versions have "a sinful rich man," as opposed to the poor man in the former part of the verse. Arnald.

26 Be not overwise &c.] Be not conceited of thy work, nor boast of thy superior skill in thy trade or profession: neither be slothful in the time of poverty, or ashamed to earn thy livelihood by labour. Arnald

28 — glorify thy soul in meekness.] We should connect this with what precedes. If thou art in poverty, be not overwhelmed by it, preserve thy patience and equableness, and give to thy soul honour according to the dignity thereof, that is, preserve its firmness and dignity, and suffer it not to sink into abasement, which is unworthy of it. Calnet

29 — him that sinneth against his own soul.] It seems to refer to the covetous man, him that is so niggardly and covetous as to deny himself even common necessities. Arnald

CHAP. XII.

1. Do not give to the ungodly. 10. Trust not him that is called a friend, nor the wicked.

WHEN thou wilt do good, know to whom thou dost it; so shalt thou be thanked for thy benefits.

2 Do good to the godly man, and thou shalt find recompence; and if not from him, yet from the most High.

3 There can no good come to him that is always beheld in evil, nor to him that giveth no alms.

4 Give to the godly man, and help not a sinner.

5 Do well unto him that is lowly, but give not to the ungodly; hold back thy bread, and give it not unto him, lest he overmaster thee thereby; for [else] thou shalt receive twice as much evil for all the good thou shalt have done unto him.

6 For the most High hateth sinners, and will repay vengeance unto the ungodly, and keepeth them against the mighty day of their punishment.

7 Give unto the good, and help not the sinner.

8 A friend cannot be known in prosperity, and an enemy cannot be hidden in adversity.

9 In the prosperity of a man enemies will be grieved: but in his adversity even a friend will depart.

10 Never trust thine enemy for like as iron rusteth, so is his wickedness.

11 Though he humble himself, and go crouching, yet take good heed and beware of him, and thou shalt be unto him as if thou hadst wiped a lookingglass, and thou shalt know that his rust hath not been altogether wiped away.

12 Set him not by thee, lest, when he hath overthrow thee, he stand up in thy place; neither let him sit at thy right hand, lest he seek to take thy seat, and thou at the last remember my words, and be pricked therewith.

13 Who will pity a charmer that is bitten with a serpent, or any such as come nigh wild beasts?

14 So one that goeth to a smiter, and is defiled with him in his sins, who will pity?

15 For a while he will abide with thee, but if thou begin to fall, he will not tarry.

16 An enemy speaketh sweetly with his lips, but in his heart he imagineth how to throw thee into a pit: he will weep with his eyes, but if he find opportunity, he will not be satisfied with blood.

17 If adversity come upon thee, thou shalt find him there first, and though he pretend to help thee, yet shall he undermine thee.

18 He will shake his head, and clap his hands, and whisper much, and change his countenance.

CHAP. XIII.

1. Keep not company with the proud, in a mightier than thyself. 15. Like mill to like. 21. The difference between the rich and the poor. 25. A man's heart will change his countenance.

HE that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith, and he that hath fellowship with a proud man shall be like unto him.

2 Burden not thyself above thy power while thou livest, and have no fellowship with one that is mightier and richer than thyself: for how agree the kettle and the earthen pot together? for if the one be smitten against the other, it shall be broken.

Chap XII ver. 4 — and help not a sinner.] It seems included here to inculcate, that in the distribution of our charity we could make a distinction of the persons on whom we bestow it, and give to the most deserving. Arnald

5 — lest he overmaster thee thereby.] Lest he strengthen himself in wickedness and abuse thy kindness, and apply the means bid him to thy prejudice and disadvantage. Arnald

10. — like as iron rusteth, so is his wickedness.] As iron or brass, however it be rubbed and cleansed, still contracts rust, so does the illwill of his enemy always return: however he may appear to lay aside his malice, still it will not fail to shew itself again.

11 — as if thou hadst wiped a lookingglass.] Or rather, a mirror made of polished metal, such as was anciently used. See a note on Job xixviii 8. When rust has once gotten into mirrors of this composition, however carefully they may be wiped and polished, still it will be perpetually returning, so as at last to spoil the polish of the mirror, and render it useless. Such is the concealed hatred of a false friend, reconciled only in appearance, his resentment, which is firmly riveted, will soon break out again, and all his former intimacy will be again experienced. Arnald

13 Who will pity a charmer &c.] The sense is, As no one pities those who pretend to charm serpents and are bitten by them, so no one pities the man who associates with sinners, when he is involved in the consequences of their sins. See the note on Jer viii 17.

— wild beasts?] The word so translated includes serpents, vipers, and other such venomous creatures. Arnald

18 — and clap his hands.] In token of his rejoicing at thy misfortunes, "and whisper much" or spread many false reports about thee secretly, "and change his countenance," by quelling other persons from what he appeared to be. Arnald See Job xxxvii 23, and the note there.

10 A wicked eye envieth [his] bread, and he is a niggard at his table.

7 — and at the last he will declare his wickedness.] The sense seems to be, that if such a person ever stumbles on a good action, some tincture of sordidness will discover itself, and spoil the grace of it. Arnald

8 — hath a wicked eye,] See note at Prov xii 9 — and despiseth men.] That is, he overlooks the wants and miseries of other men. Arnald

9 — is not satisfied with his portion,] Is like a dissatisfied guest at the table of another. Allusion seems to be made to the ancient custom of dividing out equal portions to the several guests on festival occasions. Calmet See Gen xlii 24, and the notes here.

10 A wicked eye envieth [his] bread,] Grudges to himself and others the very bread at his table. Arnald

11 — do good to thyself, and give &c.] Do not deny to thyself necessities and conveniences by forbearing to use the good things which God hath given thee to enjoy, nor abstain from offering to God that portion of thy substance which is due. Arnald

12 — that the covenant of the grave is not shewed unto thee.] That the appointed time of thy death is not shewed to thee. Calmet Thou knowest not when thou shalt die.

13 — Defraud not thyself.] In the Latin copies, Deprive not thyself of the blessings of a good day, and let not a portion of the good things which God bestows pass away from thee. By the expression good day the Hebrews mean a festival day. Calmet

16 — and sanctify thy soul,] There is considerable difference for there is no seeking of dainties in the grave.

as to this expression in the various copies. The meaning here seems to be, Use the good things of life in such a manner as God approves. Arnald

18 As of the green leaves &c.] Homer has made a beautiful comparison of the race of men to the leaves of a tree, remarkably similar to this of the Son of Sirach. Calmet

22 — as one that traceth,] As a hunter that tracketh the footsteps of his game. Implying, that wisdom should be pursued with all the eagerness and vigilance of a hunter. Calmet In this verse and those which follow, is an elegant personification of wisdom, as at Prov ix. Junius

23 He that prieth in at her windows.] Allusion seems here to be made to the manner, in which it was the practice of assiduous lovers in ancient times to pay court to their mistresses. The sense of these verses is better given in the Latin version than in our translation. "He that prieth in at her windows and hearkens at her doors, he that lodgeth near her house, — he shall set his children in her shelter, &c. ver 26. Calmet

24 — fasten a pin in her walls.] An expression which implies the having a sure and constant abode with her. See notes at Ezra ix 8, 14 xxii 21. It is a metaphor taken from the fastening of tents with pins. Calmet

1 How God created and furnished man: 2 How all things were created by God: 3 How God created the world, and the things therein

THE Lord created man of the earth, and turned him into it again

2 He gave them few days, and a short time, and power also over the things therein

3 He endued them with strength by themselves, and made them according to his image, flesh, and gave him dominion over beasts and fowls

operations of the Lord, and in the sixth

9 — the people of perdition,] The people devoted to destruction, or fit to be destroyed. The Canaanites seem to be meant here

10 — the six hundred thousand footmen] He speaks of the multitudes who came out from Egypt, who afterwards by their disobedient conduct in the wilderness, provoked the Lord to destroy them during their wanderings for forty years. Moses tells us, that those who bore arms were 600,000, besides women, old men &c. Exod. xii. 37. Calmet

14 Make way for every work of mercy.] The different copies and versions are here much at variance. Some copies give, "The Lord will assign a place (of respect and dignity) to every act of mercy: every one shall find according to his work." The general meaning seems to be, that God will take account of every good deed, and that nothing shall remain without its due recompense.

16 — with an adamant.] That is, most firmly and powerfully.
The adamant being the hardest of stones, it is used to express that which is most strong and not to be overcome. The meaning seems to be that the ways the deities, the councils, of God are placed far above our comprehension so that it is impossible to penetrate into His secrets, or that God dwells in a light to which no mortal can approach. 1 Tim. vi. 16. Calmet place he imparted them understanding, and in the seventh speech, in interpreter of the cogitations thereof.]

6 Counsel, and a tongue, and eyes, ears, and a heart, gave he them to understand

7 Withal he filled them with the knowledge of understanding, and shewed them good and evil

8 He set his eye upon their hearts, that he might shew them the greatness of his works

9 He gave them to glory in his marvellous acts for ever, that they might declare his works with understanding

10 And the elect shall praise his holy name

11 Beside this he gave them knowledge, and the law of life for an heritage

12 He made an everlasting covenant with them, and shewed them his judgments

13 Their eyes saw the majesty of his glory, and their ears heard his glorious voice

14 And he said unto them, Beware of all unrighteousness, and he gave every man commendment concerning his neighbour

15 Their ways are ever before him, and shall not be hid from his eyes

16 Every man from his youth is given to evil, neither could they make to themselves fleshy hearts for stony.

17 For in the division of the nations of the whole earth he set a ruler over every people, but Israel is the Lord's portion

18 Whom, being his firstborn, he nourisheth with discipline, and giving him the light of his love doth not forsake him

19 Therefore all their works are as the sun before him, and his eyes are continually upon their ways.

20 None of their unrighteous deeds are hid from him, but all their sins are before the Lord

21 But the Lord being gracious, and knowing his workmanship, neither left nor forsook them, but spared them

22 The souls of a man is as a signet with him, and he will keep the good deeds of man as the apple of the eye, and give repentance to his sons and daughters.

23 Afterwards he will rise up and reward them, and render their recompence upon their heads

24 But unto them that repent, he granted them return, and comforted those that failed in patience.

25 Return unto the Lord, and forsake thy sins, make thy prayer before his face, and offend less

26 Turn again to the most High, and turn away from iniquity for he will lead thee out of darkness into the light of health, and hate thou abomination vehemently.

27 Who shall praise the most High in the grave, instead of them which live and give thanks?

28 Thanksgiving perisheth from the dead, as from one that is not the living and sound in heart shall praise the Lord

29 How great is the lovingkindness of the Lord our God, and his compassion unto such as turn unto him in holiness

30 For all things cannot be in men, because the son of man is not immortal

— and give repentance to his sons and daughters. These words are not in the Latin copies. As they stand, it seems best to connect them with the following verse, "He will allow time for repentance to their sons &c. but afterwards He will rise up and recompense them, &c." Calmet.

7 Who shall praise the most High &c. This is, the living only can pay their devotions to God, and therefore repentance should not be deferred till the time of death when it will be too late. Arnold.

10 In the holy tabernacle I served before him, and so was I established in Zion.

11 Likewise in the beloved city he gave me rest, and in Jerusalem was my power.

12 And I took root in an honourable people, even in the portion of the Lord's inheritance.

13 I was exalted like a cedar in Libanus, and as a cypress tree upon the mountains of Hermon.

25 He filleth all things with his wisdom, as Phison and as Tigris in the time of the new fruits.

of expression, see note at Prov xxx 15. The "nine things" are enumerated, but in the Latin translation there is added, after the eighth verse, "Blessed is he who findeth a true friend, the addition of which completes the number." Arnald

— he that liveth to see the fall of his enemy. The author here speaks according to the ideas of the Jews on this subject, who, by a corrupt understanding of their law, conceived hatred and revenge to be permitted, as sufficiently appears from our Saviour's words at Matt v 43. Calmet happiness that have been mentioned, and is more glorious than

BLESSED is the man that hath a virtuous wife, for the number of his days shall be double

2 A virtuous woman rejoiceth her husband, and he shall fulfil the years of his life in peace

3 A good wife is a good portion, which shall be given in the portion of them that fear the Lord

4 Whether a man be rich or poor, if he have a good heart toward the Lord, he shall at all times rejoice with a cheerful countenance.

5 There be three things that mine heart feareth, and for the fourth I was sore afraid: the slander of a city, the gathering together of an unruly multitude, and a false accusation: all these are worse than death

6 But a grief of heart and sorrow is a woman that is jealous over another woman, and a scourge of the tongue which communicateth with all

7 An evil wife is as a yoke shaken to and fro: he that hath hold of her is as though he held a scorpion

8 A drunken woman and a gadder abroad causeth great anger, and she will not cover her own shame

9 The whoredom of a woman may be known in her haughty looks and eyelids

10 If thy daughter be shameless, keep her in straitly, lest she abuse herself through overmuch liberty

11 Watch over an impudent eye and marvel not if she trespass against thee.

12 She will open her mouth, as a thirsty traveller when he hath found a fountain, and drink of every water near her: by every hedge will she sit down, and open her quiver against every arrow

13 The grace of a wife delighteth her husband, and her discretion will fatten his bones

14 A silent and loving woman is a gift of the Lord: and there is nothing so much worth as a maid well instructed

15 A shamefaced and faithful woman is a double grace, and her contented mind cannot be valued

16 As the sun when it appeareth in the high heaven, so is the beauty of a good wife in the ordering of her house.

17 As the clear light is upon the holy candlestick, so is the beauty of the face in ripe age.

18 As the golden pillars are upon the sockets of silver, so are the ten feet with a constant heart

19 My son, keep the flower of thine age sound; and give not thy strength to strangers.

20 When thou hast gotten a fruitful possession through all the field, sow it with thine own seed, trusting in the goodness of thy stock

21 So thy race which thou leavest shall be magnified, having the confidence of their good descent.

22 An harlot shall be accounted as a spittle; but a married woman is a tower against death to her husband

23 A wicked woman is given as a portion to a wicked man: but a godly woman is given to him that feareth the Lord.

24 A dishonest woman contemneth shame: but an honest woman will reverence her husband

25 A shameless woman shall be counted as a dog, but she that is shamed will fear the Lord

26 A woman that honoureth her husband shall be judged wise of all, but she that dishonoureth him in her pride shall be counted ungodly of all

27 A loud crying woman and a scold shall be sought out to drive away the enemies

2 Forgive thy neighbour &c.] It should be observed in what strong terms the doctrine of forgiveness is here pressed even under the times of the Old Testament. It is from passages such as these that a true judgment of the spirit of the law of Moses is to be formed for in this law, it was the clear intention of God to encourage mutual love, kindness, and forgiveness. Calmet, Ar-

CHAP. XXIX.

1 He must show mercy and lend, but the borrower must not defraud the lender. 9 Give alms. 14 A good man will not undo his surety. 16 To be surety and undertake for others is dangerous. 22 It is better to be at home than to sojourn.

2 He that is merciful will lend unto his neighbour, and he that strengtheneth his hand keepeth the commandments.

3 Lend to thy neighbour in time of his need, and pay thou thy neighbour again in due season.

4 Keep thy word, and deal faithfully with him, and thou shalt always find the thing that is necessary for thee.

5 Many, when a thing was lent them, reckon it to be found, and put them to trouble that helped them.

6 Till he hath received, he will kiss a man's hand; and for his neighbour's money he will speak submissively, but when he should repay, he will prolong the time, and return words of grief, and complain of the time.

7 If he prevail, he shall hardly receive the half, and he will count as if he had found it: if not, he hath deprived him of his money, and he hath gotten him an enemy without cause: he payeth him with cursings and railings, and for honour he will pay him disgrace.

8 Many therefore have refused to lend for other men's ill dealing, fearing to be defrauded.

Look that thou hedge &c ] Meaning that, as it is commendable and need to fence a field "with thorns, and to bind up silver and gold" in a purse, so no less care should be employed in guarding thy mouth and keeping the door of thy lips, that no word may sue thence without being weighed and considered. Arnold see the note on Mic vi 4.

Chap. XXIX ver 1 — he that strengtheneth his hand ] To strengthen the poor man's hand, means to relieve or succour him. Arnold

8 Yet have thou patience with a man in poor estate, and delay not to shew him mercy.

9 Help the poor for the commandment's sake, and turn him not away because of his poverty.

10 Love thy money for thy brother and thy friend, and let it not rust under a stone to be lost.

11 Lay up thy treasure according to the commandments of the most High, and it shall bring thee more profit than gold.

12 Shut up alms in thy storehouses, and it shall deliver thee from all affliction.

13 It shall fight for thee against thine enemies better than a mighty shield and strong spear.

15 Forget not the friendship of thy surety, for he hath given his life for thee.

16 A sinner will overthrow the good estate of his surety.

18 Suretyship hath undone many of good estate, and shaken them as a wave of the sea: mighty men hath it driven from their houses, so that they wandered among strange nations.

19 A wicked man transgressing the commandments of the Lord shall fall into suretyship: and he that undertaketh and followeth other men's business for gain shall fall into suits.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The way of wisdom sheweth the Lord. 2 The way of wisdom is the way of life. 3 Times and seasons are of God. 4 All are in his hands as clay in the hands of the potter. 5 Chiefly regard thyself. 6 Of servants.

7 HERE shall no evil happen unto him that feareth the Lord; but in temptation even again he will deliver him.

8 A wise man hateth not the law; but he that is an hypocrite therein is as a ship in a storm.

9 A man of understanding trusteth in the law; and the law is faithful unto him, as an axle.

10 Prepare what to say, and so thou shalt be heard, and bring up instruction, and then make answer.

11 The heart of the foolish is like a cartwheel; and his thoughts are like a rolling axletree.

12 A stallion horse is as a mocking friend; he neigheth under every one that sitteth upon him.

13 Why doth one day excel another, when at all the light of every day in the year is of the sun?

14 By the knowledge of the Lord they were distinguished, and he altered seasons and feasts.

15 Some of them hath he made high days, and hallowed them, and some of them hath he made ordinary days.

16 And all men are from the ground, and Adam was created of earth.

17 In much knowledge the Lord hath divided them, and made their ways diverse.

18 Some of them hath he blessed and exalted, and some of them hath he sanctified, and set near himself; but some of them hath he cursed and brought low, and turned out of their places.

Of servants.

19 As the clay is in the potter's hand, to fashion it at his pleasure: so man is in the hand of him that made him, to render to them as liketh him best.

20 Good is set against evil, and life against death; so is the godly against the sinner, and the sinner against the godly.

21 So look upon all the works of the most High, and there are two and two, one against another.

22 I awaked up last of all, as one that gathereth after the grapegatherers, by the blessing of the Lord I plighted, and filled my winepress like a gatherer of grapes.

23 Consider that I laboured not for myself only, but for all them that seek learning.

24 Hear me, O ye great men of the people, and hearken with your ears, ye rulers of the congregation.

25 Give not thy son and wife, thy brother and friend, power over thee while thou livest, and give not thy goods to another: lest it repent thee, and thou intreat for the same again.

26 As long as thou livest and hast breath in thee, give not thyself over to any.

27 For better it is that thy children should seek to thee, than that thou shouldst stand to their courtesy.

28 In all thy works keep to thyself the preeminence; leave no stain in thine honour.

29 At the time when thou shalt end thy days, and finish thy life, distribute thine inheritance.

30 Fodder, a wand, and burdens, are for the ass, and bread, correction, and work, for a servant.

31 If thou set thy servant to labour,

11. Good as set against evil, &c.] A general observation respecting the opposition which subsists between things both in the natural and moral world.

16. I awaked up last of all.] The author represents himself as the last of those of his nation who had made collections of moral sentences or proverbs as having only gleaned after others who had preceded him, his design being not to produce a wholly original work, but rather a collection of scattered pieces which were liable to be lost.

24. — for a servant.] For a slave. In the remaining part of this chapter the wise man gives directions respecting the management of slaves. He speaks first of slaves in general, and of those who were ill-disposed and idle, afterwards (vers 30, 31) of good slaves. The condition of slaves in those ancient times was very widely different from that of servants in modern times, as slaves were the entire property of their masters, to whom their persons, possessions, and liberty were entirely subject. We ought to bear these circumstances in mind when we read the precepts respecting slaves here given.

Chap XXXIII ver 2 — is as a ship in a storm.] Has no fixed hope or comfort, and is in continual danger of being wrecked.

8. The heart of the foolish is like a cartwheel.] The thoughts of the foolish are wavering and unsettled, continually turning round.

12. — he neigheth under every one that sitteth upon him.] Thus a false friend imposes on all those who place any confidence in him, exhibiting outward complaisance and satisfaction, not however out of respect to them, or for the purpose of doing them real service, but of the better serving himself, and carrying on his own selfish views.

14. By the knowledge of the Lord.] That is, by the will, the counsel, the wisdom of God, they are distinguished.

18. — so man is in the hand &c.] The author here speaks in general of God's universal providence over all beings, and especially over mankind, of the absolute control which He exercises over all His creatures, compared at the same time with infinite justice and wisdom. See notes at Jer xviii, 6; Rom ix, 20.

26 A yoke and a collar do buy the neck, so are tortures and torments for an evil servant.

27 Send him to labour, that he be not idle, for idleness teacheth much evil.

28 Set him to work, as is fit for him, if he be not obedient, put on more heavy fetters.

29 But be not excessive toward any, and without discretion do nothing.

10 He that hath no experience knoweth little: but he that hath travelled is full of prudence.

11 When I travelled, I saw many things, and I understand more than I can express.

12 I was oftentimes in danger of death, yet I was delivered because of these things.

13 The spirit of those that fear the Lord shall live; for their hope is in him that saveth them.

14 Whoso feareth the Lord shall not fear: for he is his hope.

15 Blessed is the soul of him that feareth the Lord, to whom doth he look? who is his strength?

16 For the eyes of the Lord are upon them that love him, he is their mighty protection and strong stay, a defence from heat, and a cover from the sun at noon, a preservation from stumbling, and from falling.

17 He raiseth up the soul, and lighteneth the eyes: he giveth health, life, and blessing.

18 He that sacrificeth of a thing wrongfully gotten, his offering is ridiculous, and the gifts of unjust men are not accepted.

19 The most High is not pleased with the offerings of the wicked, neither is he pacified for sin by the multitude of sacrifices.

20 Whoso bringeth an offering of the goods of the poor doeth as one that killeth the son before his father's eyes.

21 The bread of the needy is their life: he that defraudeth him thereof is a man of blood.

22 He that taketh away his neighbour's living slayeth him; and he that defraudeth the labourer of his hire is a bloodshedder.

23 When one buildeth, and another pulleth down, what profit have they then but labour?

24 When one prayeth, and another curseth, whose voice will the Lord hear?

— to a faithful mouth.] Rather, "in a faithful mouth," in the mouth of a faithful person. Calvert

12 — because of these things.] By means of the knowledge and experiences which I had acquired. Arnald

20 — doth as one that killeth the son &c.] God is the Father, and Protector of the poor; to take away their property is in a manner to take away their life, and to offer to God that which has been forcibly taken from the poor, is to shed the blood of the son before the eyes of the father. Calvert

12. He that washeth himself after the doth his fasting profit him?

11. Give unto the most High according as he hath enriched thee, and as thou hast gotten, give with a cheerful eye.

12. For the Lord recompenseth, and will give thee seven times as much.

12. Do not think to corrupt with gift, for such he will not receive: and trust not to unrighteous sacrifices; for the Lord is judge, and with him is no respect of persons.

13. He will not accept any person against a poor man, but will hear the prayer of the oppressed.

14. He will not despise the supplication of the fatherless, nor the widow, when she poureth out her complaint.

15. Do not the tears run down the widow's cheeks? and is not her cry against him that causeth them to fall?

16. He that serveth the Lord shall be accepted with favour, and his prayer shall reach unto the clouds.

17. The prayer of the humble pierceth the clouds, and till it come nigh, he will not be comforted; and will not depart, till the most High shall be hold to judge righteously, and execute judgment.

18. For the Lord will not be slack, neither will the Mighty be patient toward them, till he have smitten in sunder the loins of the unmerciful, and repayed vengeance to the heathen, till he have taken away the multitude of the proud, and broken the sceptre of the unrighteous.

Chap. XXXV. ver. 1. He that keepeth the law &c. The author having shewn in the preceding chapter the vanity and inutility of offering unto God the sacrifices of iniquity and oblations unjustly acquired, now points out what are the true offerings which God requires; namely, justice, innocence, and obedience to His law. He who is a faithful observer of God's commandments, honours Him in a more perfect manner than he who offers to Him multitudes of victims. Chilnel.

17. and till it come nigh, he will not be comforted. Meaning, back till it has succeeded in its object. Arnold.

Chap. XXXVI. ver. 1. Have mercy upon us, &c. The author, having in the last chapter spoken of offerings to God, and of the disposition that should accompany them, here utters a prayer to God, beseeching Him to look with favour on His people afflicted, and dispersed. At the time when this was written, the Jews were dispersed through Egypt, Syria, and distant provinces of the East. Those who were in Judea and Jerusalem, being subject sometimes to the kings of Syria and sometimes to those of Egypt were alternately the victims of the ambition of one and the other. The pious Israelites, afflicted by these humiliating circumstances, earnestly prayed to God that He would restore tranquillity to His people, and turn the hearts of their enemies.

Abnet. The first part of this prayer is cited by St. Austin, as a kind of prophetic prayer for the coming of the Messiah. Pious supplications, such as this, for some future blessings indistinctly described, proceeded from a confidence in the promises of the Prophets, and the Jews, who in the expectation of their Messiah, had, at first, regard only to one advent, looked to the full accomplishment of the prophecies in His arrival, and therefore allude in their prayers to the expected conversion of the Gentiles, and other matters connected with that event. D. Gray.

24 As his ways are plain unto the holy, so are they stumblingblocks unto the wicked.

25 For the good are good things created from the beginning so evil things for sinners.

26 The principal things for the whole use of man's life are water, fire, iron, and salt, flour of wheat, honey, milk, and the blood of the grape, and oil, and clothing.

27 All these things are for good to the godly so to the sinners they are turned into evil.

28 There be spirits that are created for vengeance, which in their fury lay on sore strokes, in the time of destruction they pour out their force, and appease the wrath of him that made them.

1 Many miseries in a man's life. 12 The reward of unrighteousness, and the fruit of true dealing. 17 An virtuous wife and an honest friend rejoice the heart, but the fear of the Lord is above all. 28 I begin my life is hateful.

GREAT travail is created for every man, and an heavy yoke is upon the sons of Adam, from the day that they go out of their mother's womb, till the day that they return to the mother of all things.

6 A little or nothing is his rest, and afterward, he is in his sleep, as in a day of keeping watch, troubled in the vision of his heart, as if he were escaped out of a battle.

7 When all is safe, he awaketh, and marvelleth that the fear was nothing.

8 [Such things happen] unto all flesh, both man and beast, and that is sevenfold more upon sinners.

— for in time they shall all be well approved. Thus it is only our ignorance, or partial consideration of the work of nature that makes us think we see great faults in them. But if we examine into them more closely, or if we try to mend them it very soon appears that the mistake is in ourselves. Bp. Iong.

Chap. XL ver 2 Their imagination of things &c. This passage is thought to be corrupt. The construction is perplexed and chiefly so for want of a verb to connect the whole and give it a definite sense, which our translators have attempted to supply by inserting the verbs 'trouble' and 'change'. In Egypt where the author of this book is thought to have written the common people usually wear linen frocks dyed with indigo. 27 The fear of the Lord is a fruitful garden, and covereth him above all glory.

14 Keep discipline in peace.] In time of peace, that is in prosperity for then there is most need of prudence. Crotius

— iniquity.] Meaning a public injury against the state as unjust dealing means a private one. Badnell

19 And of theft in regard of the place where thou sojournest.] The notion seems here particularly to caution against theft in a place of common resort that is in a place where travellers sojourn. In the common sense of the fact for the accommodation of travellers there is no distinction between the apartment where different persons lodge under the same circumstance the commission of theft is particularly evil but it is deemed peculiarly heinous to take advantage of such an unneeded situation. Harmer

— and to lean with thine elbow upon the meat.] Indicating a want of decorum and of gratitude towards your entertainer. Badnell Perhaps something more than want of decorum may be intended there may be an allusion to the selfish greediness of a person who while he is eating one thing, covers another with his arm, in order to secure it to himself — and of scorning to give and take.] The word rendered scorning means cheating. The sense is that in matters of commerce we should be ashamed to be dishonest, and should both give and receive with honour and justice. Arnold

20 — silence before them that salute thee.] Meaning a want of courtesy in returning salutations.

21 — or to take away a portion or a gift.] That is to deprive any one of what belongs to him, or has been given to him. Badnell

There is a shameful meanness still practised in the East by persons of a superior station who frequently seize on the presents made to those that are below them. It may seem from the expression of the text that this species of rapacity is of ancient date. Harmer

The sun when it appeareth, declaring at his rising a marvellous instrument, the work of the most High.

At noon it parcheth the country, and who can abide the burning heat thereof?

A man blowing a furnace is in works of heat, but the sun burneth the mountains three times more, breathing out fiery vapours, and sending forth bright beams, it burneth the eyes.

Great it is the Lord that made it, and at his commandment it runneth hastily.

He made the moon also to serve in her season for a declaration of times, and a sign of the world.

From the moon is the sign of feasts, a light that decreaseth in her perfection.

The month is called after her name, increasing wonderfully in her changing, being an instrument of the armies above, shining in the firmament of heaven.

The beauty of heaven, the glory of the stars, an ornament giving light in the highest places of the Lord.

At the commandment of the Holy One they will stand in their order, and never faint in their watches.

Look upon the rainbow, and praise him that made it, very beautiful it is in the brightness thereof.

It compasseth the heaven about with a glorious curb, and the hands of the most High have banded it.

its contrary in nature, and the one is opposed to the other: night to day, evil to good, death to life, cold to heat, dry to wet &c. Arnold

One thing establisheth the good of another.] For contraries mutually recommend each other by their very vicissitude. Arnold

CHAP. XIII. ver. 1. The pride of the height &c.] Dr Grabe thinks that this chapter ought to begin with ver. 15 of the last. The subject and connexion seem to require it. The sense is Who can be filled with contemplating his glory: namely the immensity of light, the vast expanse of clearness, the general face of the heaven exhibiting to the sight a most glorious view? Arnold

It decreaseth in her perfection.] In her consummation, decreaseth gradually till her final disappearing. Arnold 18 By his commandment he maketh the show to fall upon, and sendeth swiftly the lightnings of his judgment.

14 Through all the treasures are opened: and clouds fly forth as doves.

15 By his great power he maketh the clouds firm, and the hailstones are broken, small.

16 At his sight the mountains are shaken, and at his will the south wind bloweth.

17 The noise of the thunder maketh the earth to tremble: so doth the northern storm and the whirlwind: as birds flying he scattereth the snow, and the falling down thereof is as the lighting of grasshoppers.

18 The eye marvelleth at the beauty of the whiteness thereof, and the heart is astonished at the raining of it.

19 The hoarfrost also as salt he poureth on the earth, and being congealed, it lieth on the top of sharp stakes.

20 When the cold north wind bloweth, and the water is congealed into ice, it abideth upon every gathering together of water, and clotheh the water as with a breastplate.

21 It devoureth the mountains, and burneth the wilderness, and consumeth the grass as fire.

22 A present remedy of all is a brief coming speedily: a dew coming after he it refresheth.

23 By his counsel he appeaseth the deep, and planteth islands therein.

24 They that sail on the sea tell of the danger thereof, and when we hear it with our ears, we marvel thereat.

25 For therein be strange and wondrous works, variety of all kinds of beasts and whales created.

26 By him the end of them hath prosperous success, and by his word all things consist.

5 — being an instrument of the armies above.] The meaning of these words has been variously conjectured. "An instrument of God in the armies of heaven, alluding to the stars, as the heavenly host." Junius

17 — as the lighting of grasshoppers.] "Rather, of locusts, as the lighting of a flight of locusts."

19 — it lieth on the top of sharp stakes.] The marginal reading is preferable, meaning that it has the form of sharp points. Arnold

21 It devoureth the mountains.] Destroys all the fruits and produce of the mountains. Junius

23 — and planteth.] And hath planted. Calmet

26 By him the end of them hath prosperous success.] That is, God by his wisdom and power direct all things to a good end, or to their proper end. Arnold

27 We may speak much, and yet come short, wherefore in sum, he is all.

28 How shall we be able to magnify him? for he is great above all his works.

29 The Lord is terrible and very great, and marvellous is his power.

30 When ye glorify the Lord, exalt him as much as ye can; for even yet will he far exceed. and when ye exalt him, put forth all your strength, and be not weary, for ye can never go far enough.

31 Who hath seen him, that he might tell us? and who can magnify him as he 32 There are yet hid greater things than these be, for we have seen but a few of his works.

33 For the Lord hath made all things; and to the godly hath he given wisdom.

CHAP. XLIV.

The praise of certain holy men: 16 of Enoch, 17 Noah, 18 Abraham, 22 Isaac, 23 and Jacob.

LET us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us.

2 The Lord hath wrought great glory by them through his great power from the beginning.

3 Such as did bear rule in their kingdoms, men renowned for their power, giving counsel by their understanding, and declaring prophecies.

4 Leaders of the people by their counsels, and by their knowledge of learning meet for the people, wise and eloquent in their instructions.

5 Such as found out musical tunes, and recited verses in writing.

6 Rich men furnished with ability, living peaceably in their habitations.

7 All these were honoured in their generations, and were the glory of their times.

8 There be of them, that have left a name behind them, that their praises might be reported.

9 And some there be, which have no memorial, who are perished, as though they had never been; and are become as though they had never been born, and their children after them.

10 But these were merciful men, whose righteousness hath not been forgotten.

11 With their seed shall continually remain a good inheritance, and their children are within the covenant.

12 Their seed standeth fast, and their children for their sakes.

13 Their seed shall remain for ever, and their glory shall not be blotted out.

14 Their bodies are buried in peace, but their name liveth for evermore.

15 The people will tell of their wisdom, and the congregation will show forth their praise.

16 Enoch pleased the Lord, and was translated, being an example of repentance to all generations.

17 Noah was found perfect and righteous, in the time of wrath he was taken in exchange [for the world,] therefore was he left as a remnant unto the earth, when the flood came.

18 An everlasting covenant was made with him, that all flesh should perish no more by the flood.

19 Abraham was a great father of many people, in glory was there none like unto him.

20 Who kept the law of the most High, and was in covenant with him, he established the covenant in his flesh, and when he was proved, he was found faithful.

21 Therefore he assured him by an oath, that he would bless the nations in his seed, and that he would multiply him as the dust of the earth, and exalt his seed as the stars, and cause them to inherit from sea to sea, and from the river unto the utmost part of the land.

22 With Isaac did he establish likewise [for Abraham his father's sake] the blessing of all men, and the covenant.

23 And made it rest upon the head of Jacob. He acknowledged him in his

Chap XLIV. Having completed his precepts, and the exposition of the works of God, the author here directs upon a new subject. It was customary for commemoration of famous men to be made in the temple, and, after the example of the temple in the synagogues of these commemorations we have in this chapter a specimen, abounding in Hebrew eloquence.

* Ver 10 But these were merciful men.] Namely, such as have left a name behind them, ver 8 (Hebrew) "Merciful men," or men compassionate, humane, and disposed to benevolence and beneficence. Budnall

16 Enoch pleased the Lord.] Havn, hitherto spoken in general concerning the ancestors of the Jew, the author now comes to particular specifying those individuals of whom the Holy Spirit has recorded an honourable testimony in the sacred Scriptures. Budnall — an example of, or rather.] Exemplary in his perfect righteousness, wanted to faith, and the following generation to repentance.

17 — he was taken in exchange.] Meaning that the whole human race had derived to purchase by the deluge. So that the first part of the whole posterity derived in his family. Budnall have the dignity of the priesthood for ever

25 According to the covenant made with David son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah, that the inheritance of the king should be to his posterity alone, so the inheritance of Aaron should also be unto his seed.

26 God give you wisdom in your heart to judge his people in righteousness, that their good things be not abolished, and that their glory may endure for ever.

CHAP. XLVI

1 The praise of Joshua, 9 of Caleb, 13 of Samuel

Sam 1
7 18
Deut 34 9
Josh 1 9
1 12 7

JESUS the son of Nave was valiant in the wars, and was the successor of Moses in prophecies, who according to his name was made great for the saving of the elect of God, and taking vengeance of the enemies that rose up against them, that he might set Israel in their inheritance.

2 How great glory gat he, when he did lift up his hands, and stretched out his sword against the cities!

3 Who before him so stood to it? for the Lord himself brought his enemies unto him.

Josh 10

4 Did not the sun go back by his means? and was not one day as long as two?

5 He called upon the most high Lord, when the enemies pressed upon him on every side, and the great Lord heard him.

6 And with hailstones of mighty power he made the battle to fall violently upon the nations, and in the descent [of Beth-horon] he destroyed them that resisted, that the nations might know all their strength, because he fought in the sight of the Lord, and he followed the Mighty One.

7 In the time of Moses also he did a work of mercy, he and Caleb the son of Iephunne, in that they withstood the congregation, and withheld the people from sin, and appeased the wicked murmuring.

Deut 1 1

8 And of six hundred thousand people on foot, they two were preserved to bring them into the heritage, even unto the land that floweth with milk and honey.

9 The Lord gave strength also unto Caleb, which remained with him unto his old age, so that he entered upon the high places of the land, and his seed obtained it for an heritage.

10 That all the children of Israel might see that it is good to follow the Lord.

11 And concerning the judge, every one by name, whose heart went not to whoring, nor departed from the Lord, let their memory be blessed.

12 Let their bones flourish out of their place, and let the name of them that were honoured be continued upon their children.

13 Samuel, the prophet of the Lord, beloved of his Lord, established a kingdom, and anointed princes over his people.

14 By the law of the Lord he judged the congregation, and the Lord had respect unto Jacob.

15 By his faithfulness he was found a true prophet, and by his word he was known to be faithful in vision.

16 He called upon the mighty Lord, when his enemies pressed upon him on every side, when he offered the sucking lamb.

17 And the Lord thundered from heaven, and with a great noise made his voice to be heard.

18 And he destroyed the rulers of the Tyrians, and all the princes of the Philistines.

19 And before his long sleep he made protestations in the sight of the Lord and his anointed, I have not taken any man's goods, so much as a shoe, and no man did accuse him.

20 And after his death he prophesied, and shewed the king his end, and lifted up his voice from the earth in prophecy, to blot out the wickedness of the people.

CHAP. XLVII

1 The praise of Nathan 2 of David, 12 of Solomon his glory, and infirmities 23 Of his end and punishment their place, in their sepulchre. This is a form of benediction on the bodies of those who had departed in piety. Expressions of this kind shew the hope entertained by the Jews at this time of a resurrection from the grave. Chalmers

Let the memory of their name be never extinguished, but let it survive and flourish for ever. Badnell. Here is an allusion to the custom of placing sepulchres in gardens and such other verdant places. Kings xxi 18 20 John xix 41 Cratichus Small

20 And after his death he prophesied. See the notes on 1 Sam xxviii 12, especially Dr Delaney

26 God give you wisdom &c.] The wise man concludes this chapter with a pious wish or prayer that God may give to all who are the seed and successors of Aaron, wisdom to instruct and guide His people in righteousness, and to preserve them in prosperity and peace. Arnald

Chap XLVI ver 1 Jesus the son of Nave.] Joshua the son of Nun. The substitution of Nave for Nun seems to be an ancient error of the Greek copyists. Chalmers

— according to his name.] See the note on Josh 1 1

12 Let their bones flourish out of their place, &c.] Rather, in Vor II

Before
about 200
thy wondrous deeds, and who may glory like unto thee!

5 Who didst raise up a dead man from death, and his soul from the place of the dead, by the word of the most High.

6 Who broughtest kings to destruction, and honourable men from their bed.

7 Who heardest the rebuke of the Lord in Sinai, and in Horeb the judgment of vengeance.

8 Who anointedst kings to take revenge, and prophets to succeed after him.

9 Who wast taken up in a whirlwind of fire, and in a chariot of fiery horses.

10 Who wast ordained for reproofs in thy times, to pacify the wrath of the Lord's judgment, before it brake forth into fury, and to turn the heart of the father unto the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob.

11 Blessed are they that saw thee, and deft in love, for we shall surely live.

12 Elias it was, who was covered with a whirlwind, and Eliseus was filled with his spirit: whilst he lived, he was not moved with the presence of any prince, neither could any bring him into subjection.

13 No word could overcome him; and after his death his body prophesied.

14 He did wonders in his life, and at his death were his works marvellous.

15 For all this the people repented not, neither departed they from their sins, till they were spoiled and carried out of their land, and were scattered through all the earth: yet there remained a small people, and a ruler in the house of David.

16 Of whom some did that which was pleasing to God, and some multiplied sins.

17 Ezekias fortified his city, and brought in water into the midst thereof: he digged the hard rock with iron, and made wells for waters.

18 In his time Sennacherib came up, and sent Rabshakes, and lifted up his hand against Sion, and boasted proudly.

7 Who heardest the rebuke of the Lord in Sinai, &c.] Elijah fleeing from the persecution of Jezebel came at length to mount Sinai, and to Horeb the mount of God: here he learnt God's intended judgments against the house of Ahab and the whole kingdom of Israel. This appears to be the author meaning. Arnold.

10 Who wast ordained for reproofs &c.] Elijah was ordained or appointed to appear again, to denounce reproofs: and by threats of the greatest impending evils to reform the world, reconcile the Jewrites, prevent God's judgments, and prepare all for the great and terrible day of the Lord's appearing. It was the opinion of the Jews, that Elijah should first come himself in person before the Messiah, and restore all things. Arnold.

Some prefer the rendering of the margin: Who wast written of, meaning in the prophecy of Malachi as the type of the fore-

19 Then troubled their hearts, and hands, and they were in pain, as women in travail.

20 But they called upon the Lord which is merciful, and stretched out their hands toward him: and immediately the Holy One heard them out of heaven, and delivered them by the ministry of Isaac.

21 He smote the host of the Assyrians, and his angel destroyed them.

22 For Ezekias had done the thing that pleased the Lord, and was strong in the ways of David his father: and he was a prophet, who was great and faithful in his vision, had commanded him.

23 In his time the sun went backward, and he lengthened the king's life.

24 He saw by an excellent spirit what should come to pass at the last, and he comforted them that mourned in Sion.

25 He shewed what should come to pass for ever, and secret things of ever they came.

CHAP. XLIX.

1 The praise of Josias, 4 of David and of the last 6 of Jeremy, 8 of Ezekiel, 11 Zorobabel, 13 Jesus the son of Josadak, 15 of Neemeas, 17 of Sennacherib, 19 of Adam.

THE remembrance of Josias like the composition of the perfume that is made by the art of the apothecary: it is sweet as honey in all mouths, and as music at a banquet of wine.

2 He behaved himself uprightly in the conversion of the people, and took away the abominations of iniquity.

3 He directed his heart unto the Lord, and in the time of the ungodly he established the worship of God.

4 All, except David and Ezekias and Josias, were defective: for they forsook the law of the most High, even the kings of Judah.

5 Therefore he gave them power unto others, and their glory to a strange nation.

6 They burnt the chosen city of the remnant of the Anath.

11 — for no shall surely live.] According to the common interpretation, this respect the hope of a general resurrection; otherwise by a mode of expression frequently usual with the Jews, it may refer to the expected restoration of the Jewish Church from its low afflicted state. Arnold.

13 — This is.] Or Elijah.

14 — after his death has long prophesied.] That wrought miracles, which were signs of a Prophet. See the place referred to in the margin. Grotius.

Chap. XLIX ver. 1 All except David — were defective.] That fell into idolatry, or suffered idolatrous worship in their kingdoms. Grotius. See the note on 1 Sam. xii. 11.

in cities, and made the streets desolate, according to the prophecy of Jeremias.

7 For they entreated him evil, who nevertheless was a prophet, sanctified in his mother's womb, that he might root out, and afflict, and destroy, and that he might build up also, and plant.

8 It was Ezekiel who saw the glorious vision, which was showed him upon the chariot of the cherubims.

9 For he made mention of the enemies under the feet of the sun, and directed them that went right.

10 And of the twelve prophets let the memorial be blessed, and let their bones flourish again out of their place, for they comforted Jacob, and delivered them by a word of hope.

11 How shall we magnify Zorobabel? even he was as a signet on the right hand.

12 So was Jesus the son of Josedece, who in that time builded the house, and set up in holy temple to the Lord, which was prepared for everlasting glory.

13 And among the elect was Neemias, who is known is great, who raised up for us the wall that were fallen, and set up the gates and the bus, and raised up our ruins again.

14 But upon the earth was no man reckoned like Enoch, for he was taken from the earth.

15 Neither was there a man born like unto Joseph, a governor of his brethren, a stay of the people, whose bones were regarded of the Lord.

16 Sam and Seth were in great honour among men, and so was Adam above every living thing in the creation.

CHAP I

1 Of Simon the son of Onias. 2 How the people were taught to pray to God, and pray. 3 The conclusion.

SIMON the high priest, the son of Onias, who in his life repaired the house again, and in his days fortified the temple.

2 And by him was built from the foundation the double height, the high fortress of the wall about the temple.

1. — He had mention of the enemies &c.] Under the image of the cherubim, and out what was to befall the enemies of the Lord.
2. — He had mention of the enemies &c.] See the conclusion.

3. — He had mention of the enemies &c.] See the conclusion.

4. — He had mention of the enemies &c.] Being translated from Egypt to the promised land, according to the promise made to Abraham. See the margin reference.

5. In his days the eastern to receive water, being in compass as the sea, was covered with plates of brass. Before CHRIST about 1000.

6 He took care of the temple that it should not fall, and fortified the city against besieging.

7 How was he honoured in the midst of the people in his coming out of the sanctuary.

8 He was as the morning star in the midst of a cloud, and as the moon at the full.

9 As the sun shining upon the temple of the most High, and as the rainbow giving light in the bright clouds.

10 And as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, as lilies by the rivers of waters, and as the branches of the frankincense tree in the time of summer.

11 As fire and incense in the censer, and as a vessel of beaten gold set with all manner of precious stones.

12 And as a fair olive tree budding forth fruit, and as a cypress tree which groweth up to the clouds.

13 When he put on the robe of honour, and was clothed with the perfection of glory, when he went up to the holy altar, he made the garment of holiness honourable.

14 When he took the portions out of the priests' hands, he himself stood by the hearth of the altar, compassed with his brethren round about, as a young cedar in Libanus, and as palm trees compassed they him round about.

15 So were all the sons of Aaron in their glory, and the oblations of the Lord in their hands, before all the congregation of Israel.

16 And finishing the service at the altar, that he might adorn the offering of the most high Almighty.

17 He stretched out his hand to the cup, and poured of the blood of the grape, he poured out at the foot of the altar a sweet-smelling savour unto the most high King of all.

18 Then shouted the sons of Aaron, and [Chap I ver 1 Simon the high priest the son of Onias.] We find mentioned in Jewish history two Simons, sons of Onias, both high priests. It is probable that the Simon here intended is he who is by Josephus surnamed the Just on account of his great piety towards God, and of his benevolence to the children of his people. He was probably contemporary with the author of this book, who appears at ver 11, 12 to speak as if he had seen him in his holy office. Drusus, Calmet, Trinit.

sounded the silver trumpets, and made a great noise to be heard, for a remembrance before the most High.

17 Then all the people together fasted, and fell down to the earth upon their faces to worship their Lord God Almighty, the most High.

18 The singers also sang praises with their voices, with great variety of sounds was there made sweet melody.

19 And the people besought the Lord, the most High, by prayer before him that is merciful, till the solemnity of the Lord was ended, and they had finished his service.

20 Then he went down, and lifted up his hands over the whole congregation of the children of Israel, to give the blessing of the Lord with his lips, and to rejoice in his name.

21 And they bowed themselves down to worship the second time, that they might receive a blessing from the most High.

22 Now therefore bless ye the God of all, which only doeth wondrous things every where, which exalteth our days from the womb, and dealeth with us according to his mercy.

27 Jesus the son of Snach of Jerusalem hath written in this book the instruction of understanding and knowledge, who out of his heart poured forth wisdom.

28 Blessed is he that shall be exercised in these things, and he that loveth them up in his heart shall become wise.

29 For if he do them, he shall be trove to all things for the light of the Lord leadeth him, who giveth wisdom to the godly. Blessed be the Lord for ever. Amen, Amen.

CHAP. II

A Prayer of Jesus the son of Snach.

I WILL thank thee, O Lord and King, and praise thee, O God my Saviour. I do give praise unto thy name.

2 For thou art my defender and helper, and hast preserved my body from destruction, and from the snare of the clunderous tongue, and from the lips that forge lies, and hast been mine helper against mine adversaries.

3 And hast delivered me according to the multitude of thy mercies and goodness of thy name, from the teeth of them that were ready to devour me, and out of the hands of such as sought after my life, and from the manifold afflictions which I had,

4 From the choking of fire on every side, and from the midst of the fire which I kindled not,

5 From the depth of the belly of hell, from an unclean tongue, and from lying words.

26 They that sit upon the mountain of Samaria. Rather upon mount Sen. that is the Idumeans. Drusus Corneilius.

and that foolish people that dwell in Sichein. Namely, the Samaritans whom he undervalues and cruelly allows to be worthy of the name of a people either because they were a mixed multitude. See King xviii. 24, or because they were apostate and held many erroneous tenets, and particularly favoured the doctrines of the Sadducees. Isaiah. The Idumeans, the Philistines, and the Samaritans were the three people particularly hostile to the Jew. Genesis.

Chap. II. The author finisheth his work with a prayer or hymn from which we learn many particulars relating to his life as the dangers he met with, the favour of God in delivering him, his travels for the acquisition of wisdom, his application to and success in it, and his earnest exhortation to the study of it which we likewise find in the body of the work. It appears from it, that he was brought in danger of his life before the king on an unjust accusation probably a charge of some offence against the state but whether it was before a king of Syria or of Egypt that he was accused is uncertain. Isaiah.

21 And they bowed themselves down to worship &c.] We see from this passage, that when the Jews received the blessing from the priest they received it kneeling or bowing down their head. In the primitive times of Christianity it was customary for the deacon in order to prepare the people the better for it to call out immediately before the benediction, Bow down to the blessing. The blessing of the bishop or priest was so highly esteemed in the primitive times, that none durst go out of the church without receiving it. Isaiah.

22 Now therefore bless ye the God of all &c.] We may learn from this short prayer of the wise man, how to compose and regulate our own. We should acknowledge God to be omnipresent and almighty that, ever since we were born, we have been preserved by His good providence every day, hour, and moment and that it is an instance of His great mercy thus to be mindful of our preservation and being sinful as we are and justly exposed to punishment. The conclusion of this prayer seems to contain more than a petition for peace and temporal blessings it manifests the impatience of the writer and his countrymen for the Messiah, and their earnest wish that God would speedily send the blessing of all men, "to perform the mercy promised to their fathers, and to remember His holy covenant, Luke 1. 7. Arnald.

Ver 10 I called upon the Lord, the Father of my Lord ] Most of the interpreters observe, that the second Person in the Trinity is here plainly distinguished from the Father. A very pious and learned prelate (Ep. Beveridge) says that the author speaks as plainly here of our Lord Christ as David did when he said The Lord said unto my Lord, Ps. cxl. to which probably he allude and plainly gives us to understand that not only the Prophets but all God's faithful people in those days believe the Lord the Almighty God to be the Father of One who was Himself also the Lord and in a peculiar manner their Lord and Saviour and that in their prayers they had a respect unto Him, and prayed in His name calling upon the Lord as the Father of "their Lord Christ Matt. xxvi. 61 John i. 49 and so expecting only to be heard upon His account, and for His sake, who was promised by the name of the Lord, Dan. ix. 17, for Daniel prays in His name as plainly as we do now saying, Now therefore O our God hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary that is desolate for the Lord sake that is for the Lord Christ sake for no other Lord can possibly be meant there Arnold

INTRODUCTION.

THE author of this book professes himself to be Baruch, a person of very illustrious birth and distinguished by his attachment to Jeremiah by whom he was employed, as a scribe or secretary, to write his prophecies, and on some occasions to read them to those again whom they were directed. St Jerome, Grotius and others are however of opinion, that the book was not written by Baruch in the Hebrew language but by some Hellenistical Jew, who assumed the character of Baruch, and that the letter which forms a part of the book, was fabricated by his own invention. But there is perhaps no sufficient reason to dispute the authenticity of the five first chapters, and the sixth chapter, which is probably spurious, did not originally belong to this book. The Greek edition of these five chapters abounds with Hebraisms, and they were probably written in Hebrew though not now extant in that language, and not admitted into the Hebrew canon because Baruch, however he might have assumed the prophetic character and have sought great things for himself, (Jer xlv 3) was not endowed with the gift of inspiration though he was on one occasion made the subject of a Divine revelation, and honoured by a consolatory assurance from God.

The author, in consistency with the character of Baruch, whether rightly or falsely assumed describes himself as the son of one of the great men of Maassias, who were men of eminence in their country. He affirms that he wrote the book at Babylon in the fifth year and in the seventh day of the month after the Chaldeans had taken and burnt Jerusalem by which must be understood the fifth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin called also Jeconiah, and Coniah which corresponds with the fifth year of the reign of Zedekiah, and the year of the world 3400, when Baruch accompanied his brother Sennai to Babylon who was deputed from Zedekiah to solicit the restoration of the sacred vessels of the temple, which had been carried away among the spoil. It has been objected as inconsistent with the account, that Jerusalem is in this book represented as burnt and in circumstances of distress greater than should seem to have occurred at the time that Jehoiachin was taken prisoner and slain. But allowing for those exaggerations which are customary in the description of great afflictions, there is no particular in the detail of circumstances which might not have happened during the siege of Jerusalem in the reign of Jehoiachin, when the Jews might have seen part of their city burnt and have suffered from the most cruel extremities of famine.

It is probable that Baruch was more immediately commissioned by Jeremiah to utter at Babylon those prophecies which were intrusted to Sennai, Jer li 59—64, and that he actually did read to Jehoiachin and others whom they concerned those prophecies contained in the sixteenth and fifty-first chapters of Jeremiah, which promised deliverance to the Jews from their captivity and the future destruction of Babylon, though when Baruch speaks of having read the words of this book to the people by the river Sidon it seems to allude only to the epistle that forms the chief subject of this book, which was sent from Jehoiachin and his associate captives at Babylon, to Jechoniah the son of Chibcias and the people at Jerusalem for Baruch being probably employed to compose the letter may well be conceived to have read it to the king and the nobles for their approbation.

The captives who appear to have been tutored by affliction to a sense of their own unworthiness and to have felt a pious satisfaction at the success of the deputation of Sennai, sent back with the sacred vessels a collection of money to purchase burnt offerings and incense for the altar of the Lord, and accompanied it with a letter to their countrymen, in which they expressed their sentiments of humility and repentance, and their confident hopes of their restoration which the Prophets had encouraged them to expect and which prefigured the future glories of Jerusalem.

The letter, which after the short historical preface begins at the 10th verse of the first chapter contains a confession which the captives recommended to their brethren to be read upon solemn days. It exhorts them to pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar who had complied with their request, and had possibly been indulgent to the captives, to acknowledge that God's judgments were righteous and that by their own disobedience they had provoked the accomplishment of those curses, which God had threatened and which they then experienced and lastly to supplicate His mercies with sorrow and contrition. The prayer was probably used not only by the captives themselves and the sentiment which it contains were similar to those which Daniel and Nehemiah continued to meditate during and after the captivity.

This book was not received as canonical by the Jews or the primitive Church of Christ though it is cited with respect by many of the earlier writers it is not mentioned in the catalogue of St Austin nor in that of the council of Carthage it is expressly excluded with the rest of the Apocryphal books, from the catalogue received from them and later by the Greek church and the members of the Council of Trent were more perplexed and deliberated longer about the admission of Baruch than of any other of the Apocryphal book and they were withheld from rejecting it only by the consideration that part of it were read in the service of the church.

Many ancient writers have cited Baruch under the name of Jeremiah not that they believed that what we now possess under the name of Baruch was actually composed by Jeremiah but that they considered Baruch as a disciple of the Prophet and imagined perhaps that the epistle in the last chapter of his book was really written by Jeremiah to the exiles in the land of the Chaldeans. In the Roman church the book is read at the feast of Pentecost under the name of Jeremiah but many of the Fathers do not scruple to deny its authority.

The letter, which constitutes the sixth chapter of this book, is in some editions of the Greek and in the Arabic which is translated from the Greek, subjoined to the Lamentations. It is omitted by Theodoret in his Commentary and is not to be found in several Greek manuscripts nor in any of the Hebrew copies of Jeremiah's writings. It is probably a spurious work, and is rejected as such by St Jerome, though cited by St Cyprian and others, as an epistle of Jeremiah and supposed by some to be alluded to by the author of the second book of the Maccabees chap i 12, who however only speaks of Jeremiah's general exhortation against idolatry. The letter certainly never was in the Jewish canon. It was probably fabricated by some writer who had studied the character and writings of Jeremiah and it contains judicious and spirited strictures against idolatry of which the vanity is touchably exposed.

Baruch after the execution of his commission appears to have returned to Jerusalem where in conjunction with Jeremiah he suffered much persecution. Jeremiah 3, and witnessed the total destruction of Jerusalem. After this he was driven by Jehoiachin with Jeremiah and the remnant of Judah into Egypt. Jer xliii 1—6 from which count he probably ever returned from his exile and that he went a second time to Babylon and died there about the same time as the world 3400.

CHAP. I.

1 Baruch wrote a book in Babylon. 5 The Jews there wept at the reading of it. 7 They send money and the book to the brethren at Jerusalem.

AND these are the words of the book, which Baruch the son of Nechias, the son of Maaias, the son of Sadechias, the son of Asachias, the son of Chechias, wrote in Babylon,

2 In the fifth year, and in the seventh day of the month, what time as the Chaldeans took Jerusalem, and burnt it with fire.

3 And Baruch did read the words of this book in the hearing of Jeconias the son of Joachim king of Juda, and in the ears of all the people that came to hear the book,

4 And in the hearing of the nobles, and of the king's sons, and in the hearing of the elders, and of all the people, from the lowest unto the highest, even of all them that dwelt at Babylon by the river Sud.

5 Whereupon they wept, tasted, and prayed before the Lord.

6 They made also a collection of money according to every man's power.

7 And they sent it to Jerusalem unto Joachim the high priest, the son of Chelcias, son of Salom, and to the priests, and to all the people which were found with him at Jerusalem,

8 At the same time when he received the vessels of the house of the Lord, that were carried out of the temple, to return them into the land of Juda, the tenth day of the month given, namely, silver vessels, which Sadechias the son of Josiah king of Juda had made.

9 After that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had carried away Jeconias, and the princes, and the captives, and the mighty men, and the people of the land, from Jerusalem, and brought them unto Babylon.

10 And they said, Behold, we have sent you money to buy you burnt offerings, and sin offerings, and incense, and prepare ye manna, and offer upon the altar of the Lord our God.

11 And pray for the life of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and for the life of Balthasar his son, that their days may be upon earth as the days of heaven.

12 And the Lord will give us strength, and lighten our eyes, and we shall live under the shadow of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and under the shadow of Balthasar his son, and we shall serve them many days, and find favour in their sight.

13 Pray for us also unto the Lord our God, for we have sinned against the Lord our God; and unto this day the fury of the Lord and his wrath is not turned from us.

14 And ye shall read this book which we have sent unto you, to make confession in the house of the Lord, upon the feasts and solemn days.

15 And ye shall say, To the Lord our God belongeth righteousness, but unto us the confusion of faces, as it is come to pass.

[Chap. I ver. 1 And these are the words of the book &c.] It begins abruptly, as if it were a continuation of some former work, but the connective particle is often to be observed in the beginning of the historical books of the Hebrews. By 'book,' we are to understand the letter, ver. 12, which Baruch wrote from the captives at Babylon to the Jews who remained in Juda. Arnald

2 [In the fifth year, and in the seventh day of the month.] The name of the month is not specified: it probably means the month Cisleu, corresponding partly with November, the same month in which Jerusalem was taken five years before. Dr Gray

4 — [by the river Sud.] The commentators either take no notice at all, or give no satisfactory account of this river. Some suppose it to be a name for the Euphrates. Arnald

8 [At the same time when he received the vessels &c.] Seruas brother of Baruch was sent by Zedekiah, in the fourth year of his reign, which was the fifth of the captivity of Jeconiah, to solicit from Nebuchadnezzar the vessels which had been carried away from the temple of the Lord. Baruch accompanied his brother on this mission, and on the tenth day of Sivan, which corresponds in part with our May, they obtained restitution of the vessels. It was then that the captives submitted their collection, and wrote the following letter. Concord

— [the vessels which Sadechias had made.] Instead of the golden ones which Solomon had put in the house of the Lord, and which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away. To supply their place, Zedekiah made the silver vessels, which Seruas appears to have now obtained. Jeremah had declared, that the golden vessels should not be soon brought again, chap. xxv. 16, and the most valuable were not restored till the expiration of the captivity, Dan v. 2, 12. Arnald, Dr Gray

10 — [manna.] This is a corrupt reading, as the margin intimates. Arnald

— [and offer upon the altar of the Lord our God.] See Dr Blaney's note on Jer. xli. 5.

11 [Balthasar his son.] Balthazar, here intended, was the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar. See Dan v. 2, and the note there.

12 — [and we shall serve them many days.] The wish and prayer of the Jews is, not that they might 'serve Nebuchadnezzar and his family many days,' but that if, according to their melancholy prospect, they should continue so to serve them, they might 'find favour in their sight, and then servitude in the land of their captivity might be easy, or at least tolerable.' Arnald

15 [And ye shall say, &c.] This book or letter sent by the captives at Babylon properly begins here. It may be divided into three parts. In the first, which ends at chap. iii. 8, they acknowledge their unworthiness, and the justice of God's dealings with them; they entreat His forgiveness of their sins past, and repeat the warnings and threats of the Prophets, whose words and proofs they had notwithstanding rejected. The second part, which begins at ver. 9 of the third chapter, to the beginning of the fourth, recounts the great privileges and advantages which the Jews enjoyed above other nations, in that they had the knowledge this day, unto them of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem,

16 And to our kings, and to our princes, and to our priests, and to our prophets, and to our fathers

17 For we have sinned before the Lord,

18 And disobeyed him, and have not hearkened unto the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in the commandments that he gave us openly 19 Since the day that the Lord brought our forefathers out of the land of Egypt, unto this present day, we have been disobedient unto the Lord our God, and we have been negligent in not hearing his voice.

20 Wherefore the evils cleaved unto us, and the curse, which the Lord appointed by Moses his servant at the time that he brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, to give us a land that floweth with milk and honey, like as it is to see this day

21 Nevertheless we have not hearkened unto the voice of the Lord our God, according unto all the words of the prophets, whom he sent unto us

22 But every man followed the imagination of his own wicked heart, to serve strange gods, and to do evil in the sight of the Lord our God

CHAP. II

The prayer and confession which the Jews at Babylon made, and sent in that book unto the brethren in Jerusalem

THEREFORE the Lord hath made good his word, which he pronounced against us, and against our judges that judged Israel, and against our kings, and against our princes, and against the men of Israel and Juda,

2 To bring upon us great plagues, such as never happened under the whole heaven, as it came to pass in Jerusalem, according of the law of the Most High, and through the direction of the only true wisdom, were made acquainted with the means of real happiness, life, and peace. From the 11th to the end of the fifth chapter is an exhortation to a sincere repentance, and to leave their evil ways by a speedy conversion, with a promise on that condition, of a deliverance from the captivity under which they groaned that the power of their enemies should be subdued and then haughtiness turned into mourning. This pleasing prospect takes up the remainder of the letter, in which the author has many beautiful turns and lively strokes, and is transported even to a degree of rapture in the thoughts of the agreeable change. In particular, the happy times of the Gospel are spoken of with such assurance and clearness, as have given occasion to some to suspect interpolations in several places, the descriptions being too clear and explicit for the darkness of those times especially chap. in 37. It is easy to observe, with respect to the supplicatory to the things that were written in the law of Moses;

3 That a man should eat the flesh of his own son, and the flesh of his own daughter

4 Moreover he hath delivered them to be in subjection to all the kingdoms that are round about us, to be as a reproach and desolation among all the people round about, where the Lord hath scattered them

5 Thus we were cast down, and not exalted, because we have sinned against the Lord our God, and have not been obedient unto his voice

6 To the Lord our God apparent righteousness but unto us and to our fathers open shame, as appeareth this day

7 For all these plagues are come upon us, which the Lord hath pronounced against us

8 Yet have we not prayed before the Lord, that we might turn every one from the imaginations of his wicked heart

9 Wherefore the Lord watched over us for evil, and the Lord hath brought it upon us for the Lord is righteous in all his works which he hath commanded us

10 Yet we have not hearkened unto his voice, to walk in the commandments of the Lord, that he hath set before us

11 And now, O Lord God of Israel, that hast brought thy people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and high arm, and with signs, and with wonders, and with great power, and hast gotten thyself a name, as appeareth this day

12 O Lord our God, we have sinned, we have done ungodly, we have dealt unrighteously in all thine ordinances

13 Let thy wrath turn from us, for we are but a few left among the heathen, where thou hast scattered us

14 Hear our prayers O Lord, and our petitions, and deliver us for thine own sake, part of this prayer that much of it is borrowed from Daniel, and that in the description of the glorious state of the Church, there is frequent allusion to many passages in Isaiah. Arnald

[Chap II ver 3 That a man should eat the flesh &c] See Deut xxviii 56, 57, and the note from bp Newton

1 — in subjection to all the kingdoms that are round about us,] The Jew had been successively delivered to all their enemies, who had in turn exercised against them all kinds of cruelty. The kings of Egypt and of Syria the Edomites, the Philistines, the Moabites, the Ammonites had declared themselves against them at different times. Afterwards they were subjected to the Chaldeans, and despised by all the surrounding nations, as a people without strength, without authority, the mere remnant and ruins of a commonwealth of old so flourishing and so formidable and give us favour in the sight of them which have led us away

15 That all the earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, because Israel and his posterity is called by thy name

16 O Lord; look down from thine holy house, and consider how bow down thine ear, O Lord, to hear us

17 Open thine eyes, and behold; for the dead that are in the graves, whose souls are taken from their bodies, will give unto the Lord neither praise nor righteousness

18 But the soul that is greatly vexed, which goeth stooping and feeble, and the eyes that fail, and the hungry soul, will give thee praise and righteousness, O Lord

19 Therefore we do not make our humble supplication before thee, O Lord our God, for the righteousness of our fathers, and of our kings

20 For thou hast sent out thy wrath and indignation upon us, as thou hast spoken by thy servants the prophets, saying,

21 Thus saith the Lord, Bow down your shoulders to serve the king of Babylon so shall ye remain in the land that I gave unto your fathers

22 But if ye will not hear the voice of the Lord, to serve the king of Babylon,

23 I will cause to cease out of the cities of Juda, and from without Jerusalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of joy, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride and the whole land shall be desolate of inhabitants

24 But we would not hearken unto thy voice, to serve the king of Babylon therefore hast thou made good the words that thou spakest by thy servants the prophets, namely, that the bones of our kings, and the bones of our fathers, should be taken out of their places

25 And, lo, they are cast out to the heat of the day, and to the frost of the night, and they died in great miseries by famine, by sword, and by pestilence

26 And the house which is called by thy name hast thou laid waste, as it is to be seen this day, for the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Juda

27 O Lord our God, thou hast dealt with us after all thy goodness, and according to all that great mercy of thine,

28 As thou spakest by thy servant Moses in the day when thou didst command him to write thy law before the children of Israel, saying,

29 If ye will not hear my voice, surely this very great multitude shall be turned into a small number among the nations, where I will scatter them

30 For I knew that they would not hear me, because it is a stiffnecked people, but in the land of their captivities they shall remember themselves,

31 And shall know that I am the Lord their God for I will give them an heart, and ears to hear:

32 And they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and think upon my name,

33 And return from their stiff neck, and from their wicked deeds for they shall remember the way of their fathers, which sinned before the Lord

34 And I will bring them again into the land which I promised with an oath unto their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall be lords of it, and I will increase them, and they shall not be diminished

35 And I will make an everlasting covenant with them to be their God, and they shall be my people and I will no more drive my people of Israel out of the land that I have given them

1 — that the bones of our kings — should be taken out of their places It was a custom both among Jews and Gentiles to bury with the deceased some of their most valuable effects and ornaments and sometimes to put into the sepulchre a great quantity of money and treasure The Chaldean soldiery, in the hope of finding such deposits, broke up the Jewish sepulchres, and cast out the bones of the deceased out of their graves and spread them before the sun and the moon, thus fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah chap vi 1 & 2 Arnold Canon

2 — that I will make an everlasting covenant with them Hence it appears probable, that the Jews at Babylon, where this author wrote, did not conceive that the prophecies of their nation were exhausted in the first return of the Jews under the Persian king. By virtue of the "everlasting covenant," which God had made with them to "drive them no more out of the land," they seem to have hoped for another, a more perfect and more glorious restoration is foretold by the Prophets, which should be the deliverance of God Himself as the Jews are still wont to call the salvation at the Messiah Bp Chandler thou art merciful: and have pity upon us, because we have sinned before thee.

9 For thou endurest for ever, and we perish utterly.

4 O Lord Almighty, thou God of Israel, hear now the prayers of the dead Israelites, and of their children, which have sinned before thee, and not hearkened unto the voice of thee then God: for the which cause these plagues cleave unto us.

5 Remember not the iniquities of our forefathers: but think upon thy power and thy name now at this time.

6 For thou art the Lord our God, and thee, O Lord, will we praise.

7 And for this cause thou hast put thy fear in our hearts, to the intent that we should call upon thy name, and praise thee in our captivity: for we have called to mind all the iniquity of our forefathers, that sinned before thee.

8 Behold, we are yet this day in our captivity, where thou hast scattered us, for a reproach and a curse, and to be subject to payments, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, which departed from the Lord our God.

9 Hear, Israel, the commandments of life: give ear to understand wisdom.

10 How happeneth it, Israel, that thou art in thine enemies' land, that thou art waken old in a strange country, that thou art defiled with the dead, 11 That thou art counted with them that go down into the grave?

12 Thou hast forsaken the fountain of wisdom.

13 For if thou hadst walked in the way of God, thou shouldst have dwelled in peace for ever.

14 Learn where is wisdom, where is strength, where is understanding, that thou mayest know also where is length of days, and life, where is the light of the eyes, and peace.

15 Who hath found out her place? of who hath come into her treasures?

16 Where are the princes of the heathen become, and such as ruled the beasts upon the earth,

17 They that had their pastime with the fowls of the air, and they that hoarded up silver and gold, wherein men trust, and made no end of their getting?

18 For they that wrought in silver, and were so careful, and whose works are unsearchable, 19 They are vanished and gone down to the grave, and others are come up in their steads.

20 Young men have seen light, and dwelt upon the earth: but the way of knowledge have they not known,

21 Nor understood the paths thereof, nor laid hold of it: their children were far off from that way.

22 It hath not been heard of in Chanaan, neither hath it been seen in The-man.

23 The Agarenes that seek wisdom upon earth, the merchants of Mezar and of The-man, the authors of fables, and searchers out of understanding, none of these have known the way of wisdom, or remembered her paths.

24 O Israel, how great is the house of [Chap. III ver. 1 — the dead Israelites.] It is not an uncommon expression to compare persons under great calamity to dead men, and to speak of them as such. See Ecclesiastical, chap. xxxviii, where the Israelites in their captivity are represented as dead bones, ver. 11, and then return from their dispersion mentioned as the opening of their graves. In like manner, their restoration is described as a resurrection by Isaiah chap. xli. 14. Arnold.

8 — for a reproach and a curse, and to be subject to payments.] The phrase may signify unjust exaction to which the Jews in the land of their captivity were exposed, and which they probably suffered, being at the will and arbitrary pleasure of those who had them in subjection.

The first part of the letter of the captives ends with this verse. Arnold.

10 — thou art defiled with the dead &c.] The sense is, that living among the Chaldeans, they were in a state of continual defilement, dwelling as it were among the tombs. He compares the captive Jews, in a strange country, to a person shut up in a grave or confined in a house with a dead corpse. There is the like expression, Ps. lxxviii. 1. Arnold.

14 Learn where is wisdom, &c.] See the concluding note on Job, chap. xxxviii.

16 — such as ruled the beasts upon the earth.] Namely kings who delighted in hunting, and the diversions of the chase, sporting with animals the most fierce and savage. Compare Jer. xxviii. 6, xxviii. 14. Judith xi. 7. Grotius.

17 They that had their pastime with the fowls of the air.] Hunting was a royal pastime in ancient times. A dominion over the fowls of the air, as well as over the beasts of the earth, is mentioned in Scripture as an instance of the sovereignty of princes. See Dan. ii. 38, Eccl. xxxi. 6. Judith xi. 7. Grotius. Arnold.

23 The Agarenes that seek wisdom.] Called also Ishmaelites. Not only Arabia and the adjacent countries, but the eastern part of the world in general was famous for the study of wisdom or philosophy. See Jer. xlii. 7. Arnold.

— the authors of fables, and searchers out of understanding.] The Orientals in general were very conversant in the practice of teaching by fables and apologues. It was also a principal study of these people, and an art in which they endeavoured to distinguish themselves to propose and resolve enigmas and similitudes. The queen of Sheba is a memorable example of it. 1 Kings x. 1, 2. Calmet.

24 — how great is the house of God.] How extensive is His empire! how great is the number of His subjects! how vast is His dominion! All the earth is His kingdom: all men are in subjection to Him: all things are under His control. But how few are they who enter into His secrets, and partake of His wisdom! Calmet. The writer calls the universe "the house of God."

God! and how large is the place of his possession!

25 Great, and hath none end, high, and unmeasurable.

26 There were the giants famous from the beginning, that were of so great stature and so expert in war.

27 Those did not the Lord choose, neither gave he the way of knowledge unto them.

28 But they were destroyed, because they had no wisdom, and perished through their own foolishness.

29 Who hath gone up into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down from the clouds?

30 Who hath gone over the sea, and found her, and will bring her for pure gold?

31 No man knoweth her way, nor thinketh of her path.

32 But he that knoweth all things knoweth her, and hath found her out with his understanding: he that prepared the earth for evermore hath filled it with fourfooted beasts.

33 He that sendeth forth light, and it goeth, calleth it ayam, and it obeyeth him with fear.

34 The stars shined in their watches, and rejoiced when he calleth them, they say, Here we be, and so with cheerfulness they shewed light unto him that made them.

35 This is our God, and there shall none other be accounted of in comparison of him.

36 He hath found out all the way of knowledge, and hath given it unto Jacob his servant, and to Israel his beloved.

37 Afterward did he shew himself upon earth, and conversed with men. Prov. 8
John 1:14

CHAP. IV

<sup>1</sup> The book of commandments is that wisdom which was commended in the former chapter. <sup>25</sup> The Jews are moved to patience, and to hope for the deliverance.

THIS is the book of the commandments of God, and the law that endureth for ever: all they that keep it shall come to life; but such as leave it shall die.

2 Turn thee, O Jacob, and take hold of it: walk in the presence of the light thereof, that thou mayest be illuminated. † Cf. as the shining before the Righteous

3 Give not thine honour to another, nor the things that are profitable unto thee to a strange nation.

4 O Israel, happy are we for things that are pleasing to God are made known unto us.

5 Be of good cheer, my people, the memorial of Israel.

6 Ye were sold to the nations, not for [your] destruction, but because ye moved God to wrath, ye were delivered unto the enemies.

7 For ye provoked him that made you by <sup>1</sup> sacrificing unto devils, and not to God. † 1 Cor 10

8 Ye have forgotten the everlasting God, that brought you up, and ye have grieved Jerusalem, that nursed you.

9 For when she saw the wrath of God coming upon you, she said, Hearken, O ye that dwell about Sion: God hath brought, upon me great mourning, because the infinite Being is every where present in it, and governs it as a father or master does his family. Arnold

26 There were the giants &c] They, as well as all others, were under the dominion of the sovereign Monarch of the universe: but they were not chosen of God to receive the gifts of wisdom. God preferred to them Noah and his family before the flood: and after that time He preferred Israel to the Rephaim to the land of Palestine. Calmel. And indeed throughout both Testaments it appears to have been the constant tenor of His proceeding to prefer the meek and lowly to the mighty and arrogant. Arnold

32 He that prepared the earth for evermore hath filled it with fourfooted beasts] The Latin version read with a conjunction. He that prepared the earth for evermore, and filled it with cattle and beasts. The sense according to Calmel. He that made the earth that it might continue always, or that it might never move at any time. The earth was looked upon as the foundation and centre of all the movements and of all the changes that happened here: and we without moving or changing it. Monarchs rise and fall, men die, and others succeed in their place, the seasons change, and we in continual vicissitude: but the earth continues always the same. According to that observation of Solomon, "one generation passeth away, and another generation cometh, but the earth abideth for ever." Eccl. 1:1. Arnold

34 when he calleth them, they say Here we be] See the notes on Job xxxiii 13, Jer. xlviii 6.

35 This is our God, &c] Crotius hastily pronounces this passage to the end of the chapter, to be an addition by some Christian. Others consider it as an inspired prophecy of the incarnation and human intercourse of the Messiah. It is perhaps only an acknowledgment of the Divine Wisdom which had manifested itself to the Patriarchs, and conveyed by revelation with mankind, Exod. xxiv 9-18. It has however so far a prophetick cast as it is imitative of passages, which under praises of wisdom, figuratively celebrate that Eternal Wisdom, which dwelt among us in the person of the Son of God. Compare Prov. viii 31. Dr. Gray

Chip IV ver 1 This is the book &c] The meaning is It is in the book of the commandments of the Lord that true wisdom consists. This chapter is a continuation of the subject of the preceding Calmel.

3 Give not thine honour to another] Namely, the honour of being the chosen and favoured people of God. Do not expose thyself to lose this honourable distinction by thy crimes. Calmel

5 the memorial of Israel] That is, the poor remains of the Jews, the surviving hopes of sinking Israel who are preserved to continue the name and memory of once so famous a people, the only remaining monument of distressed Sion. Arnold

10 For I saw the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting brought upon them.

11 With joy did I nourish them, but sent them away with weeping and mourning.

12 Let no man rejoice over me, a widow, and forsaken of many, who for the sins of my children am left desolate; because they departed from the law of God.

13 They knew not his statutes, nor walked in the ways of his commandments, nor trod in the paths of discipline in his righteousness.

14 Let them that dwell about Sion come, and remember ye the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting hath brought upon them.

15 For he hath brought a nation upon them from far, a shameless nation, and of a strange language, who neither revered old man, nor pitied child.

16 These have carried away the dear beloved children of the widow, and left her that was alone desolate without daughters.

17 But what can I help you?

18 For he that brought these plagues upon you will deliver you from the hands of your enemies.

19 Go your way, O my children, go your way for I am left desolate.

20 I have put off the clothing of peace, and put upon me the sackcloth of my prayer. I will cry unto the Everlasting in my days.

21 Be of good cheer, O my children, cry unto the Lord, and he shall deliver you from the power and hand of the enemies.

22 For my hope is in the Everlasting, that he will save you, and joy is come unto me from the Holy One, because of the mercy which shall soon come unto you from the Everlasting our Saviour.

23 For I sent you out with mourning and weeping, but God will give you to me again with joy and gladness for ever.

24 Take ye now the neighbours of Sion have seen your captivity, so shall they see shortly your salvation from our God, which shall come upon you with great glory, and brightness of the Everlasting.

25 My children, suffer patiently the wrath that is come upon you from God, for thine enemy hath persecuted thee, but shortly thou shalt see his destruction, and shalt tread upon his neck.

26 My delicate ones have gone rough ways, and were taken away like a flock caught of the enemies.

27 Be of good comfort, O my children, and cry unto God, for ye shall be remembered of him that brought these things upon you.

28 For as it was your mind to go astray from God, so, being returned, seek him ten times more.

29 For he that hath brought these plagues upon you shall bring you everlasting joy again with your salvation.

30 Take a good heart, O Jerusalem, for he that gave thee that name will comfort thee.

31 Miserable are they that afflicted thee, and rejoiced at thy fall.

32 Miserable were the cities which thy children served, miserable is she that received thy sons.

33 For as she rejoiced at thy ruin, and was glad of thy fall, so shall she be grieved for her own desolation.

|| Or, of his discipline in righteousness.

|| Or, cry.

|| Or, in the time of mine affliction. || See 117.

10 Let no man rejoice over me, a widow, &c.] This personification of Sion, bewailing her children gone into captivity is moving and beautiful. The venting of her grief in broken accents.

But what can I help you? ver. 17, Grotius says is imitatively affecting. At length, all appearance of human help vanishing, she raises motives of consolation from that never failing treasury of delight and comfort to afflicted minds, the word of God, who's statutes had been her song in the house of her pilgrimage, and assures them from the Prophets of a deliverance from her captivity, and remarkable vengeance overtaking their persecutors. In this pleasing prospect she exults and triumphs, chap. v, as a fond mother overjoyed for the recovery of her children. Arnold.

11 For he hath brought a nation upon them from far, &c.] See the note from Dr Hales on Deut. xxviii. 32.

20 I have put off the clothing of peace, &c.] That is, I have put off the garment of prosperity, as in the margin, or of gladness, and have put upon me the sackcloth of penance and supplication. The last clause may be rendered, as in the margin, in the time of mine affliction. Arnold.

22 For my hope is in the Everlasting, &c.] Much here speaks with an almost prophetick confidence of those blessings, which Jeremiah and other Prophets taught him to expect.

from the everlasting Saviour, who should soon appear, of that joy which should come from the East, ver. 26, and of the triumphant glory with which Jerusalem should be exalted, and her sons assembled from all kingdoms in righteousness and peace, ver. 3. These were prospects of future exultation, with which all in the captivity must have coloured their affliction. They were general characters of the Kingdom of Messiah, which every one conversant with the sacred writings was capable of describing. Dr Gray. See the note on chap. ii. 25.

25 — shortly thou shalt see his destruction, and shalt tread upon his neck.] That is, thine enemy shall come and fall down before thee. This was literally accomplished under Mordochai and Esther at Susa, and under Daniel at Babylon. They were used to the first stations in the empire, and the Chaldeans themselves were forced to submit to their authority, and to prostrate themselves before them. I wish had long before foretold it, chap. ix. 11. It was more perfectly accomplished under Jesus Christ, when the heathens came into the church, and threw themselves at the feet of those whom they had persecuted. Arnold.

30 — for he that — to thee that name.] Rather, He that named thee, the Lord, who permits thee to take the name of the people of the Lord. Calmer.

34 For I will take away the rejoicing of her great multitude, and her pride shall be turned into mourning.

35 For fire shall come upon her from the Everlasting, long to endure, and she shall be inhabited of devils for a great time.

36 O Jerusalem, look about thee toward the east, and behold the joy that cometh unto thee from God.

37 Lo, thy sons come, whom thou sentest away, they come gathered together from the east to the west by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the glory of God.

CHAP. V

1 Jerusalem is moved to rejoice, and to behold their return out of captivity with glory.

PUT off, O Jerusalem, the garment of thy mourning and affliction, and put on the oneliness of the glory that cometh from God for ever.

2 Cast about thee a double garment of the righteousness which cometh from God, and set a diadem on thine head of the glory of the Everlasting.

3 For God will shew thy brightness unto every country under heaven.

4 For thy name shall be called of God for ever. The peace of righteousness, and The glory of God's worship.

5 Arise, O Jerusalem, and stand on high, and look about toward the east, and behold thy children gathered from the west unto the east by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the remembrance of God.

6 For they departed from thee on foot, and were led away of their enemies: but God bringeth them unto thee exalted with glory, as children of the kingdom.

7 For God hath appointed that every high hill, and banks of long continuance, should be cast down, and valleys filled up, to make even the ground, that Israel may go safely in the glory of God.

35 — she shall be inhabited of devils.] See the note from W. Lowth on Is. xlv. 10.

Chap. V. ver. 6 — exalted with glory, as children of the kingdom.] That is, as a royal race, or children of kings, riding triumphantly in a magnificent procession. Ezra gives us the number and quality of the persons that returned: their horses, mules, camels, &c. employed on the occasion, Ezra ii. 66. and it is related at 1 Esdr. v. 12 that Darius himself sent a thousand horsemen to conduct them back safely to Jerusalem with musical instruments. Arnold.

8 Moreover, on the woods and every sweetsmelling tree &c.] A poetical description, setting off in an hyperbolical manner the ease and pleasure with which the people should return to Babylon (A. B. C.).

8 Moreover, even the woods and every sweetsmelling tree shall overshadow Israel by the commandment of God.

9 For God shall lead Israel with joy in the light of his glory with the mercy and righteousness that cometh from him.

THE EPISTLE OF JEREMY.

CHAP. VI

1 The cause of the captivity is their sin, and the place whereto they were carried is Babylon, the vanity of whose idols and idolatry are set forth at large in this chapter.

A copy of an epistle, which Jeremy sent unto them which were to be led captives into Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to certify them, as it was commanded him of God.

BECAUSE of the sins which ye have committed before God, ye shall be led away captives into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor king of the Babylonians.

3 So when ye be come unto Babylon, ye shall remain there many years, and for a long season, namely, seven generations: and after that I will bring you away peaceably from thence.

4 Now shall ye see in Babylon gods of silver, and of gold, and of wood, borne upon shoulders, which cause the nations to fear.

5 Beware therefore that ye in no wise be like to strangers, neither be ye afraid of them, when ye see the multitude before them and behind them, worshipping them.

6 But say ye in your hearts, O Lord, we must worship thee.

7 For mine angel is with you, and I myself caring for your souls.

8 As for their tongue, it is polished by the workman, and they themselves are gilded and laid over with gold, yet are they but false, and cannot speak.

9 And taking gold, as it were for a virgin that loveth to go gay, they make crowns for the heads of their gods.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. [A copy of an epistle, &c.] This epistle, said to be Jeremiah's, is supposed to be written to the Jews, when they were going into captivity with their king, to admonish them to beware of the idolatry they would see in Babylon, and seems to be the letter referred to in 2 Macc. ii. 2, where the same caution is given as here to guard against the idolatry they would observe in that place, and is an epitome of sundry things in Moses the Psalms, and the Prophets, against idolatry. Arnold.

3 — seven generations.] The word "generation" is here used for the term of ten years. The captivity of the Jews at Babylon lasted seventy years, according to the prophecy of Jeremiah. Arnold.

4 — borne upon shoulders.] See the note on Is. xlv. 3.

10 Sometimes also the priests convey from their gods gold and silver, and bestow it upon themselves

11 Yea, they will give the cof to the common harlots, and deck them as men with garments, [being] gods of silver, and gods of gold, and wood.

12 Yet cannot these gods save themselves from rust and moths, though they be covered with purple raiment.

13 They wipe their faces because of the dust of the temple, when there is much upon them

14 And he that cannot put to death one that offendeth him holdeth a sceptre, as though he were a judge of the country

15 He hath also in his right hand a dagger and an ax but cannot deliver himself from wra and thieves

16 Whereby they are known not to be gods therefore fear them not

17 For like as a vessel that a man useth is nothing worth when it is broken; even so it is with these gods when they be set up in the temple, then eyes be full of dust through the feet of them that come in

18 And as the doors are made sure on every side upon him that offendeth the king, as being committed to suffer death even so the priests make fast their temples with doors, with locks, and bars, lest their gods be spoiled with robbers.

19 They light them candles, yea, more than for themselves, whereof they cannot see one

20 They are as one of the beams of the temple, yet they say their hearts are gnawed upon by things creeping out of the earth, and when they eat them and their clothes, they feel it not

21 Then faces are blacked through the smoke that cometh out of the temple

12 — though they be covered with purple raiment } That the heathens in their idolatrous worship, adorned the images of their gods with costly raiment, is confirmed from Jer x 9 Arnald See the note there

14 — as though he were a judge of the country } That a prince, governor, or king The idols were generally represented with a sceptre or a spear the former being the emblem of justice and sovereignty, the latter of power Arnald

15 He hath also in his right hand a dagger and an ax } Arnald observes concerning the Gentiles, that they designed to create fear by the manner in which they framed and represented the statues and images of their gods, hence scythes, clubs, and thunderbolts, were appendages to their idols Arnald

20 — yet they say &c } The sense appears to be, the very idols confess, testify or make it plain, by the signs of decay and rotteness visible about them, and by their being eaten as a piece of ordinary wood by worms, and not perceiving what is done to them that they are perishable and senseless Arnald Arnald, "Their hearts, namely, the heart of the wood, of which the idol

22 Upon their bodies and heads sit bats, swallows, and birds, and the cats also

23 By this ye may know that they are no gods therefore fear them not

24 Notwithstanding the gold that is about them to make them beautiful, except they wipe off the rust, they will not shine for neither when they were molten did they feel it

25 The things wherein there is no breath are bought for a most high price

26 They are borne upon shoulders, having no feet, whereby they declare unto men that they be nothing worth

27 They also that serve them are ashamed for if they fall to the ground at any time, they cannot rise up again of themselves neither, if one set them upright, can they move of themselves neither, if they be bowed down, can they make themselves straight but they set gifts before them, as unto dead men

28 As for the things that are sacrificed unto them, then priests sell and abuse in like manner their wives by up put thereof in salt, but unto the poor and impotent they give nothing of it

29 Menstruous women and women in childbed eat their sacrifices by those things ye may know that they are no gods fear them not

30 For how can they be called gods because women set meat before the gods of silver, gold, and wood

31 And the priests sit in their temple, having their clothes rent, and their heads and beards shaven, and nothing upon their heads

32 They roar and cry before their gods, as men do at the feast when one is dead

33 The priests also take off their garments, and clothe their wives and children

34 Whether it be evil that one doeth are composed Arnald

27 — if they fall to the ground &c } See this illustrated in the case of Dagon 1 Sam x 4 Arnald

— they set gifts before them as unto dead men } They are covered with provisions, which are set before them in form, without their being able to feed on the same which are offered them See the story of Bel and the Dragon By gifts placed before dead men, the writer allude to the sepulchral entertainments, which were anciently much used in the Eastern and other countries, and particularly among some idolaters whose notion was that the souls of the departed wandered about their sepulchres and wanted a proper sustenance and that it was a pious office to place bread and wine over their grave for their support and refreshment See the note on Eccle x x 15 Arnald

30 For how can they be called gods because women &c } He meaning, that their claim to divinity rests upon the superstition and ignorance of such women Arnald

31 And the priests sit in their temples, &c } See the note on 1 Cy xix 27, 28 xxi 10 unto them, or good, they are not able to recompense it: they can neither set up a king, nor put him down.

35 In like manner, they can neither give riches nor money, though a man make a vow unto them, and keep it not, they will not require it.

36 They can save no man from death, neither deliver the weak from the mighty.

37 They cannot restore a blind man to his sight, nor help any man in his distress.

38 They can shew no mercy to the widow, nor do good to the fatherless.

39 Then gods of wood, and which are overlaid with gold and silver, are like the stone that be hewn out of the mountain: they that worship them shall be confounded.

40 How should a man then think and say that they are gods, when even the Chaldeans themselves dishonour them?

41 Who if they shall see one dumb that cannot speak, they bring him, and intreat Bel that he may speak, as though he were able to understand.

42 Yet they cannot understand this themselves, and leave them for they have no knowledge.

43 The women also with cords about them, sitting in the ways, burn brain for fortune: but if any of them, drawn by some that passeth by, lie with him, she reproacheth her fellow, that she was not thought as worthy as herself, nor her cord broken.

44 Whatsoever is done among them is false: how may it then be thought or said that they are gods?

45 They are made of carpenters and goldsmiths: they can be nothing else than the workmen will have them to be.

46 And they themselves that made them can never continue long, how should then the things that are made of them be gods?

47 For they left lies and reproaches to them that come after.

48 For when there cometh any war or plague upon them, the priests consult with themselves, where they may be hidden with them.

49 How then cannot men perceive that they be no gods, which can neither save themselves from war, nor from plague?

50 For seeing they be but of wood, and overlaid with silver and gold, it shall be known hereafter that they are false.

51 And it shall manifestly appear to all nations and kings that they are no gods, but the works of men's hands, and that there is no work of God in them.

52 Who then may not know that they are no gods?

53 For neither can they set up a king in the land, nor give rain unto men.

54 Neither can they judge their own cause, nor redress a wrong, being unable: for they are as crows between heaven and earth.

55 Whereupon when fire falleth upon the house of gods of wood, or laid over with gold or silver, then priests will flee away, and escape, but they themselves shall be burned asunder like beams.

56 Moreover they cannot withstand any king or enemies: how can it then be thought or said that they be gods?

57 Neither are those gods of wood, and laid over with silver or gold, able to escape either from thieves or robbers.

58 Whose gold, and silver, and garments wherewith they are clothed, they that are strong do take, and go away withal: neither are they able to help themselves.

59 Therefore it is better to be a king that sheweth his power, or else a profitable vessel in an house, which the owner shall have use of, than such false gods, or to be a door in an house, to keep such things: or to be therein, than such false gods, or a pillar of wood in a palace, than such false gods.

40 — when even the Chaldeans themselves dishonour them ] That they inwardly laugh at them, persuaded of their weakness and inability to do any thing. If then priests presented any sick person before the idols, it was rather to comply with the prevailing superstition, than from any hope that the cure would be effected. They were conscious of the cheat, though for grateful reason they continued the pretence. Amald.

41 — as though he were able to understand ] How unable Bel and his idols were to understand or answer the petitions of his worshippers, we learn from that signal instance, Jer. xlviii. 26. Amald.

43 The women also with cords about them &c.] Allusion is here made to the practice mentioned in the note on Jer. lvi. 10.

xviii. 10. From this passage it appears into what infamous and cruel religion had degenerated, when the most disolute pleasures were turned into so many acts of devotion, and it was counted by a woman a dishonouring not to be defiled. Calmet Amald.

53 — nor give rain unto men ] See Jer. v. 25, and the note there.

54 — they are as crows between heaven and earth ] As little acquainted with what passes among men, and as little able to effect any change upon earth, as the meanest bird that flies. Calmet, Amald.

56 — they cannot withstand any king &c. ] See Is. xlv. 1—3 and the notes there.

60 For sun, moon, and stars, being bright, and sent to do their offices, are obedient

62 And when God commandeth the clouds to go over the whole world, they do as they are bidden

63 And the fire sent from above to consume hills and woods doeth as it is commanded but these are like unto them neither in shew nor power.

64 Wherefore it is neither to be supposed nor said that they are gods, seeing they are able neither to judge causes, nor to do good unto men.

65 Knowing therefore that they are no gods, fear them not.

66 For they can neither curse nor bless kings

67 Neither can they shew signs in the heavens among the heathen, nor shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon

68 The beasts are better than they for they can get under a covert, and help themselves.

69 It is then by no means manifest unto us that they are gods therefore fear them not

70 For as a scarecrow in a garden of cucumbers keepeth nothing so no then glads of wood, and laid over with silver and gold

71 And likewise their gods of wood, and laid over with silver and gold, are like to a white thorn in an orchard, that every bud sitteth upon, as also to a dead body, that is cast into the dark

72 And ye shall know them to be no gods by the bright purple that rotteth upon them and they themselves afterwards shall be eaten, and shall be a reproach in the country

73 Better therefore is the just man that hath none idols for he shall be free from reproach.

60 For sun, moon, and stars, being bright, &c.] These great bodies follow the appointment of their Creator. If any creature really deserved worship, it should seem that these were most worthy of it. Their beauty and splendour attract our admiration, and the advantages we receive from them claim our acknowledgment but all their glory and power they derive from the Father of lights. The gods of the nations neither equal them in beauty, nor are like beneficial by their influence, we ought therefore to confine all our worship and homage to the living God only and to give no sort of adoration to false gods of any kind Arnold

70 For as a scarecrow &c.] The birds for some time are afraid of a scarecrow, but soon they become used to it and then care no more about it. They fear it only as long as they take it for a real man. The same is the case with idols they derive their authority only from the folly and ignorance of those who worship them Calmet

72 — by the bright purple that rotteth upon them.] It is observable that this writer is very explicit, and descends to a detail of vestments, ornaments, and decorations on these idols whom their priests set off and adorned with all possible care to make them look more rich and glorious. And the reason of his being so particular seems to be that he might set their defects forth, as the Prophet calls them, Is xlv 9, in a little light and per their unprofitableness and decay to scorn and give people too apt to be affected with pomp and pageantry, and who were likely to pervert their understanding so as not to discern the cheat and falsity of such a worship Arnold — and they themselves afterwards shall be eaten.] This is most probably to be explained of the wooden idol, wormeaten through time Arnold

THE SONG, OF THE THREE HOLY CHILDREN;

Which followeth in the third Chapter of DANIEL after this place,—fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.—Ver 23 That which followeth is not in the Hebrew, to wit, And they walked— unto these words, Then Nebuchadnezzar— Ver. 24.

INTRODUCTION.

IN some copies of the Greek version of Theodoret and in the vulgar Latin edition of the Bible, this book is inserted between the twenty-third and twenty-fourth verses of the third chapter of Daniel as at the beginning of the book is prefixed the History of Susanna, and at the end is added that of Bel and the Dragon but none of these additions are to be found in any Hebrew copy, nor do they appear ever to have existed in the Hebrew or Chaldaick language

It is probable that the same author invented or composed from traditional accounts, all the Apocryphal additions which he interwove with the genuine work of Daniel Annexed to, or incorporated with, the inspired book, they gradually rose into reputation, and under the sanction of the Prophets name and the approbation of the Church, which suffered them to be read for instruction of mankind they were perhaps sometimes considered, in a loose and popular representation, as a part of the genuine work of Daniel

It is however universally admitted, that they never were in the Hebrew canon nor can there be any doubt that they were written, long after the time of Daniel, by some writer desirous of imitating and of embellishing the sacred history though as they were not expressly severed from the canonical books by any positive decree, they were received by the preposterous decision of the Council of Trent as genuine, and in every respect canonical It is uncertain at what time they were composed Dr Gray

The present book consists of two parts, a prayer and a thanksgiving The prayer is a devout confession of the sins of the people, and an acknowledgment of God's righteousness, in bringing upon them their captivity and other calamities And the thanksgiving is a solemn exaltation of all creatures whatever but more especially of the three Hebrew children, who were thus "saved from the hand of death, to bless the Lord, praise and exalt Him above all for ever," Stackhouse.

Agreeably to this division it may be remarked, that the title, "The Song of the three holy Children," applies properly to the latter part of the work only from ver 29 to the end In the Latin version, and also in Coverdale's English translation, as noted by Bp Wilson, the title is "The Prayer of Azarias and the Song of the three holy Children" The term "children" appears to mean young men In the first chapter of Daniel, ver 4, according to our present translation the word "children" occurs, see the note there instead of this, two old translations namely Coverdale's and another, read "springaldes," and "springalls," which latter word is explained by Dr Johnson to be an obsolete term for 'a youth' Todd says, in his enlarged Johnson's Dictionary, that in our old ballads and romances the best authorized sense of the word "child" is that of a youth of noble blood And this sense exactly corresponds with the circumstance of these "three holy children," as described in the above-mentioned passage of Daniel Edw

The song said to have been uttered by the three companions of Daniel when thrown by Nebuchadnezzar into the burning furnace, is to be admired for its instruction and tendency The righteous persons, who are said to have uttered it, and whose reputation was founded on the authentic account of Daniel, chap in 28, appear by their pious fortitude to have contributed with the Prophet to the suppression of idolatry The veneration entertained for their character, of which the memory was highly celebrated among the Jews probably induced some Hellenistick Jew to fabricate this ornamental addition to their history It must have been inserted at a very early period, as it is cited by many ancient writers The work is composed with great spirit, and the sentiments, attributed to the holy children, are consistent with the piety, for which they were distinguished The hymn resembles the 148th Psalm, as to its invocation on all the works of creation to praise and exalt the Lord Dr Gray According to some authors, it was anciently used in the Jewish church, and adopted into the publick devotions of the Christians from the most early times In the first Common Prayer Book of King Edward the Sixth, it was appointed to be used during Lent, in the place of Te Deum It is still retained in our Liturgy with a direction for it to be used at the discretion of the minister And considering the subject of the hymn, namely, that it is an elegant summons to all God works to praise Him, intimating that they all set forth His glory, and invite us, who have the benefit of them to join in praising and magnifying the Lord for ever, whenever we would glorify God for His work, which is one main end of the Lord's day, or when the Lesson treats of the creation, and sets before us the wonderful works of God in any of His creatures or the use He makes of them either ordinary or miraculous for the good of the Church, this hymn may very reasonably be used Whately

1 Azarias his prayer and confession in the flame, 24 whereunto the Children also at the oven were consumed but the three children within were not hurt 29 The song of the three children in the oven

AND they walked in the midst of the fire, praising God, and blessing the Lord

2 Then Azarias stood up, and prayed on this manner, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire said,

3 Blessed art thou, O Lord God of our fathers thy name is worthy to be praised and glorified for evermore

4 For thou art righteous in all the things that thou hast done to us: yea, thou art all thy works, thy ways are right, and all thy judgments truth.

5 In all the things that thou hast brought upon us, and upon the holy city of our fathers, even Jerusalem, thou hast executed true judgment: for according to truth and judgment didst thou bring all these things upon us because of our sins.

6 For we have sinned and committed iniquity, departing from thee

7 In all things have we trespassed, and not obeyed thy commandments, nor kept them, neither done as thou hast commanded us, that it might go well with us

8 Wherefore all that thou hast brought upon us, and every thing that thou hast done to us, thou hast done in true judgment

9 And thou didst deliver us into the hands of lawless enemies, most hateful for-sakers of God, and to an unjust king, and the most wicked in all the world.

10 And now we cannot open our mouths, we are become a shame and reproach to thy servants, and to them that worship thee.

11 Yet deliver us not up wholly, for thy name's sake, neither disannul thou thy covenant.

12 And cause not thy mercy to depart from us, for thy beloved Abraham's sake, for thy servant Isaac's sake, and for thy holy Israel's sake,

13 To whom thou hast spoken and promised, that thou wouldest multiply their seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that lieth upon the seashore.

14 For we, O Lord, are become less than any nation, and be kept under this day in all the world because of our sins

15 Neither is there at this time prince, or prophet, or leader, or burnt offering, or sacrifice, or oblation, or incense, or place to sacrifice before thee, and to find mercy

16 Nevertheless in a contrite heart and an humble spirit let us be accepted

17 Like as in the burnt offerings of rams and bullocks, and like as in ten thousands of fat lambs: so let our sacrifice be in thy sight this day, and grant that we may wholly go after thee: for they shall not be confounded that put their trust in thee

18 And now we follow thee with all our heart, we fear thee, and seek thy face

19 Put us not to shame: but deal with us after thy lovingkindness, and according to the multitude of thy mercies

20 Deliver us also according to thy marvellous works, and give glory to thy name, O Lord: and let all them that do thy servants hurt be ashamed,

21 And let them be confounded in all their power and might, and let their strength be broken,

22 And let them know that thou art Lord, the only God, and glorious over the whole world

23 And the king's servants, that put them in, ceased not to make the oven hot with resin, pitch, tow, and small wood,

24 So that the flame streamed forth above the furnace forty and nine cubits

25 And it passed through; and burned those Chaldeans it found about the furnace

26 But the angel of the Lord came down into the oven together with Azarias and his fellows, and smote the flame of the fire out of the oven,

27 And made the midst of the furnace as it had been a moist whistling wind, so that the fire touched them not at all, neither hurt nor troubled them

28 Then the three, as out of one mouth, praised, glorified, and blessed, God in the furnace, saying,

29 Blessed art thou, O Lord God of our fathers: and to be praised and exalted above all for ever.

30 And blessed is thy glorious and holy name: and to be praised and exalted above all for ever

31 Blessed art thou in the temple of thine holy glory: and to be praised and glorified above all for ever

32 Blessed art thou that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the cherubims:
and to be praised and exalted above all for ever

33 Blessed art thou on the glorious throne of thy kingdom: and to be praised and glorified above all for ever

34 Blessed art thou in the firmament of heaven: and above all to be praised and glorified for ever the Lord: praise and exalt him above all for ever

66 O Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, bless ye the Lord : praise and exalt him above all for ever : for he hath delivered us from hell, and saved us from the hand of death, and delivered us out of the midst of the furnace and burning flame : even out of the midst of the fire hath he delivered us.
67 O give thanks unto the Lord, because he is gracious : for his mercy endureth for ever.
68 O all ye that worship the Lord, bless the God of gods, praise him, and give him thanks : for his mercy endureth for ever.

[ O ye waters that be above the heaven ] He mentions the wa-regions of the firmament.

[ O ye fowls of the air ] Having called upon all the other kinds of things and animals, which are in hea-whose principal duty it is to praise God. And in this address men he observes the following order : from the whole race of mankind he descends to the peculiar people of God, and thence to particular persons among that people, who were especially occupied in God's worship. Badmell

THE HISTORY OF SUSANNA.

Set apart from the beginning of Daniel, because it is not in the Hebrew, as neither the Narration of Bel and the Dragon

INTRODUCTION

THIS Book has no sufficient pretensions to be considered as canonical. It appears to have been written in Greek by some Jew, who invented the history, or collected its particulars from traditional relations, in praise of Daniel. The history might perhaps have some foundation in truth, though it is not mentioned by Josephus, who indeed has not noticed any of the particulars contained in these Apocryphal additions to the book of Daniel. The Jews in general rejected it as an improbable fable: they had however no traditional accounts of the story, and many fancied that it was alluded to by Jeremiah in his prophecy, chap. xxix. v. 23. See the note there.

The book seems to have been received by the Christian Church as containing a relation not inconsistent with the Sacred history, but not as the production of Daniel: though, as forming an appendage to his work, and containing an account of circumstances in which he was concerned, it was sometimes cited under his name, and being read by the Church, was considered with reverence. It is received together with other spurious additions, as canonical by the Romish church, but is suffered to continue in our Bible only as a work from which moral improvement is to be drawn. Dr. Gray.

16 Two judges hide themselves in the garden of Susanna to have their pleasure of her: 28 which when they could not obtain, they accuse and cause her to be condemned for adultery: 46 but Daniel examineth the matter again, and smiteth the two judges false.

THERE dwelt a man in Babylon, called Joachim

2 And he took a wife, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, a very fair woman, and one that feared the Lord.

3 Her parents also were righteous, and taught their daughter according to the law of Moses.

4 Now Joachim was a great rich man, and had a fair garden joining unto his house, and to him resorted the Jews, because he was more honourable than all others.

5 The same year were appointed two of the ancients of the people to be judges, such as the Lord spake of, that wickedness came from Babylon from ancient judges, who seemed to govern the people.

6 There kept much at Joachim's house and all that had any suits in law came unto them.

7 Now when the people departed away at noon, Susanna went into her husband's garden to walk.

8 And the two elders saw her going in every day, and walking, so that their lust was inflamed toward her.

9 And they perverted their own mind, and turned away their eyes, that they might not look unto heaven, nor remember just judgments.

10 And albeit they both were wounded with her love, yet durst not one shew another his grief.

11 For they were ashamed to declare their lust, that they desired to have to do with her.

12 Yet they watched diligently from day to day to see her.

[Ver 4. Now Joachim was a great rich man, &c.] The Jews that were carried away captives to Babylon were not so plundered, but that many among them were both rich and powerful. See Job

18, 14, 22. The Jews seem to have resorted to Joachim's house for advice, or to seek it of justice. See ver 6, 7, 28. Arnold some of the Jewish rabbies suppose him to have been Jchoiachin, he captive king of Judah. Dr. Hales.

5 The same year were appointed two of the ancients of the people to be judges. The Hebrews never had judges, either two in number or annually appointed. These might have been assessors to the chief or president of the captives. Grotius. It is probable that the Jews retained a sort of judicial power even in their captivity and that they executed some of the penal laws of Moses in all their instances. See 1st in 8. Arnold.

— such as the Lord spake of, &c.] See many in Jeremiah, chap. xxix. 23. He gives not the word, but the sense of the Prophet. Grotius.

— who seemed to govern the people.] That is, who governed the people in ordinary phrase. See Mark x. 42, where in expression, very much resembling him in the original Greek is rendered by St. Matthew, chap. xx. 20. the princes. Grotius, Arnold.

9 — that they might not look unto heaven, &c.] That is, that they might not look unto or reflect upon the God of heaven, nor remember His just judgments against such notorious sinners. See Luke xv. 18. Arnold.

13 And the one said to the other, Let us now go home: for it is dinner time.

14 So when they were gone out, they parted the one from the other, and turning back again they came to the same place; and after that they had asked one another the cause, they acknowledged their lust: then appointed they a time both together, when they might find her alone.

1 Cor

15 And it fell out, as they watched a fit time, she went in as before with two maids only, and she was desirous to wash herself in the garden: for it was hot.

16 And there was no body there save the two elders, that had hid themselves, and watched her.

17 Then she said to her maids, Bring me oil and washing balls, and shut the garden doors, that I may wash me.

1 Or
1 d

18 And they did as she bade them, and shut the garden doors, and went out themselves, it being privy doors to fetch the things that she had commended them: but they saw not the elders, because they were hid.

19 Now when the maids were gone forth, the two elders rose up, and ran unto her, saying,

20 Behold, the garden doors are shut, that no man can see us, and we are in love with thee, therefore consent unto us, and lie with us.

21 If thou wilt not, we will bear witness against thee, that a young man was with thee: and therefore thou didst send away thy maids from thee.

22 Then Susanna sighed, and said, I am straitened on every side: for if I do this thing, it is death unto me: and if I do it not, I cannot escape your hands.

23 It is better for me to fall into your hands, and not do it, than to sin in the sight of the Lord.

24 With that Susanna cried with a loud voice: and the two elders cried out against her.

25 Then ran the one, and opened the garden door.

26 So when the servants of the house heard the cry in the garden, they rushed in at a privy door, to see what was done unto her.

27 But when the elders had declared their matter, the servants were greatly indignant: for there was never such a report made of Susanna.

28 And when it came to pass the next day, when the people were assembled to her husband Joacim, the two elders came also full of mischievous imagination against Susanna to put her to death.

29 And said before the people, Send for Susanna, the daughter of Chelcias, Joacim's wife: And so they sent.

30 So she came with her father and mother, her children, and all her kindred.

31 Now Susanna was a very delicate woman, and beautiful to behold.

32 And these wicked men commanded to uncover her ~~face~~, (for she was covered) that they might be filled with her beauty.

33 Therefore her friends and all that saw her wept.

34 Then the two elders stood up in the midst of the people, and laid their hands upon her head.

35 And she weeping looked up toward heaven: for her heart trusted in the Lord.

36 And the elders said, As we walked in the garden alone, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the garden doors, and sent the maids away.

37 Then a young man, who was there hid, came unto her, and lay with her.

38 Then we that stood in a corner of the garden, seeing this wickedness, ran unto them.

39 And when we saw them together, the man we could not hold: for he was stronger than we, and opened the door, and leaped out.

40 But having taken this woman, we asked who the young man was, but she would not tell us: these things do we testify.

41 Then the assembly believed them, as those that were the elders and judges of the people: so they condemned her to death.

42 Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said, O everlasting God, that knowest the secrets, and knowest all things before they be.

43 Thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me, and, behold, I must die: whereas I never did such things as these men have maliciously invented against me.

44 And the Lord heard her voice.

45 Therefore when she was led to be put to death, the Lord raised up the holy spirit of a young youth, whose name was Daniel.

46 Who cried with a loud voice, I am clear from the blood of this woman.

47 Then all the people turned them toward him, and said, What mean these words that thou hast spoken?

48 So he standing in the midst of them said, Are ye such fools, ye sons of Israel, that without examination or knowledge of the truth ye have condemned a daughter of Israel?

49 Return again to the place of judgment for they have borne false witness against her.

50 Wherefore all the people turned again in haste, and the elders said unto him, Come, sit down among us, and shew it us, seeing God hath given thee the honour of an elder.

51 Then said Daniel unto them, Put these two aside one far from another, and I will examine them.

52 So when they were put asunder one from another, he called one of them, and said unto him, O thou that art waxen old in wickedness, now thy sins which thou hast committed aforetime are come to light.

53 For thou hast pronounced false judgment, and hast condemned the innocent, and hast let the guilty go free, albeit the Lord saith, 'The innocent and righteous shalt thou not slay.'

54 Now then, if thou hast seen her, tell me, Under what tree sawest thou them companying together? Who answered, Under a † mastick tree.

55 And Daniel said, Very well; thou hast lied against thine own head, for even now the angel of God hath received the sentence of God to cut thee in two.

56 So he put him aside, and commanded to bring the other, and said unto him, O thou seed of Chanaan, and not of Juda, beauty hath deceived thee, and lust hath perverted thine heart.

57 Thus have ye dealt with the daughters of Israel, and they for fear companied with you; but the daughter of Juda would not abide your wickedness.

58 Now therefore tell me, Under what tree didst thou take them companying together? Who answered, Under an || holm tree.

59 Then said Daniel unto him, Well; thou hast also lied against thine own head for the angel of God writeth with the sword to cut thee in two, that he may destroy you.

60 With that all the assembly cried out with a loud voice, and praised God, who saveth them that trust in him.

61 And they arose against the two elders, for Daniel had convicted them of false witness by their own mouth.

62 And according to the law of Moses they did unto them in such sort as they maliciously intended to do to their neighbour: and they put them to death. Thus the innocent blood was saved the same day.

63 Therefore Chelcias and his wife praised God for their daughter Susanna, with Joacim her husband, and all the kindred, because there was no dishonesty found in her.

64 From that day forth was Daniel had in great reputation in the sight of the people.

62 — and they put them to death ] Though the Jews, as Origen and others maintain, might have the power of the sword sometimes in their dispersion; yet it may be questioned how far they had the power of life and death during their captivity under the Chaldeans. It seems more probable that they had not such a power, and therefore the Jewish writers will have these elders to have been punished by Nebuchadnezzar. Under the Romans, who gave the Jews as much liberty as the Babylonians, it is certain they had not this power of life and death, as appears from John xviii. 31, "It is not lawful for us to put any man to death." It is more likely that they had only magistrates, judges, and courts of justice of their own, to decide differences in cases of property in a way peculiar to themselves, as Strabo says they had at Alexandria in the like state. # THE HISTORY OF THE DESTRUCTION OF + BEL AND THE DRAGON,

CUT OFF FROM THE END OF DANIEL

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Book, which in Theodotion's version of Daniel, and in the Vulgate, is annexed as a fourteenth chapter to the book of Daniel is properly rejected by our Church having never been in the Hebrew canon, or received as authentick by the earlier Christians. It is most reasonable to suppose that it was never extant in the Hebrew language, though it might, as Lightfoot has conjectured be a parabolical story founded on a passage in Jeremiah, chap. li. 44, who threatens punishment to Bel, the great national idol of Babylon, in terms that might have suggested the circumstances of his destruction as described in this book.

Many persons object to the improbability of the circumstances related in this book; as particularly to the destruction of the Dragon, and to the conveyance of Habakkuk from Jerusalem to Babylon, merely to furnish a dinner to Daniel. The book indeed though it be cited as historical by the most respectable writers in the earliest ages of the Church, is considered as fabulous by St. Jerome and it must be allowed to contain some extraordinary and incredible relations. It is however canonized by the Council of Trent. Daniel, probably by detecting the marvellous contrivances of the idolatrous priests of Babylon, and by opening the eyes of the people to the folly of that superstition into which they had been seduced, might have furnished some foundation for the history and the writer of the book appears to have introduced some additional circumstances to enliven the narration and to illustrate the providence of God in protecting and providing for those who adhere to His service. Dr. Gray.

10 The fraud of Bel's priests is discovered by Daniel, 27 and the dragon slain, which was worshipped 33 Daniel is preserved in the lions den 42 The king doth acknowledge the God of Daniel, and casteth his enemies into the same den

3 Now the Babylonians had an idol, called Bel, and there was spent upon him every day twelve great measures of fine flour, and forty sheep, and six vessels of wine

4 And the king worshipped it, and went daily to adore it: but Daniel worshipped his own God. And the king said unto him, Why dost not thou worship Bel?

5 Who answered and said, Because I may not worship idols made with hands, but the living God, who hath created the heaven and the earth, and hath sovereignty over all flesh

6 Then said the king unto him, Thinkest thou not that Bel is a living God? seest thou not how much he eateth and drinketh every day?

7 Then Daniel smiled, and said, O king, be not deceived: for this is but clay within, and brass without, and did never eat or drink any thing

8 So the king was wroth, and called for his priests, and said unto them, If ye tell me not who this is that devoureth these expences, ye shall die

9 But if ye can certify me that Bel devoureth them, then Daniel shall die: for he hath spoken blasphemy against Bel. And Daniel said unto the king, Let it be according to thy word

NOTES — Cyrus of Persia received his kingdom. The author here speaks of Cyrus, as of the immediate successor of Astyages, probably to the account of Herodotus and his followers. but thou, O king, set on the meat, and make ready the wine, and shut the door fast, and seal it with thine own signet;

12 And to morrow when thou comest in, if thou findest not that Bel hath eaten up all, we will suffer death; or else Daniel, that speaketh falsely against us.

13 And they little regarded it for under the table they had made a privy entrance, whereby they entered in continually, and consumed those things.

14 So when they were gone forth, the king set meats before Bel. Now Daniel had commanded his servants to bring ashes, and those they strewed throughout all the temple in the presence of the king alone. then went they out, and shut the door, and sealed it with the king's signet, and so departed.

15 Now in the night came the priests with their wives and children, as they were wont to do, and did eat and drink up all.

16 In the morning betime the king arose, and Daniel with him.

17 And the king said, Daniel, are the seals whole? And he said, Yea, O king, they be whole.

18 And as soon as he had opened the door, the king looked upon the table, and cried with a loud voice, Great art thou, O Bel, and with thee is no deceit at all.

19 Then laughed Daniel, and held the king that he should not go in, and said, Behold now the pavement, and mark well whose footsteps are these.

20 And the king said, I see the footsteps of men, women, and children. And then the king was angry, 21 And took the priests with their wives and children, who shewed him the privy doors, where they came in, and consumed such things as were upon the table.

22 Therefore the king slew them, and delivered Bel into Daniel's power, who destroyed him and his temple.

23 || And in that same place there was a great dragon, which they of Babylon worshipped.

24 And the king said unto Daniel, Wilt thou also say that this is of brass? lo, he liveth, he eateth and drinketh, thou canst not say that he is no living god therefore worship him.

25 Then said Daniel unto the king, I will worship the Lord my God: for he is the living God.

26 But give me leave, O king, and I shall slay this dragon without sword or staff. The king said, I give thee leave.

27 Then Daniel took pitch, and fat, and hair, and did seethe them together, and made lumps thereof: this he put in the dragon's mouth, and so the dragon burst in sunder. and Daniel said, || I say, these are <sup>|| Or</sup> the gods ye worship. <sup>H & that</sup>

28 When they of Babylon heard that, they took great indignation, and conspired against the king, saying, The king is become a Jew, and he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slain the dragon, and put the priests to death.

29 So they came to the king, and said, Deliver us Daniel, or else we will destroy thee and thine house.

30 Now when the king saw that they pressed him sore, being constrained, he delivered Daniel unto them.

31 Who cast him into the lions' den where he was six days.

32 And in the den there were seven lions, and they had given them every day || two carcasses, and two sheep which then <sup>|| Or</sup> were not given to them, to the intent they <sup>the stones</sup> might devour Daniel.

33 Now there was, in Jewry a prophet, called Habbauc, who had || made pottage, and had broken bread in a bowl, and was going into the field, for to bring it to the reapers.

34 But the angel of the Lord said unto Habbauc, Go, carry the dinner that thou hast into Babylon unto Daniel, who is in the lions' den.

35 And Habbauc said, Lord, I never saw Babylon, neither do I know where the den is.

36 Then the angel of the Lord took him by the crown, and bare him by the hair <sup>of his head</sup> of his head, and through the vehemency of his spirit set him in Babylon over the den.

37 And Habbauc cried, saying, O Da-

27 — "and so the dragon burst in sunder" It may be supposed that this effect was produced, not by any specific power of the composition, but by the suffocation which it occasioned in a narrow throat. Arnold, Dr. Gray

33 — "a prophet, called Habbauc" It may be the same person whose book we receive as canonical: he must have lived a long time, for he prophesied either before or at least during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. 40 Upon the seventh day the king went to bewail Daniel and when he came to the den, he looked in, and, behold, Daniel was sitting.

41 Then cried the king with a loud voice, saying, Great art thou, O Lord God of Daniel, and there is none other beside thee.

THE PRAYER OF MANASSES.

KING OF JUDA.

WHEN HE WAS HOLDEN CAPTIVE IN BABYLON

INTRODUCTION

THIS short Prayer is ascribed to Manassch, and is said to have been composed by him during his captivity at Babylon, <sup>2 Chron.</sup> xxxiii 11—19. Though it contain nothing inconsistent with the circumstances and period of that monarch, it is not supposed to be his authentick production. It is not in any of the Hebrew copies of the Bible, and it is uncertain in what language it was originally composed. It is however written in a style of much piety and humility. The author of it speaks of repentance as requisite to sinners, in a manner similar to the declaration made by our Saviour, Matt. ix. 13. Dr. Gray

O LORD, Almighty God of our fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and of thou righteous seed, who hast made heaven and earth, with all the ornament thereof, who hast bound the sea by the word of thy commandment, who hast shut up the deep, and sealed it by thy terrible and glorious name, whom all men fear, and tremble before thy power, for the majesty of thy glory cannot be borne, and thine angry threatening toward sinners is insupportable but thy merciful promise is unmeasurable and unsearchable, for thou art the most high Lord, of great compassion, long-suffering, very merciful, and repentest of the evils of men. Thou, O Lord, according to thy great goodness hast promised repentance and forgiveness to them that have sinned against thee and of thine infinite mercies hast appointed repentance unto sinners, that they may be saved. Thou therefore, O Lord, that art the God of the just, hast not appointed repentance to the just as to Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, which have not sinned against thee, but thou hast appointed repentance unto me that am a sinner for I have sinned above the number of the sands of the sea. My transgressions, O Lord, are multiplied my transgressions are multiplied, and I am not worthy to behold and see the height of heaven for the multitude of mine iniquities. I am bowed down with many iron bands, that I cannot lift up mine head, neither have any release for I have provoked thy wrath, and done evil before thee. I did not thy will, neither kept I thy commandments. I have set up abominations, and have multiplied offences. Now therefore I bow the knee of mine heart, beseeching thee of grace. I have sinned, O Lord, I have sinned, and I acknowledge mine iniquities. Wherefore, I humbly beseech thee, to give me, O Lord, forgive me and destroy me not with mine iniquities. Be not angry with me for ever, by reserving evil for me, neither condemn me into the lower parts of the earth. For thou art the God, and the God of them that repent, and in me thou wilt show all thy goodness for thou wilt save me, that am unworthy, according to thy great mercy. Therefore I will praise thee for ever all the days of my life for all the powers of the heavens do praise thee, and thine is the glory for ever and ever. Amen

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE MACCABEES.

INTRODUCTION

THE first book of the Maccabees contains a collection of historical particulars relating to the Jews, from the beginning of the reign of Antiochus Epiphanes, in the year of the world 3829 to the death of Simon the high priest, 3869. It is supposed to have been originally written in the Hebrew or rather in the Chaldaick language of the Jerusalem dialect, as used by the Jews after the return from captivity. The author is by some thought to have been John Hyrcanus, the son of Simon, who was a prince and high priest of the Jews near thirty years, and who began his government at the period at which this history concludes. Josephus, indeed informs us, that the high priests were intrusted with the care of writing the annals of their country, and at the period of the Maccabees great attention seems to have been paid to preserve them. The author of the present book, who was probably some person publicly appointed to digest the history, appears to have had recourse to the national records, and sometimes refers to them. He reckons from a Greek era, but according to the Hebrew mode of computation. St. Jerome professes to have seen the book in the Hebrew, under a title the meaning of which is "The sceptre of the princes of the sons of God," a title which obviously alludes to Judas the valiant defender of God's persecuted people. This original is however now lost. In the Greek version from which our English translation was made, the book is denominated "the book of the Maccabees," from the persons whose actions are described in it. It was probably executed before the time of Theodotion, for it appears to have been used by authors, his contemporaries. In the Paris and London Polyglots, there are two Syriack versions of both the books of the Maccabees, which were made from the Greek, though they differ from it in some respects.

The two books of the Maccabees were certainly composed after the succession of Prophets had ceased among the Jews, and were never reckoned by them in the catalogue of the Sacred writings. They are not cited by our Saviour or His Apostles, and were considered as Apocryphal by the primitive church, notwithstanding which they were pronounced to be in every respect canonical by the Council of Trent.

This first book is cited as a respectable history by the Fathers. It was probably written by a contemporary author, who had witnessed in part the scenes which he so minutely and graphically describes, and who wrote under the lively impression of the revolutions which his country had recently experienced. It is composed, at least, with great accuracy and spirit, and perhaps approaches nearer to the style of Sacred history than any work now extant. St. John has been thought to substantiate the truth of a relation herein furnished, and Josephus appears to have copied most of its accounts into his Jewish antiquities, and though the author has been represented in a few instances as betraying some ignorance in treating of foreign affairs, yet in other respects many heathen writers corroborate his reports.

The book contains the history of Mattathias and his family, and of the wars which they at the head of their countrymen maintained against the kings of Syria in the defence of their religion and lives. From the death of Alexander, who had conquered Persia, and the countries dependant on that empire, Judea followed the fate of Syria, and for the space of one hundred and fifty years was exposed to all the ambitious contests which prevailed between the kings of Syria and Egypt. After various revolutions, and alternate subjugation to each of these kingdoms, and after having occasionally suffered all the oppression and exactions that tyranny could enforce by means of the high priests, and those princes who were appointed by the interest, and subject to the control, of the conquerors, Judea was at the time that this history begins a tributary province of Syria, under Antiochus Epiphanes, and cruelly harassed and pillaged by him. The severe persecution which he exercised, and his avowed designs, which tended to exterminate the religion, and indeed the whole nation of the Jews, inflamed the zeal of Mattathias to resentment and revolt, and upon his death excited Judas, in compliance with the dying injunction of his father, to attempt the deliverance of his country. The successive victories and prudent conduct of Judas and his brethren, which effected the accomplishment of their designs, constitute the chief subject of the present book. The relation affords a lively picture of a nation inspired by the patriotick heroism of its leaders, and struggling with enthusiasm for civil and religious liberty. It represents Judas and his brethren, anxious to restore the decayed estate of the people, and to purify the polluted sanctuary of their God, as endeavouring, by measures concerted in piety, and conducted with steady fortitude, to conclude the Divine covenant. It describes likewise, the gradual recovery of Judea from desolation and ruinous to importance and prosperity, and at the same time the worship of the true God reestablished on the ruins of idolatry.

The author, like the sacred historians, selects individual characters for consideration, and describes the misconduct as well as the virtues of the heroes. He treats of the affairs of other nations only so far as is connected with the circumstances of the Jewish history, and exhibits the changes and vicissitudes of other governments, as they tended to affect the interests of his country. Dr. Gray.

Medes, that he reigned in his stead, the first over Greece.

2 And made many wars, and won many strong holds, and slew the kings of the earth.

3 And went through to the ends of the earth, and took spoils of many nations, in so much that the earth was quiet before him; whereupon he was exalted, and his heart was lifted up.

4 And he gathered a mighty strong host, and ruled over countries, and nations, and kings, who became tributaries unto him.

5 And after these things he fell sick, and perceived that he should die.

6 Wherefore he called his servants, such as were honourable, and had been brought up with him from his youth, and parted his kingdom among them, while he was yet alive.

7 So Alexander reigned twelve years, and then died.

8 And his servants bare rule every one in his place.

9 And after his death they all put crowns upon themselves, so did their sons after them many years, and evils were multiplied in the earth.

10 And there came out of them a wicked root, Antiochus surnamed Epiphanes, son of Antiochus the king, who had been an hostage at Rome, and he reigned in the hundred and thirty and seventh year of the kingdom of the Greeks.

— the first over Greece ] Meaning Syria and Egypt, which at that time were called by the Hebrews the kingdom of the Greeks. Grotius.

6. — and parted his kingdom among them ] That is, he intrusted to four of them the chief administration of affairs. Grotius.

9 And after his death they all put crowns upon themselves ] Antigonus first assumed the royal dignity, he was followed by Ptolemy and the others. But they all abstained from that honour, as long as the sons of their king survived. Justin says so great was their modesty, that, although they possessed royal power, they were contented to forbear the appellation of kings whilst there existed a legitimate heir to Alexander. Dreusius.

10 And there came out of them a wicked root, &c ] That is, one from whom proceeded many most wicked actions, as the root throws out its branches. Grotius. Concerning the succession of Antiochus Epiphanes to the throne of his father Antiochus the Great, see Dan xi 21 and the note there.

11 — wicked men, ] Menelaus and the son of Iobias, according to Josephus. Grotius.

— Let us go and make a covenant with the heathen ] Let us form a league with Antiochus, and, to render it more secure, let us engage in the ordinances of his religion. Thus many of the Jews had formerly done, to ingratiate themselves sometimes with the Chaldeans, sometimes with the Egyptians. In what follows, 11 In those days went there out of Israel wicked men, who persuaded many, saying, Let us go and make a covenant with the heathen that are round about us; for since we departed from them we have had much sorrow.

12 So this device pleased them well.

13 Then certain of the people were so forward hereon, that they went to the king, who gave them licence to do after the ordinances of the heathen.

14 Whereupon they built a place of exercise at Jerusalem according to the customs of the heathen.

15 And made themselves uncircumcised, and forsook the holy covenant, and joined themselves to the heathen, and were sold to do much evil.

16 Now when the kingdom was established before Antiochus, he thought to reign over Egypt, that he might have the dominion of two realms.

17 Wherefore he entered into Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, and horsemen, and a great navy.

18 And made war against Ptolemy king of Egypt, but Ptolemy was afraid of him, and fled, and many were wounded to death.

19 Thus they got the strong cities in the land of Egypt, and he took the spoils thereof.

20 And after that Antiochus had smitten Egypt, he returned again in the hundred they assign a false cause of their calamities as their forefathers had done in Jeremiah, chap. xlv 18. Thus they had lost the remembrance of those great benefits of God who had restored them to their country on their turning back from idolatry to the worship of God. Grotius.

14 — a place of exercise ] Properly called a "gymnasium," where men contended in different exercises naked, a custom repugnant to the manners of the Hebrews. Grotius.

15 — and were sold to do much evil ] Became enslaved and devoted to the forgetful of their former liberty in the worship of God. Radmill. See a similar phrase 1 Kings xxi 25, Rom vii 14. Grotius.

16 — Now when the kingdom was established &c ] See these events predicted in Daniel, chap. vii 25, 26.

17 — elephants ] In the books of the Maccabees, we find frequent mention made of elephants because during the reign of Alexander the Great these animals were very much employed in the armies raised by the kings of Syria and Egypt. They are naturally of a very quiet and gentle disposition, and never make use of their strength, but when they are irritated or compelled to it. Then their strength is prodigious, and nothing can stand before them. Every creature that comes in their way they trample under foot, overthrow whole squadrons, beat down trees, and demolish houses. Calmet, Stackhouse.

20 And after that Antiochus had smitten Egypt &c ] The Jewish historian Josephus, in his Antiquities of the Jews, hereabouts begins to follow the first book of the Maccabees, a most excellent and most authentic history, and accordingly it is here with great fidelity and exactness abridged by him. Thesaur.

forty and third year, and went up against Israel and Jerusalem with a great multitude,

21 And entered proudly into the sanctuary, and took away the golden altar; and the candlestick of light, and all the vessels thereof,

22 And the table of the shewbread, and the pouring vessels, and the vials, and the censers of gold, and the veil, and the crowns, and the golden ornaments that were before the temple, all which he pulled off

23 He took also the silver and the gold, and the precious vessels also he took the hidden treasures which he found

24 And when he had taken all away, he went into his own land, having made a great massacre, and spoken very proudly

25 Therefore there was great mourning in Israel, in every place where they were,

26 So that the princes and elders mourned, the virgins and young men were made feeble, and the beauty of women was changed

27 Every bridegroom took up lamentation, and she that sat in the marriage chamber was in heaviness

28 The land also was moved for the inhabitants thereof, and all the house of Jacob was covered with confusion.

29 And after two years fully expired the king sent his chief collector of tribute unto the cities of Juda, who came unto Jerusalem with a great multitude,

30 And spake peaceable words unto them, but all was deceit for when they had given him credence, he fell suddenly upon the city, and smote it very sore, and destroyed much people of Israel

21 — hidden treasures] In the East where revolution is frequent it is extremely common to hide treasures in the ground and it is usual for conquerors to carry with them persons, reputed sorcerers, whose office it is to find concealed treasures. Thus says Sir I. Chardin at Surat when Surugi came there there were persons who with a stick striking on the ground or against walls found out those that had been hollowed or dug up, and ordered such place to be opened. Herodotus

30 — he fell suddenly upon the city] It was upon the return of the sabbath while the people were at their devotions that Apollonius the chief collector of the tribute put his bloody countenance in execution and massacred many of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and plundered the place, 2 Mac vi 14 &c. 31 And when he had taken the spoils of the city, he set it on fire, and pulled down the houses and walls thereof on every side.

32 But the women and children took they captive, and possessed the cattle.

33 Then builded they the city of David with a great and strong wall, and with mighty towers, and made it a strong hold for them.

34 And they put therein a sinful nation, wicked men, and fortified themselves therein

35 They stored it also with armour and victuals, and when they had gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem, they laid them up there, and so they became a sore snare.

36 For it was a place to lie in wait against the sanctuary, and an evil adversary to Israel.

37 Thus they shed innocent blood on every side of the sanctuary, and defiled it,

38 Insomuch that the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled because of them. whereupon the city was made an habitation of strangers, and became strange to those that were born in her; and her own children left her 39 Her sanctuary was laid waste like a wilderness, her feasts were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honour into contempt.

40 As had been her glory, so was her dishonour increased, and her excellency was turned into mourning

41 Moreover king Antiochus wrote to his whole kingdom, that all should be one people,

42 And every one should leave his laws so all the heathen agreed according to the commandment of the king

When he had overthrown the city walls, he built a citadel in the lower part of the city for the place was high and overlooked the temple on which account he fortified it with high walls and towers, and put into it a garrison of Macedonians. However in that citadel dwelt the impious and wicked part of the Jewish multitude, from whom it proved that the citizens suffered many and sore calamities. This citadel, of which we have such frequent mention in the following history both in the Maccabees and in Josephus seems to have been a castle built on an hill, lower than mount Zion, though upon its skirts, and higher than mount Moriah but between them both which hill the remains of the Jews now got possession of and built on it this citadel, and fortified it till a good while afterwards the Jews regained it, demolished it, and levelled the hill itself with the common ground that their enemies might no more recover it, and thence overlook the temple itself, and do them such mischief as they had long undergone from it. 21 We will not hearken to the king's words, to go from our religion, either on the right hand, or the left

22 Now when he had left speaking these words, there came one of the Jews in the sight of all to sacrifice on the altar which was at Modin, according to the king's commandment.

23 Which thing when Mattathias saw, he was inflamed with zeal, and was trembled, neither could he forbear to shew his anger according to judgment: wherefore he ran, and slew him upon the altar

24 Also the king's commissioner, who compelled men to sacrifice, he killed at that time, and the altar he pulled down.

25 Thus dealt he zealously for the law of God, like as Phinees did unto Zambri, the son of Salom.

26 And Mattathias cried throughout the city with a loud voice, saying, Whosoever is zealous of the law, and maintaineth the covenant, let him follow me.

27 So he and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that ever they had in the city

28 Then many that sought after justice and judgment went down into the wilderness, to dwell there

29 Both they, and their children, and their wives, and their cattle, because the afflictions increased sore upon them.

32 They pursued after them a great number, and having overtaken them, they camped against them, and made war against them on the sabbath day.

33 And they said unto them, Let that which ye have done hitherto suffice; come forth, and do according to the commandment of the king, and ye shall live.

34 But they said, We will not come forth, neither will we do the king's commandment, to profane the sabbath day.

35 So then they gave them the battle with all speed.

36 Howbeit they answered them not, neither cast they a stone at them, nor stopped the places where they lay hid.

37 But said, Let us die all in our innocency: heaven and earth shall testify for us, that ye put us to death wrongfully.

38 So they rose up against them in battle on the sabbath, and they slew them, with their wives and children, and their cattle, to the number of a thousand and people.

39 Now when Mattathias and his friends understood hereof, they mourned for them right sore.

40 And one of them said to another, If we all do as our brethren have done, and fight not for our lives and laws against the heathen, they will now quickly root us out of the earth.

41 At that time therefore they decreed, saying, Whosoever shall come to make battle with us on the sabbath day, we will fight against him; neither will we die all, as our brethren that were murdered in the secret places.

42 Then came there unto him a company of Assideans, who were mighty men of Israel, even all such as were voluntarily devoted unto the law.

43 Also all they that fled for persecution joined themselves unto them, and were a stay unto them.

44 So they joined their forces, and smote sinful men in their anger, and wicked men in their wrath: but the rest fled to the heathen for succour.

45 Then Mattathias and his friends went round about, and pulled down the altars.

46 And what children soever they found within the coast of Israel uncircumcised, those they circumcised privately.

47 They pursued also after the proud men, and the work prospered in their hand.

48 So they recovered the law out of the hand of the Gentiles, and out of the hand of kings, neither suffered they the sinners to triumph.

49 Now when the time drew near that Mattathias should die, he said unto his sons, Now hath pride and rebuke gotten strength, and the time of destruction, and the wrath of indignation.

50 Now therefore, my sons, be ye zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers.

51 Call to remembrance what acts our fathers did in their time, so shall ye receive great honour and an everlasting name.

52 Was not Abraham found faithful in temptation, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness?

53 Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment, and was made lord of Egypt.

54 Phinees our father in being zealous and fervent obtained the covenant of an everlasting priesthood.

55 Jesus for fulfilling the word was made a judge in Israel.

56 Caleb for bearing witness before the congregation received the heritage of the land.

57 David for being merciful possessed the throne of an everlasting kingdom.

58 Elias for being zealous and fervent for the law was taken up into heaven.

59 Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, by believing were saved out of the flame.

60 Daniel for his innocency was delivered from the mouth of lions.

61 And thus consider ye throughout all ages, that none that put their trust in him shall be overcome.

62 Fear not then the words of a sinful man: for his glory shall be dung and worms.

41 [At that time therefore they decreed, &c.] The decree, being ratified by the unanimous consent of all the priests and elders among them, and being received with the like approbation by the other Jews, to whom it was sent, became afterwards a general rule in all their wars. It amounted, however, only to a defensive resolution: and we do not find that they ever came to a decision for carrying on offensive operation on the sabbath day. Dean Usher's Statutes.

Chap. III. ver. 1. The Christian Judas called Maccabeus rose up in his stead. In the year that succeeded, I shall see this valiant chieftain with his noble brethren maintaining a religious war for twenty-six years from the time of the resurrection of Modin, the five successive kings of Syria, destroying above two hundred thousand of their best troops, and finally establishing the independence of their own country, and the aggrandizement of their family. Such a triumph of a petty province over a great empire is scarcely to be paralleled in the annals of history. But the Lord fought for Israel which they were religious and virtuous, and put their whole trust in him, and the inflexible spirit of the Jewish nation has yet been more rigid under persecution, and their zeal waxed hotter with the flame of adversity. The Hales.

4 In his acts he was like a lion, and like a lion's whelp roaring for his prey.

5 For he pursued the wicked, and sought them out, and burnt up those that vexed his people.

6 Wherefore the wicked shrank for fear of him, and all the works of iniquity were troubled, because salvation prospered in his hand.

7 He grieved also many kings, and made Jacob glad with his acts, and his memorial is blessed for ever.

8 Moreover he went through the cities of Juda, destroying the ungodly out of them, and turning away wrath from Israel.

9 So that he was renowned unto the utmost part of the earth, and he received unto him such as were ready to perish.

10 Then Apollonius gathered the Gentiles together, and a great host out of Samaria, to fight against Israel.

11 Which thing when Judas perceived, he went forth to meet him, and so he smote him, and slew him: many also fell down slain, but the rest fled.

12 Wherefore Judas took their spoils, and Apollonius' sword also, and therewith he fought all his life long.

13 Now when Seron, a prince of the army of Syria, heard say that Judas had gathered unto him a multitude and company of the faithful to go out with him to war, 14 He said, I will get me a name and honour in the kingdom, for I will go fight with Judas and them that are with him, who despise the king's commandment.

15 So he made him ready to go up, and there went with him a mighty host of the ungodly to help him, and to be avenged of the children of Israel.

16 And when he came near to the going up of Bethhoron, Judas went forth to meet him with a small company.

11 And the merchants of the country, hearing the fame of them, took silver and gold very much, with servants, and came into the camp to buy the children of Israel for slaves: a power also of Syria and of the land of the Philistines joined themselves unto them.

42 Now when Judas and his brethren saw that miseries were multiplied, and that the forces did encamp themselves in their borders; for they knew how the king had given commandment to destroy the people, and utterly abolish them,

43 They said one to another, Let us restore the decayed estate of our people, and let us fight for our people and the sanctuary.

44 Then was the congregation gathered together, that they might be ready for battle, and that they might pray, and ask mercy and compassion.

45 Now Jerusalem lay void as a wilderness, there was none of her children that went in or out: the sanctuary also was trodden down, and aliens kept the strong hold, the heathen had their habitation in that place; and joy was taken from Jacob, and the pipe with the harp ceased.

46 Wherefore the Israelites assembled themselves together, and came to Maspha, over against Jerusalem, for in Maspha was the place where they prayed aforetime in Israel.

47 Then they fasted that day, and put on sackcloth, and cast ashes upon their heads, and rent their clothes,

It is to be observed that the book of the Maccabees being in the Greek language, hence several names though somewhat varied according to the Greek form yet denote the same place with the Hebrew names from which they are thus varied. Thus Accaron is the same as Ekron, Amithus as Hamath, Gazer as Cezer, Bethanania as Bethan, Beroia as Josai, &c. which last place together with the one mentioned with it chap. 96 seems plainly to be situated beyond Jordan, in the country of Galilee or Galilee largely taken. Some names are also probably corrupted in course of time by transmission. Thus Zebadaians chap. vi. 41, appears to be a corrupt reading for Zebadaians, and so of other names noted in the margin of our Bibles. Dr. Hales.

48 And he opened the book of the law, wherein the heathen had sought to paint the likeness of their images.

49 They brought also the priests' garments, and the firstfruits, and the tithes: and the Nazarites they stirred up, who had accomplished their days.

50 Then cried they with a loud voice toward heaven, saying, What shall we do with these, and whither shall we carry them away?

51 For thy sanctuary is trodden down and profaned, and thy priests are in heaviness, and brought low.

52 And, lo, the heathen are assembled together against us to destroy us: what things they imagine against us, thou knowest.

53 How shall we be able to stand against them, except thou, O God, be our help?

54 Then sounded they with trumpets, and cried with a loud voice.

55 And after this Judas ordained captains over the people, even captains over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens.

56 But as for such as were building houses, or had betrothed wives, or were planting vineyards, or were fearful, those he commanded that they should return, every man to his own house, according to the law.

57 So the camp removed, and pitched upon the south side of Emmaus.

58 And Judas said, Arm yourselves, and be valiant men, and see that ye be in readiness.

48 And he opened the book of the law, &c.] This they did in the sight of God, to declare the reproachful and injurious conduct of the heathens, in painting the likenesses of their images in the sacred books, to the dishonour of the Jewish religion and law. Baronius.

The heathens polluted the book of the law by painting on the copies which they had seized the pictures of their gods, that so they might be no more of use to any true Israelite for their picture were forbidden by the law of God as much as their images, Lev. xxi. 1. Numb. xxxiii. 22, and to have either of them was equally esteemed in abomination among that people. Dean Prideaux.

49 They brought also the priests' garments, &c.] Because whilst the temple was standing they did not dare to offer sacrifices out of the temple, they spread before God the sacred vestments which they had preserved from the temple. Grotius.

— and the Nazarites they stirred up,] They caused them to stand in a conspicuous part of the assembly. Grotius.

50 — What shall we do with these?] As if they had said, The Nazarites ought to shew themselves in the temple and having performed their offerings, to be duly released from their vow. But we have no access to the temple. Grotius.

53 — except thou, O God, be our help.] In thus causing his army to address themselves to God for His assistance and protection Judas acted the part of a wise and religious commander, as knowing that the battle was the Lord's, and therefore that it would be unprofitable to begin so important an enterprise without first imploring the Divine aid. Stackhouse.

6 Judas defileth the plot, 14 and forces of Gorgias, 20 and spoileth their tents, 24 and overthroweth Lynas. 28 He pulleth down the altar which the heathen had prepared, and setteth up a new. 32 and maketh a wall about Suga.

THEN took Gorgias five thousand footmen, and a thousand of the best horsemen, and removed out of the camp by night;

2 To the end he might rush in upon the camp of the Jews, and smite them suddenly. And the men of the fortress were his guides.

3 Now when Judas heard thereof, he himself removed, and the valiant men with him, that he might smite the king's army which was at Emmaus.

4 While as yet the forces were dispersed from the camp.

5 In the mean season came Gorgias by night into the camp of Judas: and when he found no man there, he sought them in the mountains: for said he, These fellows flee from us.

6 But as soon as it was day, Judas shewed himself in the plain with three thousand men, who nevertheless had neither armour nor swords to their minds.

7 And they saw the camp of the heathen, that it was strong and well harnesssed and compassed round about with horsemen, and these were expert of war.

8 Then said Judas to the men that were with him, Fear ye not their multitude, neither be ye afraid of their assault.

9 Remember how our fathers were delivered in the Red sea, when Pharaoh pursued them with an army.

10 Now therefore let us cry unto heaven, if peradventure the Lord will have mercy upon us, and remember the covenant of our fathers, and destroy this host before our face this day.

11 That so all the heathen may know that there is one who delivereth and saveth Israel.

12 When the strangers lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming over against them.

13 Wherefore they went out of the camp to battle; but they that were with Judas sounded their trumpets.

14 So they joined battle, and the heathen being discomfited fled into the plain.

15 Howbeit all the hindmost of them were slain with the sword: for they pursued them unto Gazera, and unto the plains of Idumea, and Azotus, and Jamnia, so that there were slain of them upon a three thousand men.

16 Thus done, Judas returned again with his host from pursuing them.

17 And said to the people, Be not greedy of the spoils, inasmuch as there is a battle before us.

18 And Gorgias and his host were here by us in the mountain: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overcome them, and after this ye may boldly take the spoils.

19 As Judas was yet speaking these words, there appeared a part of them looking out of the mountain.

20 Who when they perceived that the Jews had put their host to flight, and were burning the tents, for the smoke that was seen declared what was done.

21 When therefore they perceived these things, they were sore afraid, and seeing also the host of Judas in the plain ready to fight.

22 They fled every one into the land of strangers.

23 Then Judas returned to spoil the tents, where they got much gold, and silver, and blue silk, and purple of the sea, and great riches.

25 Thus Israel had a great deliverance that day.

26 Now all the strangers that had escaped came and told Lysias what had happened.

27 Who, when he heard thereof, was confounded and discouraged, because neither such things as he would were done unto Israel, nor such things as the king commanded him were come to pass.

about 166 28 The next year therefore following Lysias gathered together threescore thousand choice men of foot, and five thousand horsemen, that he might subdue them.

29 So they came into Idumea, and pitched their tents at Bethsura, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

30 And when he saw that mighty army, he prayed and said, Blessed art thou, O Saviour of Israel, who didst quell the violence of the mighty man by the hand of thy servant David, and gavest the host of strangers into the hands of Jonathan the son of Saul, and his armourbearer, 31 Shut up this army in the hand of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their power and horsemen.

32 Make them to be of no courage, and cause the boldness of their strength to fall away, and let them quake at their destruction.

33 Cast them down with the sword of them that love thee, and let all those that know thy name praise thee with thanksgiving.

34 So they joined battle, and there were slain of the host of Lysias about five thousand men, even before them were they slain.

35 Now when Lysias saw his army put to flight, and the mindless of Judas' soldiers and how they were ready either to live or die valiantly, he went into Antiochia, and gathered together a company of strangers and having made his army greater than it was, he purposed to come again into Judea.

36 Then said Judas and his brethren, Behold, our enemies are discomfited: let us go up to cleanse and dedicate the sanctuary.

37 Upon this, all the host assembled themselves together, and went up into mount Sion.

40 And fell down flat to the ground upon their faces, and blew an alarm with the trumpets, and cried toward heaven.

44 And when as they consulted what to do with the altar of burnt offerings, which was profaned;

45 They thought it best to pull it down, lest it should be a reproach to them, because the heathen had defiled it: wherefore they pulled it down.

46 And laid up the stones in the mountain of the temple in a convenient place, until there should come a prophet to shew what should be done with them.

47 Then they took whole stones according to the law, and built a new altar according to the former.

52 Now on the five and twentieth day of the ninth month, which is called the month Casleu, in the hundred forty and eighth year, they rose up betimes in the morning,

53 And offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of burnt offerings, which they had made,

54 Look, at what time and what day the heathen had profaned it, even in that was it dedicated with songs, and citherns, and harps, and cymbals been kept constantly burning. After that they used no other than common fire in the temple, but still they avoided the bringing thither of any common fire, which had been profaned by other uses, and therefore kindled a flame by dashing two stones against each other. Dean Prideaux

52 Now on the five and twentieth day of the ninth month ] This was the very same day, on which three years before the temple had been profaned, just three years and a half after the city and temple had been desolated by Apollonius: and two years after Judas had taken on him the chief command of the Jews on his father's death. Dean Prideaux

56 And so they kept the dedication of the altar eight days ] The solemnity of this dedication was continued as here stated for eight days together, which they celebrated with great joy and thanksgiving, for the deliverance which God had given to them, and, for the more solemn acknowledgment hereof, they decreed the like festival to be ever after annually kept in commemoration of it. This was called the feast of dedication. It began every year on the twenty-fifth day of their ninth month Casleu (or Casleu) and was continued to the eighth day after, in the same manner as

59 Moreover Judas and his brethren with the whole congregation of Israel ordained, that the days of the dedication of the altar should be kept in their season from year to year by the space of eight days, from the five and twentieth day of the month Casleu, with mirth and gladness

60 At that time also they builded up the mount Sion with high walls and strong towers round about, lest the Gentiles should come and tread it down, as they had done before

61 And they set there a garrison to keep it, and fortified Bethsura to preserve it, that the people might have a defence against Idumea

This festival Christ honoured with His presence at Jerusalem coming thither on purpose to bear His part in the solemnizing of it which implies His approbation of it. And therefore from hence Grotius very justly infers that festival days in memorial of public blessings may piously be instituted by persons in authority without a Divine command or it may be added the example of a person divinely directed observing the same. For the institution of this festival was without either, there being neither any Divine precept nor the example of any Prophet for the observance of it. Dean Prideaux

60 — they builded up the mount Sion with high walls &c ] Apollonius, in taking Jerusalem had erected a fortress on mount Acra, chap. 13, which commanding the mountain of the temple and being still in the hands of the enemy gave them the advantage of annoying all those who went up to the temple to worship. To remedy this inconvenience Judas at first blocked up the fortress, ver. 11 of this chapter but finding that he could not conveniently put the requisite number of men he could the mountain of the temple is here related to be fortified with strong wall and high towers and placed therein a sufficient garrison both to defend it and protect those who went up to worship from all future assaults either from the fortress or from any other place. Dean Prideaux Stackhouse

because they besieged Israel. and he gave them a great overthrow, and abated their courage, and took their spoils

4 Also he remembered the injury of the children of Beniamin, who had been a snare and an offence unto the people, in that they lay in wait for them in the ways

5 He shut them up therefore in the towers, and encamped against them, and destroyed them utterly, and buried the towers of that place with fire, and all that were therein

6 Afterward he passed over to the children of Ammon, where he found a mighty power, and much people, with Timotheus then captain

7 So he fought many battles with them, till at length they were discomfited before him, and he smote them

8 And when he had taken Jazai, with the towns belonging thereto, he returned into Judea

9 Then the heathen that were at Galaad assembled themselves together against the Israelites that were in their quarters, to destroy them, but they fled to the fortress of Dithema,

10 And sent letters unto Judas and his brethren, The heathen that are round about us are assembled together against us to destroy us

11 And they are preparing to come and take the fortress whereunto we are fled, Timotheus being captain of their host

12 Come now therefore, and deliver us from their hands, for many of us are slain

13 Yet, all our brethren that were in the places of Tobic are put to death their wives and their children also they have carried away captives, and borne away their stuff and they have destroyed there about a thousand men

14 While these letters were yet reading, behold, there came other messengers from Galilee with their clothes rent, who reported on this wise,

15 And said, They of Ptolemais, and of Tyrus, and Sidon, and all Galilee of the Gentiles, are assembled together against us to consume us

16 Now when Judas and the people heard these words, there assembled a great congregation together, to consult what they should do for their brethren, that were in trouble, and assaulted of them.

17 Then said Judas unto Simon his brother, Choose thee out men and go and deliver thy brethren that are in Galilee, for I and Jonathan my brother will go into the country of Galaad.

18 So he left Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captains of the people, with the remnant of the host in Judea to keep it

19 Unto whom he gave commandment, saying, Take ye the charge of this people, and see that ye make not war against the heathen until the time that we come again.

20 Now unto Simon were given three thousand men to go into Galilee, and unto Judas eight thousand men for the country of Galaad

21 Then went Simon into Galilee, where he fought many battles with the heathen, so that the heathen were discomfited by him

22 And he pursued them unto the gate of Ptolemais, and there were slain of the heathen about three thousand men, whose spoils he took.

23 And those that were in Galilee, and in Arbattis, with their wives and their children, and all that they had, took his away with him, and brought them into Judea with great joy

24 Judas Maccabeus also and his brother Jonathan went over Jordan, and travelled three days' journey in the wilderness,

25 Where they met with the Nabathites, who came unto them in a peaceable manner, and told them every thing that had happened to their brethren in the land of Galaad cities are strong and great:

rest of the cities of the country of Galad, and that against to morrow they had appointed to bring their host against the forts, and to take them, and to destroy them all in one day

28 Hereupon Judas and his host turned suddenly by the way of the wilderness unto Bosor; and when he had won the city, he slew all the males with the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burned the city with fire

29 From whence he removed by night, and went till he came to the fortress

30 And betimes in the morning they looked up, and behold, there was an innumerable people bearing ladders and other engines of war, to take the fortress for they assaulted them.

31 When Judas therefore saw that the battle was begun, and that the cry of the city went up to heaven, with trumpets, and a great sound,

32 He said unto his host, Fight this day for you brethren

33 So he went forth behind them in three companies who sounded then trumpets, and cried with prayer

34 Then the host of Timotheus, knowing that it was Maccabeus, fled from him wherefore he smote them with a great slaughter, so that there were killed of them that day about eight thousand men

35 This done, Judas turned aside to Maspha, and after he had assaulted it, he took it, and slew all the males therein, and received the spoils thereof, and burnt it with fire

36 From thence went he, and took Casphon, Maged, Bosor, and the other cities of the country of Galad

37 After these things gathered Timo-theus another host, and encamped against Raphon beyond the brook

38 So Judas sent men to spy the host, who brought him word, saying, All the heathen that be round about us are assembled unto them, even a very great host

39 He hath also hired the Arabians to help them, and they have pitched their tents beyond the brook, ready to come and fight against thee Upon this Judas went to meet them.

40 Then Timotheus said unto the captains of his host, When Judas and his host come near the brook, if he pass over first unto us, we shall not be able to withstand him, for he will mightily prevail against us

41 But if he be afraid, and camp beyond the river, we shall go over unto him, and prevail against him

42 Now when Judas came near the brook he caused the scribes of the people to remain by the brook unto whom he gave commandment, saying, Suffer no man to remain in the camp, but let all come to the battle

43 So he went first over unto them, and all the people after him then all the heathen, being discomfited before him, cast away their weapons, and fled unto the temple that was at Carnaim

44 But they took the city, and burned the temple with all that were therein Thus was Carnaim subdued, neither could they stand any longer before Judas

45 Then Judas gathered together all the Isaachites that were in the country of Ga-lad, from the least unto the greatest, even their wives, and their children, and their stuff, a very great host, to the end they might come into the land of Judea

46 Now when they came unto Ephron, (this was a great city in the way as they should go, very well fortified) they could not turn from it, either on the right hand or the left, but must needs pass through the midst of it

47 Then they of the city shut them out, and stopped up the gates with stones

48 Whereupon Judas sent unto them in peaceable manner, saying, Let us pass through your land to go into our own country, and none shall do you any hurt, we will only pass through on foot howbeit they would not open unto him therefore of passing through the town and Grotius a sect took

51 Who then slew all the males with the edge of the sword, and rased the city, and took the spoils thereof, and passed through the city over them that were slain

52 After this went they over Jordan into the great plain before Bethsan

53 And Judas gathered together those that came behind, and exhorted the people all the way through, till they came into the land of Judea

54 So they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness, where they offered burnt offerings, because not one of them were slain until they had returned in peace

55 Now what time as Judas and Jonathan were in the land of Galad, and Simon his brother in Galilee before Ptolemæus,

56 Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captains of the garrisons, heard of the valiant acts and wulike deeds which they had done

58 So when they had given charge unto the garrison that was with them, they went toward Jimnia

59 Then came Goigias and his men out of the city to fight against them

60 And so it was, that Joseph and Azarias were put to flight, and pursued unto the borders of Judea, and there were slain that day of the people of Israel about two thousand men

3 Wherefore he came and sought to take the city, and to spoil it; but he was not able, because they of the city, having had warning thereof,

4 Rose up against him in battle: so he fled, and departed thence with great heaviness, and returned to Babylon

5 Moreover there came one who brought him tidings into Persia, that the armies, which went against the land of Judaea, were put to flight

6 And that Lysias, who went forth first with a great power, was driven away of the Jews, and that they were made strong by the armour, and power, and store of spoils, which they had gotten of the armies, whom they had destroyed:

7 Also that they had pulled down the abomination, which he had set up upon the altar in Jerusalem, and that they had compassed about the sanctuary with high walls, as before, and his city Bethsura

9 And there he continued many days for his grief was ever more and more, and he made account that he should die

10 Wherefore he called for all his friends, and said unto them, The sleep is gone from mine eyes, and my heart faileth for very care.

23 We have been willing to serve thy father, and to do as he would have us, and to obey his commandments,

24 For which cause they of our nation heretofore the tower, and are alienated from us: moreover as many of us as they could light on they slew, and spoiled our inheritance.

25 Neither have they stretched out their hand against us only, but also against all their borders.

26 And, behold, this day are they besieging the tower at Jerusalem, to take it: the sanctuary also and Bethsura have they fortified.

27 Wherefore if thou dost not prevent them quickly, they will do greater things than these, neither shalt thou be able to rule them.

28 Now when the king heard this, he was angry, and gathered together all his friends, and the captains of his army, and those that had charge of the horse.

29 There came also unto him from other kingdoms, and from isles of the sea, bands of hired soldiers.

30 So that the number of his army was in hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and two and thirty elephants exercised in battle.

31 These went through Idumea, and pitched against Bethsura, which they assaulted many days, making engines of war, but they of Bethsura came out, and burned them with fire, and fought valiantly.

32 Upon this Judas removed from the tower, and pitched in Bethzacharias, over against the king's camp.

33 Then the king, rising very early, marched fiercely with his host toward Bethzacharias, where his armies made them ready to battle, and sounded the trumpets.

34 And to this end they might provoke the elephants to fight, they brewed them the blood of grapes, and mulberries.

35 Moreover they divided the beasts

among the armies, and for every elephant they appointed a thousand men, armed with coats of mail, and with helmets of brass on their heads; and beside this, for every beast were ordained five hundred horsemen of the best.

36 These were ready at every occasion: wheresoever the beast was, and whithersoever the beast went, they went also, neither departed they from him.

37 And upon the beasts were there strong towers of wood, which covered every one of them, and were fast unto them with devices: there were also upon every one two and thirty strong men, that fought upon them, beside the Indian that ruled him.

38 As for the remnant of the horsemen, they set them on this side and that side at the two parts of the host, giving them signs what to do, and being harnessed all over amidst the ranks.

39 Now when the sun shone upon the shields of gold and brass, the mountains glistened therewith, and shined like lamps of fire.

40 So part of the king's army being spread upon the high mountains, and part on the valleys below, they marched on safely and in order.

41 Wherefore all that heard the noise of their multitude, and the marching of the company, and the rattling of the harness, were moved: for the army was very great and mighty.

42 Then Judas and his host drew near, and entered into battle, and there were slain of the king's army six hundred men.

<sup>Or that he cut them in</sup> 18 ¶ Then the king's army went up to Jerusalem to meet them, and the king pitched his tents against Judea, and against mount Sion.

<sup>Or that he cut them in</sup> 20 So the king took Bethsura, and set a garrison there to keep it.

<sup>Or that he cut them in</sup> 21 As for the sanctuary, he besieged it many days: and set there artillery with engines and instruments to cast fire and stones, and pieces to cast darts and slings.

<sup>Or that he cut them in</sup> 22 Whereupon they also made engines against their engines; and held them battle a long season.

<sup>Or that he cut them in</sup> 25 At that time Lysias heard say, that Philip, whom Antiochus the king, while he lived, had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus, that he might be king, <sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 27 Wherefore he went in all haste, and said to the king and the captains of the host and the company, We decay daily, and our victuals are but small and the place we lay siege unto is strong, and the affairs of the kingdom lie upon us.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 28 Now therefore let us be friends with these men, and make peace with them, and with all their nation, <sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 29 And covenant with them that they shall live after their laws, as they did before: for they are therefore displeased, and have done all these things, because we abolished their laws.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 30 So the king and the princes were content: wherefore he sent unto them to make peace, and they accepted thereof.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 31 Also the king and the princes made an oath unto them: whereupon they went out of the strong hold.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 32 Then the king entered into mount Sion, but when he saw the strength of the place, he brake his oath that he had made, and gave commandment to pull down the wall round about.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> 33 Afterward departed he in all haste, and returned unto Antiochia, where he found Philip to be master of the city: so he fought against him, and took the city by force.

<sup>Before CHRIST about 169</sup> IN the hundred and one and fiftieth year Demetrius the son of Seleucus departed from Rome, and came up with a few men.

26 Was returned out of Persia and Media, ] Whither he had been to raise troops.

Philip had fled into Egypt, with the hope of procuring assistance against Lysias: ver. 17, but being disappointed he returned into the East, and having there collected an army he took advantage of the king's absence in Judea, and seized the imperial city.

— and took the city by force ] And slew Philip him self, no doubt by the advice of Lysias as Josephus relates.

Chap. VII. ver. 1 — Demetrius the son of Seleucus departed from Rome. Sc. Demetrius, who was the son of Seleucus Philopator, and the lawful heir of the crown of Syria had been kept as a hostage, and afterwards in an honorable captivity, at Rome, during the reign of his uncle Antiochus Epiphanes, on whose death he solicited the senate for leave to return to Syria. But that political body, perceiving a minor like Epiphanes, on the throne of Syria to a prince in the prime of life, of considerable talents, and ambition refused his request: whereupon Demetrius privately escaped from Rome, and landed with a few men — only eight friends and ten servants — at Tripolis in Phoenicia, was joined by several of his adherents under the persuasion that he was patronised by the Romans, and advanced to Antioch, where the army declared for him, and accused Epiphanes and Lysias, and as a proof of their sincerity brought them to Demetrius.

unto a city of the sea coast, and reigned there

2 And as he entered into the palace of his ancestors, so it was, that his forces had taken Antiochus and Lysias, to bring them unto him

3 Wherefore, when he knew it, he said, Let me not see their faces

4 So his host slew them Now when Demetrius was set upon the throne of his kingdom,

5 There came unto him all the wicked and ungodly men of Israel, having Alcimus, who was desirous to be high priest, for their captain

6 And they accused the people to the king, saying, Judas and his brethren have slain all thy friends, and driven us out of our own land

7 Now therefore send some man whom thou trustest, and let him go and see what havoc he hath made among us, and in the king's land, and let him punish them with all them that aid them

8 Then the king chose Bacchides, a friend of the king, who ruled beyond the flood, and was a great man in the kingdom, and faithful to the king

9 And him he sent with that wicked Alcimus, whom he made high priest, and commanded that he should take vengeance of the children of Israel

10 So they departed, and came with a great power into the land of Judea, where they sent messengers to Judas and his brethren with peaceable words deceitfully

11 But they gave no heed to their words, for they saw that they were come with a great power

12 Then did there assemble unto Alcimus and Bacchides a company of scribes, to require justice

13 Now the Assideans were the first among the children of Israel that sought peace of them

14 For said they, One that is a priest of the seed of Aaron is come with this army, and he will do us no wrong

15 So he spake unto them peaceably, and swaie unto them, saying, We will procure the harm neither of you nor your friends

16 Whereupon they believed him howbeit he took of them three-score men, and slew them in one day, according to the words which he wrote,

17 The flesh of thy saints have they cast out, and their blood have they shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them

18 Wherefore the fear and dread of them fell upon all the people, who said, There is neither truth nor righteousness in them, for they have broken the covenant and oath that they made

19 After this removed Bacchides from Jerusalem, and pitched his tents in Bezeth, where he sent and took many of the men that had forsaken him, and certain of the people also, and when he had slain them, he cast them into the great pit

20 Then committed he the country to Alcimus, and left with him a power to aid him so Bacchides went to the king

21 But Alcimus contended for the high priesthood

26 Then the king sent Nicanor, one of his honourable princes, a man that bare deadly hate unto Israel, with commandment to destroy the people.

38 Be avenged of this man and his host, and let them fall by the sword: remember their blasphemies, and suffer them not to continue any longer.

39 So Nicanor went out of Jerusalem, and pitched his tents in Bethhoron, where an host out of Syria met him.

40 But Judas pitched in Adasa with three thousand men, and there he layed, saying,

47 Afterwards they took the spoils, and the prey, and smote off Nicanor's head, and his right hand, which he stretched out so proudly, and brought them away, and hanged them up toward Jerusalem.

48 For this cause the people rejoiced greatly, and they kept that day a day of great gladness.

49 Moreover they ordained to keep yearly this day, being the thirteenth of Adar.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Judah is informed of the power and policy of the Romans: and not that he had to do with them. 21 The articles of their league.

NOW Judah had heard of the fame of the Romans, that they were mighty and valiant men, and such as would lovingly accept all that joined themselves unto them, and make a league of amity with all that came unto them.

2 And that they were men of great valour. It was told him also of their wars and noble acts which they had done among the Galatians, and how they had conquered them, and brought them under tribute.

3 And what they had done in the country of Spain, for the winning of the mines of the silver and gold which is there.

4 And that by their policy and patience they had conquered all the place, though it were very far from them, and the kings

46 — and not one of them was left.] The simple account of the transactions with Nicanor given in this chapter is much more probable than the long detail in the second book of the Maccabees. The supposed reconciliation of Nicanor with Judah, that he would not willingly have Judah out of his sight for he loved the money in his heart. 2 Macc. xiv. 21. is inconsistent both with his character that he had been deadly hate unto Judah, ver. 20 of his chapter, and with his subsequent conduct. Dr. Hales says, he stretched out his right hand which he stretched out so proudly. Namely in his threatenings against the temple, wherein also is visible Simon's speech. Kim. xiv. 1. 2. Grotius Dean Prudent.

also that came against them from the uttermost part of the earth, till they had discomfited them, and given them a great overthrow, so that the rest did give them tribute every year.

5 Beside this, how they had discomfited in battle Philip, and Ptolemy, king of the Citim, with others that lifted up themselves against them, and had overcome them.

Or
Macc. xiv. 21

6 How also Antiochus the great king of Asia, that came against them in battle, having in hundred and twenty elephants, with horsemen, and chariots, and a very great army, was discomfited by them.

7 And how they took him alive, and covenanted that he and such as reigned after him should pay a great tribute, and give hostages, and that which was agreed upon.

8 And the country of India, and Media, and Lydia, and of the goodliest countries, which they took of him, and gave to king Eumenes.

9 Moreover how the Grecians had determined to come and destroy them.

10 And that they, having knowledge thereof, sent against them a certain captain, and fighting with them slew many of them, and carried away captives their wives and their children, and spoiled them, and took possession of their lands, and pulled down their strong holds, and brought them to be their servants unto this day.

11 It was told him besides, how they destroyed and brought under their dominion all other kingdoms and isles that at any time resisted them.

12 But with their friends and such as relied upon them they kept amity, and that they had conquered kingdoms both far and nigh, insomuch as all that heard of their name were afraid of them.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1 — of the fame of the Romans.] The Roman commonwealth is here described such as it was before the third Punic war. Grotius.

2 — among the Galatians.] Not the Galatians, to whom St. Paul wrote one of his Epistles, and who lived in the lesser Asia, but the European Galatians, called by the Latins Galli, the greatest part of whose country is now inhabited by the French. Dr. Hales.

5 — of the Citim.] Or Chittims. See note at Numb. xiv. 21.

6 And the country of India, and Media, and Lydia.] It appears, that from misnomer of the time either instead of India and Media we ought to read Ionia and Mysia. No Jew could be ignorant, that neither India nor Media belonged to the Romans, as to the successors of Eumenes. But that Ionia and Mysia were given to them, we learn from J. iv. 23.

13 Also that, whom they would help, to a kingdom, those reign, and whom again they would, they displace: finally, that they were greatly exalted;

14 Yet for all this none of them wore a crown, or was clothed in purple, to be magnified thereby:

15 Moreover how they had made for themselves a senate house, wherein three hundred and twenty men sat in council daily, consulting alway for the people, to the end they might be well ordered

16 And that they committed their government to one man every year, who ruled over all their country, and that all were obedient to that one, and that there was neither envy nor emulation among them.

17 In consideration of these things, Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Accos, and Jason the son of Eleazar, and sent them to Rome, to make a league of amity and confederacy with them,

18 And to intreat them that they would take the yoke from them: for they saw that the kingdom of the Grecians did oppress Israel with servitude.

19 They went therefore to Rome, which was a very great journey, and came into the senate, where they spake and said,

20 Judas Maccabeus with his brethren, and the people of the Jews, have sent us unto you, to make a confederacy and peace with you, and that we might be registered your confederates and friends

21 So that matter pleased the Romans well

22 And this is the copy of the epistle which the senate wrote back again in tables of brass, and sent to Jerusalem, that there

they might have by them a memorial of peace and confederacy

23 Good success be to the Romans, and to the people of the Jews, by sea and by land for ever the sword also and enemy be far from them

24 If there come first any war upon the Romans or any of their confederates throughout all their dominion,

25 The people of the Jews shall help them, as the time shall be appointed, with all their heart

26 Neither shall they give any thing unto them that make war upon them, or aid them with victuals, weapons, money, or ships, as it hath seemed good unto the Romans, but they shall keep their covenants without taking any thing therefrom

27 In the same manner also, if war come first upon the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help them with all their heart, according as the time shall be appointed them

28 Neither shall victuals be given to them that take part against them, or weapons, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans, but they shall keep their covenants, and that without deceit

29 According to these articles did the Romans make a covenant with the people of the Jews

30 Howbeit if hereafter the one party or the other shall think meet to add or diminish any thing, they may do it at their pleasures, and whatsoever they shall add or take away shall be ratified

31 And as touching the evils that Demetrius doeth to the Jews, we have written unto him, saying, Wherefore hast thou made thy yoke heavy upon our friends and confederates the Jews?

18 — the kingdom of the Grecians.] Namely, of the Syro-Macedonians or of the Seleucids. Drusus

22 And this is the copy of the epistle.] Josephus takes notice, that this was the first treaty which the Jews ever made with the Romans: and it is very probable from the manner in which the author here prefixes his account of it, for it appears that the Jews till this time had very little knowledge of the Roman state. Stackhouse

— in tables of brass.] For it was the custom of the Romans to inscribe both their laws and their treaties on brass, on account of the durability of the material. Drusus, Grotius

30. Howbeit if hereafter the one party or the other.] In the Greek the passage runs correctly: the one party and the other, that is, If hereafter it shall be thought meet to add or alter any thing by common consent, it may be done without affecting the treaty. Grotius

31 And as touching the evils &c.] These are the words, not of the treaty, but of the decree of the senate made at the same time. Grotius

— we have written unto him.] For Josephus informs us that Judas had made this a part of his request through his ambassadors. Drusus

The words of Justin on this occasion are "The Jews when they revolted from Demetrius having sought the friendship of the Romans, were the first of the nations of the East who regained their liberty, the Romans at that time easily giving to others of that which was not their own." Dean Prideaux This was according to the systematic scheme of subjugation practised by the Romans, who readily granted liberty to those who were under foreign dominion: that they might detach them from their rulers, and afterwards enslave them when a fit opportunity offered. De Hake

32 If therefore they complain any more against thee, we will do them justice, and fight with thee by sea and by land.

CHAP. IX

1 Alimus and Bacchides come again with new forces into Judia. 7 The army of Judas flees from him, 17 and he is slain. 30 Jonathan is in his place, 40 and receiveth his brother John's quarrel. 53 Alimus is plagued and duth. 70 Bacchides maketh peace with Jonathan.

FURTHERMORE when Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his host were slain in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alimus into the land of Judia the second time, and with them the chief strength of his host.

2 Who went forth by the way that leadeth to Galgala, and pitched their tents before Masaloth, which is in Arbela, and after they had won it, they slew much people.

3 Also the first month of the hundred fifty and second year they encamped before Jerusalem.

4 From whence they removed, and went to Beica, with twenty thousand footmen and two thousand horsemen.

5 Now Judas had pitched his tents at Fleisa, and three thousand chosen men with him.

6 Who seeing the multitude of the other army to be so great were sore afraid; whereupon many conveyed themselves out of the host, insomuch as there abode of them no more but eight hundred men.

7 When Judas therefore saw that his host slept away, and that the battle pressed upon him, he was sore troubled in mind, and much distressed, for that he had no time to gather them together.

8 Nevertheless unto them that remained he said, Let us arise and go up against our enemies, if peradventure we may be able to fight with them.

9 But they detorted him, saying, We shall never be able: let us now rather save our lives, and hereafter we will return with our brethren, and fight against them: for we are but few.

10 Then Judas said, God forbid that I should do this thing, and flee away from them: if our time be come, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our honour.

11 With that the host of Bacchides removed out of their tents, and stood over against them, their horsemen being divided into two troops, and then slingers and archers, going before the host, and they that marched in the foreward were all mighty men.

12 As for Bacchides, he was in the right wing, so the host drew near on the two parts, and sounded their trumpets.

13 They also of Judas' side, even they sounded their trumpets also, so that the earth shook at the noise of the armies, and the battle continued from morning till night.

14 Now when Judas perceived that Bacchides and the strength of his army were on the right side, he took with him all the hardy men, 15 Who discomfited the right wing, and pursued them unto the mount Azotus.

16 But when they of the left wing saw that they of the right wing were discomfited, they followed upon Judas and those that were with him hard at the heels from behind.

17 Whereupon there was a sore battle, insomuch as many were slain on both parts.

18 Judas also was killed, and the remnant fled.

Chap. IX. ver. 2 — to Galgala. This seems to have been put for Galilee. Arbela which is presently mentioned is said by Josephus to be a city of Galilee. It appears rather in this place to be the name of a district. Drusus.

— if our time be come, let us die manfully, &c. As if he had said, If Providence has ordained that we should die, let us die manfully, fighting for our brethren, and let us never stain the honour of our former valorous deeds by an ignominious flight. The conduct of Judas appears to have been built on this principle, as uniformly throughout his life on the notion, that God whenever He saw fit could save with a few as well as with a multitude.

titute. This notion had been confirmed by long experience of His providential goodness, and clears him from all imputation of rashness or presumptuous tempting of God in this action, an action for which St. Ambrose in particular has represented him as a model of heroism: for we have here, saith he, an example of warlike fortitude, wherein is exhibited no mean representation of what is honourable and glorious, in that he preferred death to servitude and disgrace. Stackhouse.

18 Judas also was killed. Thus fell the great Judas Maccabeus the restorer and preserver of the true worship of God, and the deliverer and protector of his distressed countrymen whilst he lived. In the whole compass of history we can find few patterns in all respects equal to him. Most of the commanders we read of were carried away by ambition, vanity, or vainglory.

19 Then Jonathan and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of his fathers in Madan.

20 Moreover they bewailed him, and all Israel made great lamentation for him, and mourned many days, saying,

21 How is the valiant man fallen, that delivered Israel!

22 As for the other things concerning Judas and his wars, and the noble acts which he did, and his greatness, they are not written: for they were very many.

23 Now after the death of Judas the wicked began to put forth their heads in all the corners of Israel, and there arose up all such as wrought iniquity.

24 In those days also was there a very great famine, by reason whereof the country revolted, and went with them.

25 Then Bacchides chose the wicked men, and made them lords of the country.

26 And they made enquiry and search for Judas' friends, and brought them unto Bacchides, who took vengeance of them, and used them despitefully.

27 So was there a great affliction in Israel, the like whereof was not since the time that a prophet was not seen among them.

28 For this cause all Judas' friends came together, and said unto Jonathan,

29 Since thy brother Judas died, we have no man like him to go forth against our enemies, and Bacchides, and against them of our nation that are adversaries to us.

30 Now therefore we have chosen thee this day to be our prince and captain in his stead, that thou mayest light our battles.

31 Upon this Jonathan took the governance upon him at that time, and rose up instead of his brother Judas.

32 But when Bacchides gat knowledge thereof, he sought for to slay him.

33 Then Jonathan, and Simon his brother, and all that were with him, perceiv-ing that, fled into the wilderness of Thecoe and pitched their tents by the water of the pool Asphar.

34 Which when Bacchides understood, he came near to Jordan with all his host upon the sabbath day.

35 Now Jonathan had sent his brother John, a captain of the people, to pray his friends the Nabathites, that they might leave with them their carriage, which was much.

36 But the children of Jambri came out of Medaba, and took John, and all that he had, and went then way with it.

37 After this came word to Jonathan and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri made a great marriage, and were bringing the bride from Nabathitha with a great train, as being the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan.

38 Therefore they remembered John their brother, and went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain.

39 Where they lifted up their eyes, and looked, and, behold, there was much ado and great carriage, and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends and brethren, to meet them with drums, and instruments of musick, and many weapons.

40 Then Jonathan and they that were with him rose up against them from the place where they lay in ambush, and made a slaughter of them in such sort, as many fell down dead, and the remnant fled into the mountain, and they took all their spoils.

41 Thus was the marriage turned into mourning, and the noise of their melody into lamentation.

42 So when they had avenged fully the blood of their brother, they turned again to the marsh of Jordan.

43 Now when Bacchides heard hereof, he came on the sabbath day unto the banks of Jordan with a great power.

44 Then Jonathan said to his company, Let us go up now and fight for our lives,

But in this Jewish leader we find all the characters of a great hero—courage and intrepidity, guided by counsel and wisdom, and without any alloy either of rashness or of pride. And what a profound knowledge he had of the laws of God, and the principles of true morality every speech that he made to his men, when he animated them to the combat and inspired them with a contempt of the greatest dangers, is a sufficient indication. for it standeth not with us to day, as in time past

16 I say, behold, the battle is before us and behind us, and the water of Jordan on this side and that side, the marsh likewise and wood, neither is there place for us to turn aside

46 Wherefore cry ye now unto heaven, that ye may be delivered from the hand of your enemies

47 With that they joined battle, and Jonathan stretched forth his hand to smite Bacchides, but he turned back from him

48 Then Jonathan and they that were with him leapt into Jordan, and swam over unto the farther bank: howbeit the other passed not over Jordan unto them

49 So there were slain of Bacchides' side that day about a thousand men

50 Afterward returned Bacchides to Jerusalem, and repaired the strong cities in Judea, the fort in Jericho, and Emmaus, and Bethoron, and Bethel, and Thamnatha, Pharathon, and Taphon, these did he strengthen with high walls, with gates, and with bulwarks

51 And in them he set a garrison, that they might work malice upon Israel

52 He fortified also the city Bethsura, and Gazara, and the tower, and put forces in them, and provision of victuals

53 Besides, he took the chief men's sons in the country for hostages, and put them into the tower at Jerusalem to be kept

54 Moreover in the hundred fifty and third year, in the second month, Alcimus commanded that the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary should be pulled down, he pulled down also the work of the prophets

55 And as he began to pull down, even at that time was Alcimus plagued, and his enterprises hindered: for his mouth was stopped, and he was taken with a palsy, so that he could no more speak any thing, nor give order concerning his house. Before CHRIST about 160

56 So Alcimus died at that time with great torment

57 Now when Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, he returned to the king, whereupon the land of Judea was in rest two years.

58 Then all the ungodly men held a council, saying, Behold, Jonathan and his company are at ease, and dwell without care: now therefore we will bring Bacchides hither, who shall take them all in one night

59 So they went and consulted with him.

60 Then removed he, and came with a great host, and sent letters privily to his adherents in Judea, that they should take Jonathan and those that were with him: howbeit they could not, because their counsel was known unto them.

61 Wherefore they took of the men of the country, that were authors of that mischief, about fifty persons, and slew them.

62 Afterward Jonathan, and Simon, and they that were with him, got them away to Bethbasi, which is in the wilderness, and they repaired the decays thereof, and made it strong

63 Which thing when Bacchides knew, he gathered together all his host, and sent word to them that were of Judea

64 Then went he and laid siege against Bethbasi, and they fought against it a long season, and made engines of war

65 But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the city, and went forth himself into the country, and with a certain number went he forth

66 And he smote Odonarke and his brethren, and the children of Phasnon in their tent

51 — [that the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary should be pulled down] Found the sanctuary there was built by the order of the Patriarches Haggai and Zechariah: a low wall or inclosure to separate the holy part of the sanctuary of the house from the unholy: and therefore was it that this no unclean person should ever enter. Alcimus who had apostatized from

Judaism, in order to take away this distinction, and give the Gentile, with whom he wished to ingratiate himself, equal liberty with the Jew to pass into the inner courts of the temple, ordered this wall of partition to be taken down. Dean Prideaux, Chetiv.

57 — [he returned to the king] It is most likely that Demetrius had by this time received the letters which were sent to him by the Romans in behalf of the Jews, and thereupon gave Bacchides orders to refrain from vexing that people: and that in obedience to these orders, Bacchides took occasion on the death of Alcimus to leave the country. 67 And when he began to smite them, and came up with his forces, Simon and his company went out of the city, and burned up the engines of war.

68 And fought against Bacchides, who was discomfited by them, and they afflicted him sore for his counsel and travail was in vain.

69 Wherefore he was very wroth at the wicked men that gave him counsel to come into the country, inasmuch as he slew many of them, and purposed to return into his own country.

70 Whereof when Jonathan had knowledge, he sent ambassadors unto him, to the end he should make peace with him, and deliver them the prisoners.

71 Which thing he accepted, and did according to his demands, and swore unto him that he would never do him harm all the days of his life.

72 When therefore he had restored unto him the prisoners that he had taken aforetime out of the land of Judea, he returned and went his way into his own land, neither came he any more into their borders.

73 Thus the sword ceased from Israel but Jonathan dwelt at Machmas, and began to govern the people, and he destroyed the ungodly men out of Israel.

CHAP. X

1 Demetrius maketh large offers to have peace with Jonathan 25 His letters to the Jews 27 Jonathan maketh peace with Alexander 31 who killeth Demetrius, 38 and marreth the delight of Ptolemus 62 Jonathan is sent for by him and much honoured 75 and prevaileth against the forces of Demetrius the younger 81 and burneth the temple of Dagon

IN the hundred and sixtieth year Alexander, the son of Antiochus surnamed Epiphanes, went up and took Ptolemais for the people had received him, by means whereof he reigned there.

2 Now when king Demetrius heard thereof, he gathered together an exceeding great host, and went forth against him to fight.

3 Moreover Demetrius sent letters unto Jonathan with loving word, so as he magnified him.

4 For said he, Let us first make peace with him, before he join with Alexander against us.

5 Else he will remember all the evil that we have done against him, and against his brethren and his people.

6 Wherefore he gave him authority to gather together an host, and to provide weapons, that he might aid him in battle. he commanded also that the hostages that were in the tower should be delivered him.

7 Then came Jonathan to Jerusalem, and read the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the tower.

8 Who were sore afraid, when they heard that the king had given him authority to gather together an host.

9 Whereupon they of the tower delivered their hostages unto Jonathan, and he delivered them unto their parents.

10 This done, Jonathan settled himself in Jerusalem, and began to build and repair the city.

11 And he commanded the workmen to build the walls and the mount Sion round about with square stones for fortification, and they did so.

12 Then the strangers, that were in the fortresses which Bacchides had built, fled away.

13 Inasmuch as every man left his place, and went into his own country.

14 Only at Bethsura certain of those that had forsaken the law and the commandments remained still for it was their place of refuge.

73 — but Jonathan dwelt at Machmas,] That is Machmas town about nine miles to the north of Jerusalem: there he governed Israel according to the law, cut off all that apostatized from it, restored again justice and righteousness in the land, and founded, as far as he could, all that was amiss either in church or state. Dean Prideaux.

[chap. X ver. 1 — Alexander, the son of Antiochus] That is he reputed son of Antiochus Epiphanes. He was in reality an impostor of Rhodes named Balas set up in opposition to Demetrius by the kings of Egypt and Pergamus and patronized by the Romans, who never forgive the flight of Demetrius from Rome, and his assumption of the Syrian throne with out their consent. They now therefore by a decree empowered the impostor to raise forces for the recovery of the kingdom with which he aided to Ptolemus, secured that city, and was joined by numbers of the

Syrians disaffected to Demetrius. Dr. Hales

This Alexander Balas who certainly pretended to be the son of Antiochus Epiphanes and was owned for such by the Jews and Romans and many others, and yet is by several historians deemed a counterfeit and of no family at all is however by Josephus believed to have been the real son of that Antiochus and by him always spoken of accordingly. And truly, since the best and contemporary and authentic author of the first book of Maccabees calls him the son of Antiochus I suppose the other writers who are all much later, are not to be followed against such evidence though perhaps Epiphanes may have had him by a woman of no family. The king of Egypt also, Philometor, soon gave him his daughter in marriage which he would hardly have done had he believed him to be a counterfeit and of so very mean a birth. The later historians pretend. Whitton

Jonathan when also it was told him of the battles and noble acts which he and his brethren had done, and of the pains that they had endured,

16 He said, Shall we find such another man? now therefore we will make him our friend and confederate

17 Upon this he wrote a letter, and sent it unto him, according to these words, saying,

18 King Alexander to his brother Jonathan sendeth greeting

19 We have heard of thee, that thou art a man of great power, and meet to be our friend

20 Wherefore now this day we ordain thee to be the high priest of thy nation, and to be called the king's friend, (and therewithal he sent him a purple robe and a crown of gold) and require thee to take our part, and keep friendship with us.

21 So in the seventh month of the hundred and sixtieth year, at the feast of the tabernacles, Jonathan put on the holy robe, and gathered together forces, and provided much armour

22 Whereof when Demetrius heard, he was very sorry, and said,

23 What have we done, that Alexander hath prevented us in making amity with the Jews to strengthen himself?

24 I also will write unto them words of encouragement, and promise them dignities and gifts, that I may have them aid.

25 He sent unto them therefore to this effect King Demetrius unto the people of the Jews sendeth greeting

26 Whereas ye have kept covenants with us, and continued in our friendship, not joining yourselves with our enemies, we have heard hereof, and are glad.

27 Wherefore now continue ye still to be faithful unto us, and we will well recompense you for the things ye do in our behalf,

28 And will grant you many immunities, and give you rewards

29 And now do I free you, and for your sake I release all the Jews, from tributes, and from the customs of salt, and from crown taxes,

30 And from that which appertaineth unto me to receive for the third part of the seed, and the half of the fruit of the trees, I release it from this day forth, so that they shall not be taken of the land of Judea, nor of the three governments which are added thereunto out of the country of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forth for evermore

31 Let Jerusalem also be holy and free, with the borders thereof, both from tithes and tributes.

32 And as for the tower which is at Jerusalem, I yield up my authority over it, and give it to the high priest, that he may set in it such men as he shall choose to keep it

33 Moreover I freely set at liberty every one of the Jews, that were carried captives out of the land of Judea into any part of my kingdom, and I will that all my officers remit the tributes even of their cattle.

34 Furthermore I will that all the feasts, and sabbaths, and new moons, and solemn days, and the three days before the feast, and the three days after the feast, shall be all days of immunity and freedom for all the Jews in my realm

20 — we ordain thee to be the high priest of thy nation ] Since the return from the Babylonian captivity, the office of high priest had been in the family of Jozadak, and in a lineal descent was transmitted down to Onias the third of that name. He was supplanted by Jason his brother, as Juchan was by his brother Menelaus, on whose death Alcimus, of a different family, was put into the office by command of the king of Syria. Whether the Asmonaeans were of the race of Jozadak we are not informed, but they were certainly of the house of Jozadak, which in 115 was the first class of the sons of Aaron, and therefore upon the failure of the former pontifical family, they had the best right to succeed. With this right Jonathan took the office, and in his family it became settled, and continued for several descents, until the time of Herod, who from an office of inheritance changed it into one of avarice and pleasure. Whoever had the power after him, put the high priest in or out, as they thought fit, till at length the office was extinguished by the destruction of the temple by the Romans. Dean Prebaur, Stallhouse.

— a purple robe and a crown of gold ] As ensigns of the great dignity with which he invested him. To wear a purple robe was a mark of high nobility. See Ex. viii. 15. Dean Prebaur, Stallhouse. These presents were sent to Jonathan by Qinarich, prince of Judea. Dr Hales.

21 — Jonathan put on the holy robe ] Not that sent by Alexander, but the pontifical or high priest's robe, as Josephus explains it. Crotius.

25 — And will grant you many immunities, &c. ] The list of these offered immunities, exemptions, and privileges, (ver. 29—43,) is curious. It demonstrates the greatness and extent of the oppressions and exactions of the Syrian government respecting the Jews throughout the empire, and it furnishes a sufficient excuse to Jonathan and the people, in rejecting these proposals from the insincere Demetrius, and preferring the alliance of Alexander. Dr Hales.

29 — customs of salt, &c. ] The Eastern people to this day support the expenses of government in common, by paying a certain proportion of the produce of their lands to their princes. And it appears from this and other passages in Scripture, that the custom was in ancient times the same. Sir J Chardin, Harmer.

— crown taxes.] The Jews were wont to present crowns to the kings of Syria afterwards that gold, which was paid instead of those crowns, or which was expended in making them, was called the crown gold and crown tax. The parallel passage in Josephus is "I forgive you the tax upon salt, and the value of the crowns which you used to offer to me." Crotius, Whiston.

30 — the three governments ] See chap. xi. 34.

Before
about 133.

35 Also no man shall have authority to meddle with them, or to molest any of them in any matter.

36 I will further, that there be enrolled among the king's forces about thirty thousand men of the Jews, unto whom pay shall be given, as belongeth to all the king's forces.

37 And of them some shall be placed in the king's strong holds, of whom also some shall be set over the affairs of the kingdom, which are of trust: and I will that their overseers and governors be of themselves, and that they live after their own laws, even as the king hath commanded in the land of Judea.

38 And concerning the three governments that are added to Judea from the country of Samaria, let them be joined with Judea, that they may be reckoned to be under one, nor bound to obey other authority than the high priest's.

39 As for Ptolemais, and the land pertaining thereto, I give it as a free gift to the sanctuary of Jerusalem for the necessary expences of the sanctuary.

40 Moreover I give every year fifteen thousand shekels of silver out of the king's accounts from the places appertaining.

41 And all the overplus, which the officers payed not in as in former time, from henceforth shall be given toward the works of the temple.

42 And beside this, the five thousand shekels of silver, which they took from the uses of the temple out of the accounts year by year, even those things shall be released, because they appertain to the priests that minister.

43 And whosoever they be that flee unto the temple at Jerusalem, or be within the liberties thereof, being indebted unto the king, or for any other matter, let them be at liberty, and all that they have in my realm.

44 For the building also and repairing of the works of the sanctuary expences shall be given of the king's accounts.

45 Yea and for the building of the walls of Jerusalem, and the fortifying thereof round about, expences shall be given out of the king's accounts, as also for the building of the walls in Judea.

46 Now when Jonathan and the people heard these words, they gave no credit unto them, nor received them, because they remembered the great evil that he had done in Israel, for he had afflicted them very sore.

47 But with Alexander they were well pleased, because he was the first that entertained of true peace with them, and they were confederate with him always.

48 Then gathered king Alexander great forces, and camped over against Demetrius.

49 And after the two kings had joined battle, Demetrius' host fled: but Alexander followed after him, and prevailed against them.

50 And he continued the battle very sore until the sun went down: and that day was Demetrius slain.

51 Afterward Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemee king of Egypt with a message to this effect.

52 Inasmuch as I am come again to my realm, and am set in the throne of my progenitors, and have gotten the dominion, and overthrown Demetrius, and recovered our country, 53 For after I had joined battle with him, both he and his host was discomfited by us, so that we sit in the throne of his kingdom.

54 Now therefore let us make a league of amity together, and give me now thy daughter to wife: and I will be thy son in law, and will give both thee and her gifts according to thy dignity.

55 Then Ptolemee the king gave answer, saying, Happy be the day wherein thou didst return into thy land of thy fathers, and satest in the throne of thine kingdom.

56 And now will I do to thee, as thou hast written: meet me therefore at Ptolemais, that we may see one another, for I will marry my daughter to thee according to thy desire.

57 So Ptolemee went out of Egypt with his daughter Cleopatra, and they came unto Ptolemais in the hundred threescore and second year.

58 Where king Alexander meeting him, he gave unto him his daughter Cleopatra, and celebrated her marriage at Ptolemais with great glory, as the manner of kings is.

59 Now king Alexander had written unto Jonathan, that he should come and meet him.

60 Who thereupon went honourably to Ptolemais, where he met the two kings, and gave them and their friends silver and gold, and many presents, and found favour in their sight.

61 At that time certain pestilent fellows of Israel, men of a wicked life, assembled themselves against him, to accuse him but the king would not hear them

62 Yet more than that, the king commanded to take off his garments, and clothe him in purple and they did so

63 Also he made him sit by himself, and said unto his princes, Go with him into the midst of the city, and make proclamation, that no man complain against him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any manner of cause

64 Now when his accusers saw that he was honoured according to the proclamation, and clothed in purple, they fled all away

65 So the king honoured him, and wrote him among his chief friends, and made him a duke, and partaker of his dominion

66 Afterward Jonathan returned to Jerusalem with peace and gladness

67 Furthermore in the hundred threescore and fifth year came Demetrius son of Demetrius out of Cete into the land of his fathers

68 Whereof when king Alexander heard tell, he was right sorry, and returned into Antioch

69 Then Demetrius made Apollonius the governor of Ctesyria his general, who gathered together a great host, and camped in Tinnis, and sent unto Jonathan the high priest, saying,

70 Thou alone liftest up thyself against us, and I am laughed to scorn for thy sake, and reproached and why dost thou vaunt thy power against us in the mountains?

71 Now therefore, if thou trustest in thine own strength, come down to us into the plain field, and there let us try the matter together for with me is the power of the cities

72 Ask and learn who I am, and the rest that I have put, and they shall tell thee that thy foot is not able to stand before our face; for thy fathers have been twice put to flight in their own land.

73 Wherefore now thou shalt not be able to abide the horsemen and so great a power in the plain, where is neither stone nor flint, nor place to flee unto.

74 So when Jonathan heard these words of Apollonius, he was moved in his mind, and choosing ten thousand men he went out of Jerusalem, where Simon his brother met him for to help him

75 And he pitched his tents against Joppe but they of Joppe shut him out of the city, because Apollonius had a garrison there

76 Then Jonathan laid siege unto it whereupon they of the city let him in for fear and so Jonathan won Joppe

77 Whereof when Apollonius heard, he took three thousand horsemen, with a great host of footmen, and went to Azotus as one that journeyed, and therewithal drew him forth into the plain, because he had a great number of horsemen, in whom he put his trust.

78 Then Jonathan followed after him to Azotus, where the armies joined battle.

79 Now Apollonius had left a thousand horsemen in ambush

80 And Jonathan knew that there was an ambushment behind him, for they had compassed in his host, and cast darts at the people, from morning till evening

81 But the people stood still, as Jonathan had commanded them and so the enemies' horses were tired

82 Then brought Simon forth his host, and set them against the footmen, (for the horsemen were spent,) who were discomfited by him, and fled

83 The horsemen also, being scattered in the field, fled to Azotus, and went into Bethdagon, their idol's temple, for safety

84 But Jonathan set fire on Azotus, and the cities round about it, and took them

AND the king of Egypt gathered together a great host, like the sand that lieth upon the sea shore, and many ships, and went about through deceit to get Alexander's kingdom, and join it to his own

2 Whereupon he took his journey into Syria in peaceable manner, so as they of the cities opened unto him, and met him for king Alexander had commanded them so to do, because he was his father in law

3 Now as Ptolemee entered into the cities, he set in every one of them a garrison of soldiers to keep it

5. Also they told the king whatsoever Jonathan had done, to the intent he might blame him but the king held his peace

6 Then Jonathan met the king with great pomp at Joppe, where they saluted one another, and lodged

7 Afterward Jonathan, when he had gone with the king to the river called Eleutherus, returned again to Jerusalem

8 King Ptolemee therefore, having gotten the dominion of the cities by the sea unto Seleucia upon the sea coast, imagined wicked counsels against Alexander

9 Whereupon he sent ambassadors unto king Demetrius, saying, Come, let us make a league betwixt us, and I will give thee my daughter whom Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in thy father's kingdom

10 For I repent that I gave my daughter unto him, for he sought to slay me

11 Thus did he slander him, because he was desirous of his kingdom king Ptolemee brought forth his host and met him with a mighty power, and put him to flight.

16 So Alexander fled into Arabia, there to be defended: but king Ptolemee was exalted.

17 For Zibdiel the Arabian took off Alexander's head, and sent it unto Ptolemee.

18 King Ptolemee also died the third day after, and they that were in the strong holds were slain one of another.

19 By this means Demetrius reigned in the hundred threescore and seventh year.

20 At the same time Jonathan gathered together them that were in Judea, to take the tower that was in Jerusalem: and he made many engines of war against it.

21 Then certain ungodly persons, who hated their own people, went unto the king, and told him that Jonathan besieged the tower.

22 Whereof when he heard, he was angry, and immediately removing, he came to Ptolemus, and wrote unto Jonathan, that he should not lay siege to the tower, but come and speak with him at Ptolemus in great haste.

23 Nevertheless Jonathan, when he heard this commandment to besiege it still, and he chose certain of the elders of Israel and the priests, and put himself in peril.

24 And took silver and gold, and raiment, and divers presents besides, and went to Ptolemus unto the king, where he found favour in his sight.

25 And though certain ungodly men of the people had made complaints against him,

26 Yet the king entreated him as his predecessors had done before, and promoted him in the sight of all his friends.

28 Then Jonathan desired the king, that he would make Judea free from tribute, as also the three governments, with the country of Samaria, and he promised him three hundred talents.

29 So the king consented, and wrote letters unto Jonathan of all these things after this manner.

copy of these things, and let it be delivered unto Jonathan, and set upon the holy mount in a conspicuous place.

- 38 After this, when king Demetrius saw that the land was quiet before him, and that no resistance was made against him, he sent away all his forces, every one to his own place, except certain bands of strangers, whom he had gathered from the isles of the heathen: wherefore all the forces of his fathers hated him.

39 Moreover there was one Tryphon, that had been of Alexander's part afore, who, seeing that all the host murmured against Demetrius, went to Simileus the Arabian, that brought up Antiochus the young son of Alexander,

40 And lay sore upon him to deliver him this young Antiochus, that he might reign in his father's stead: he told him therefore all that Demetrius had done, and how his men of war were at enmity with him, and there he remained a long season.

41 In the mean time Jonathan sent unto king Demetrius, that he would cast those of the tower out of Jerusalem, and those also in the fortresses: for they fought against Israel.

42 So Demetrius sent unto Jonathan, saying, I will not only do this for thee and thy people, but I will greatly honour thee and thy nation, if opportunity serve.

43 Now therefore thou shalt do well, if thou send me men to help me, for all my forces are gone from me.

44 Upon this Jonathan sent him three thousand strong men unto Antioch: and when they came to the king, the king was very glad of their coming.

45 Howbeit they that were of the city gathered themselves together into the midst of the city, to the number of an hundred and twenty thousand men, and would have slain the king.

38 — he sent away all his forces,] Reserving none in his pay but his Cretans and some other mercenaries: hereby he not only deprived himself of those veterans who had served his father, and would have been his chief support in his throne, but made them also his bitterest enemies by depriving them of their only means of subsistence. The mischief of this he severely felt in the succeeding revolts and revolutions: when, in consequence of his cruelty, folly, and rapine, the people became daily more and more alienated from him till at length they were ready for a general defection. Dean Prideaux.

39 — that had been of Alexander's part afore.] He had formerly served Alexander as governor of Antioch, but in the present king's reign was laid aside. Stukely.

— Simileus the Arabian.] Most probably Zabdiel ver. 17 who had murdered Alexander, and returned his son Antiochus in his hands. The Greek word rendered Simileus, is taken from 119 Arabic Al molec: that is, the king, and denotes his office.

46 Wherefore the king fled into the court: but they of the city kept the passages of the city, and began to fight.

47 Then the king called to the Jew for help, who came unto him all at once, and disposing them selves through the city slew that day in the city to the number of an hundred thousand.

48 Also they set fire on the city, and gat many spoils that day, and delivered the king.

49 So when they of the city saw that the Jews had got the city as they would, their courage was abated: wherefore they made supplication to the king, and cried saying,

50 Grant us peace, and let the Jews cease from assaulting us, and the city.

51 With that they cast away their weapons, and made peace, and the Jew were honoured in the sight of the king, and in the sight of all that were in his realm, and they returned to Jerusalem, having great spoils.

52 So king Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was quiet before him.

53 Nevertheless he dissembled in all that ever he spake, and estranged himself from Jonathan, neither rewarded he him according to the benefits which he had received of him, but troubled him very sore.

54 After this returned Tryphon, and with him the young child Antiochus, who reigned, and was crowned.

55 Then there gathered unto him all the men of war, whom Demetrius had put away, and they fought against Demetrius, who turned his back and fled.

56 Moreover Tryphon took the city of Ephraim, and won Antioch.

over the four governments, and to be one of the king's friends

48 Upon this he sent him golden vessels to be served in, and gave him leave to drink in gold, and to be clothed in purple, and to wear a golden buckle

49 His brother Simon also he made captain from the place called The ladder of Tyris unto the borders of Egypt

50 Then Jonathan went forth, and passed through the cities beyond the water, and all the forces of Syria gathered themselves unto him for to help him: and when he came to Ascalon, they of the city met him honourably

51 From whence he went to Gaza, but they of Gaza shut him out, wherefore he laid siege unto it, and burned the suburbs thereof with fire, and spoiled them

52 Afterward, when they of Gaza made supplication unto Jonathan, he made peace with them, and took the sons of their chief men for hostages, and sent them to Jerusalem, and passed through the country unto Damascus

53 Now when Jonathan heard that Demetrius' princes were come to Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great power, purposing to remove him out of the country,

54 He went to meet them, and left Simon his brother in the country

55 Then Simon encamped against Bethsuri, and fought against it a long season, and shut it up

56 But they desired to have peace with him, which he granted them, and then put them out from thence, and took the city, and set a garrison in it

57 As for Jonathan and his host, they pitched at the water of Gennesar, from whence beimes in the morning they gat them to the plain of Naser

58 And, behold, the host of strangers met them in the plain, who, having hid men in ambush for him in the mountains, came themselves over against him

59 So when they that lay in ambush rose out of their places, and joined battle, all that were of Jonathan's side fled, 70 Inasmuch as there was not one of them left, except Mattathias the son of Absalom, and Judas the son of Calphi, the captains of the host.

71 Then Jonathan rent his clothes, and cast earth upon his head, and prayed

72 Afterwards turning again to battle, he put them to flight, and so they ran away.

73 Now when his own men that were fled saw this, they turned again unto him, and with him pursued them to Cades, even unto their own tents, and there they camped

74 So there were slain of the heathen that day about three thousand men: but Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

hap XII ver 7 — unto Onias the high priest from Darius]

Onias here mentioned was the son of Simon the Just he lived during the reigns first of Ptolemy Philadelphus, and Ptolemy Epiphanes in Egypt and of Antiochus the Great and Seleucus in Syria The name of the Lacedemonian king Arcus of which Darius is manifestly a corruption

[ye are our brethren.] By this is meant, not merely friends, but kinsmen as manifest from the language of Joshua, and from the very words of the apostle of the Lacedemonians, ver 21, who declare themselves to be of the stock of Abraham

Whence this kindred arose is uncertain unless Numenius supposes, they were derived from the Dorians who came in the Peloponnese these are by Herodotus called "barbarians," perhaps were derived from the Syrians and Arabians, the territory of Abraham by Keturah

9 — which Omars sent] See the margin

11 It is found in writing] That is, in the annals and monuments of history

It appears from hence, that the Lacedemonians first wrote to the Jews, and certified them that they found in some old books that they were related and had the patriarch Abraham for their common father The Jews though proud of their noble origin did not reject the pretension of the Lacedemonian Both believed they were related It must be confessed however that their belief was ill founded if it rested on the documents remaining in Scripture, or in profane authors But they might at that time have proofs and monuments in their possession, which are unknown to us

50 Then Jonathan pursued after them but overtook them not for they were gone over the river Eleutherus

51 Wherefore Jonathan turned to the Arabians, who were called Zabadeans, and smote them, and took their spoils

52 And removing thence, he came to Dimiscus, and so passed through all the country

53 Simon also went forth, and passed through the country unto Acalon, and the holds there adjoining, from whence he turned aside to Joppe, and won it

54 For he had heard that they would deliver the hold unto them that took Demetrius' part, wherefore he set a garrison there to keep it

55 After this came Jonathan home again, and calling the elders of the people together, he consulted with them about building strong holds in Judæa,

56 And making the walls of Jerusalem higher, and raising a great mount between the tower and the city, for to separate it from the city, that so it might be alone, that men might neither sell nor buy in it

57 Upon this they came together to build up the city, inasmuch as part of the wall toward the brook on the east side was fallen down, and they repaired that which was called Caphenatha

58 Simon also set up Adida in Sephela, and made it strong with gates and bars

59 Now Tryphon went about to get the kingdom of Asia, and to kill Antiochus the king, that he might set the crown upon his own head

60 Howbeit he was afraid that Jonathan would not suffer him, and that he would fight against him, wherefore he sought a way how to take Jonathan, that he might kill him. So he removed, and came to Bethsan

61 Then Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand men chosen for the battle, and came to Bethsan

42 Now when Tryphon saw that Jonathan came with so great a force, he durst not stretch his hand against him,

43 But received him honourably, and commended him unto all his friends, and gave him gifts, and commanded his men of war to be as obedient unto him, as to himself

44 Unto Jonathan also he said, Why hast thou put all this people to so great trouble, seeing there is no war betwixt us?

45 Therefore send them now home again, and choose a few men to wait on thee, and come thou with me to Ptolemais, for I will give it thee, and the rest of the strong holds and forces, and all that have any charge as for me, I will return and depart: for this is the cause of my coming 46 So Jonathan believing him did as he bade him, and sent away his host, who went into the land of Judæa

47 And with himself he retained but three thousand men, of whom he sent two thousand into Galilee, and one thousand went with him.

48 Now as soon as Jonathan entered into

CHAP. XIII

8 Simon is made captain in his brother Jonathan's room
19 Tryphon getteth two of Jonathan's sons into his hands, and slayeth their father 27 The tomb of Jonathan 30 Simon is favoured by Demetrius, 40 and inneth Gaza, and the tower at Jerusalem

NOW when Simon heard that Tryphon had gathered together a great host to invade the land of Judea, and destroy it,

2 And saw that the people was in great trembling and fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and gathered the people together,

3 And gave them exhortation, saying, Ye yourselves know what great things I, and my brethren, and my father's house, have done for the laws and the sanctuary, the battles also and troubles which we have seen,

4 By reason whereof all my brethren are slain for Israel's sake, and I am left alone

5 Now therefore be it far from me, that I should spare mine own life in any time of trouble, for I am no better than my brethren.

6 Doubtless I will revenge my nation, and the sanctuary, and our wives, and our children for all the heathen we gathered to destroy us, of very malice

7 Now as soon as the people heard these words, their spirit revived

8 And they answered with a loud voice, saying, Thou shalt be our leader instead of Judas and Jonathan thy brother

9 Fight thou our battles, and whatsoever thou commandest us, that will we do

10 So then he gathered together all the men of war, and made haste to finish the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it round about

11 Also he sent Jonathan the son of Abisalom, and with him a great power, to Joppe who casting out them that were therein remained there in it

12 So Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great power to invade the land of Judea, and Jonathan was with him in war

13 But Simon pitched his tents at Adida, over against the plain

14 Now when Tryphon knew that Simon was risen up instead of his brother Jonathan, and meant to join battle with him, he sent messengers unto him, saying,

15 Whereas we have Jonathan thy brother in hold, it is for money that he is owing unto the king's treasure, concerning the business that was committed unto him

16 Wherefore now send ah hundred talents of silver, and two of his sons for hostages, that when he is at liberty he may not revolt from us and we will let him go

17 Hereupon Simon, albeit he perceived that they spake deceitfully unto him yet sent he the money and the children, lest peradventure he should procure to himself great hatred of the people

18 Who might have said, Because I sent him not the money and the children, therefore is Jonathan dead

19 So he sent them the children and the hundred talents howbeit Tryphon dissembled, neither would he let Jonathan go

20 And after this came Tryphon to invade the land, and destroy it, going round about by the way that leadeth unto Adida but Simon and his host marched against him in every place wheresoever he went

21 Now they that were in the tower sent messengers unto Tryphon, to the end that he should hasten his coming unto them by the wilderness, and send them victuals

22 Wherefore Tryphon made ready all his horsemen to come that night but there fell a very great snow, by reason whereof he came not So he departed, and came into the country of Galilee

23 And when he came near to Bascama, he slew Jonathan, who was buried there

24 Afterward Tryphon returned and went into his own land

25 Then sent Simon, and took the bones of Jonathan his brother, and buried them in Modin the city of his father

26 And all Israel made an lamentation for him and bewailed him many days

27 Simon also built a monument upon the sepulchre of his father and his brethren, and erected a lofty to the sight, with hewn stone behind and before

28 Moreover he set up seven pyramids, one against another, for his father, and his mother, and his four brethren.

29 And in these he made cunning devices, about the which he set great pillars, and upon the pillars he made all their names for a perpetual memory, and by the armour ships carved, that they might be seen of all that sail on the sea.

30 This is the sepulchre which he made at Modin, and it standeth yet unto this day.

31 Now Tryphon dealt deceitfully with the young king Antiochus, and slew him.

32 And he reigned in his stead, and crowned himself king of Asia, and brought great calamity upon the land.

33 Then Simon built up the strong holds in Judea, and fenced them about with high towers, and great walls, and gates, and bars, and laid up victuals therein.

34 Moreover Simon chose men, and sent to king Demetrius, to the end he should give the land an immunity, because that Tryphon did was to spoil.

35 Unto whom king Demetrius answered and wrote after this manner.

36 King Demetrius unto Simon the high priest, and friend of kings, as also unto the elders and nation of the Jews, sendeth greeting.

37 The golden crown, and the scarlet robe, which ye sent unto us, we have received: and we are ready to make a steadfast peace with you, yea, and to write unto our officers, to confirm the immunities which we have granted.

38 And whatsoever covenants we have

30 — and it standeth yet unto this day.] Josephus tells us that this whole fabrick was standing entire in his days: and looked upon as a very curious and excellent piece of architecture: and Lucian mentions it as still in being in his time, which was two hundred years after the time of Josephus. Dean Prideaux, Stack-hous.

31 — and slew him.] How Tryphon killed this Antiochus, the epitome of Tryphon is us: namely, that he corrupted his physicians or surgeons, who, falsely pretending to the people that he was perishing with the stone, as they cut him for it, killed him. This exactly agrees with Josephus. Whiston.

32 — and brought a great calamity upon the land.] By the destruction of many who disapproved of his conduct. Whiston.

34 — Simon chose men, and sent to king Demetrius.] Notwithstanding the ill treatment the Jews had received from Demetrius, who after his defeat by Tryphon had abandoned himself to sloth and luxury at Iudicca, Simon yet preferred him to his perfidious rival, and set respectfully to treat with him about a renewal of the former terms of accommodation: to which Demetrius gladly agreed, and confirmed them all with an act of immunity for all past offences. From this grant the Jews date the independence of their country, and their freedom from the Syrian yoke before Christ 143: and thenceforth computed the times from this era of 39 As for any oversight or fault committed unto this day, we forgive it, and the crown tax also, which ye owe us: and if there were any other tribute paid in Jerusalem, it shall no more be paid.

40 And look who are meet among you to be in our court, let them be enrolled, and let there be peace betwixt us.

41 Thus the yoke of the heathen was taken away from Israel in the hundred and seventieth year.

42 Then the people of Israel began to write in their instruments and contracts, In the first year of Simon, the high priest, the governor and leader of the Jews.

43 In those days Simon camped against Gaza, and besieged it round about, he made also an engine of war, and set it by the city, and battered a certain tower, and took it.

44 And they that were in the engine leaped into the city, whereupon there was a great uproar in the city.

45 Inasmuch as the people of the city rent their clothes, and climbed upon the walls with their wives and children, and cried with a loud voice, beseeching Simon to grant them peace.

46 And they said, Deal not with us according to our wickedness, but according to thy mercy.

47 So Simon was appeased toward them, and fought no more against them, but put them out of the city, and cleansed the houses wherein the idols were, and so

Simon's reign is high priest, and ethnarch or prince of the Jew instead of the era of the Seleucida, or of Alexander's successor as before. Dr Hales.

40 — let them be enrolled.] In the number of our soldiers. See chap. x. 36.

43 In those days Simon camped against Gaza. See] Having obtained the independent sovereignty of the land, Simon took progress through it, to inspect what was wanting for its security, repairing the fortifications that were decayed, making new ones where they were wanted, and besieging and taking the place that stood out against him. Dean Prideaux.

— Gaza.] This is in all probability an error for Gazara, the taking of which is spoken of as one of the good works of Simon chap. xiv. 7. 51, and also by Josephus: but nothing is said in either history of his taking Gaza. And Gazara is often mentioned by them as in the hands of Simon: but Gaza never, while it be in this place. Gazara is the same with the ancient Geras: see the note on chap. iii. 46. And here most likely it was that Simon built him an house ver. 48, and that was the house wherein John his son dwelt when he sent him to command those parts, ver. 53. Dean Prideaux.

49 They also of the tower in Jerusalem were kept so strait, that they could neither come forth, nor go into the country, nor buy, nor sell wherefore they were in great distress for want of victuals, and a great number of them perished through famine.

50 Then cried they to Simon, beseeching him to be at one with them which thing he granted them, and when he had put them out from thence, he cleansed the tower from pollution.

51 And entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month, in the hundred seventy and first year, with thanksgiving, and branches of palm trees, and with harps, and cymbals, and with viols, and hymns, and songs because there was destroyed a great enemy out of Israel.

52 He ordained also that that day should be kept every year with gladness. Moreover the hill of the temple that was by the tower he made stronger than it was, and there he dwelt himself with his company.

53 And when Simon saw that John his son was a valiant man, he made him captain of all the hosts; and he dwelt in Gazara.

4 As for the King of Judea, that was quiet all the days of Simon; for he sought the good of his nation in such wise, as that he could not offend his authority and honour pleased them well.

5 And as he was honourable in all his acts, so in this, that he took Joppa for a haven, and made an entrance to the side of the sea.

6 And enlarged the bound of his nation, and recovered the country.

7 And gathered together a great number of captives, and had the dominion of Gazara, and Bethsura, and the tower, out of the which he took all uncleanness, neither was there any that resisted him.

8 Then did they till their ground in peace, and the earth gave her increase, and the trees of the field their fruit.

13 Neither was there any left in the land to fight against them: yea, the kings themselves were overthrown in those days.

[Chap. XIV. v. 1. — Isaac.] This was the family name of all the kings of Parthia. The king that reigned at this time was Mithridates who having gotten Demetrius into his power, after some time allowed him a royal maintenance and gave him one of his daughters in marriage. Dean Prideaux.

5. — he took Joppa for an haven.] This being the nearest maritime town to Jerusalem, though at the distance of forty miles Simon made it the seaport to that city and all Judea, it being the fittest place on all that coast for carrying on their trade to all the isles and countries in the Mediterranean. and it served them for the purpose many ages after, as it still doth the inhabitants of that country even to this day. Dean Prideaux.

51 — because there was destroyed a great enemy out of Israel.] The garrison in this fortress had been a dreadful thorn in the sides of the Maccabees and their friends, ever since Antiochus Epiphanes first placed it there. Therefore Simon not only demolished the fortress, that it might no longer be a retreat to sedition and faction, but to prevent its being rebuilt at any time he levelled the hill on which it was situated, so that now no eminence was left but the mount of the temple only. This mount he new fortified in the meanwhile, repairing the outer wall and making it stronger than before, and provided habitations within it both for himself and his company, and there he afterwards dwelt. 15 He beautified the sanctuary, and multiplied the vessels of the temple

16 Now when it was heard at Rome, and as far as Sparta, that Jonathan was dead, they were very sorry

17 But as soon as they heard that his brother Simon was made high priest in his stead, and ruled the country, and the cities therein

18 They wrote unto him in tables of brass, to renew the friendship and league which they had made with Judas and Jonathan his brethren

19 Which writings were read before the congregation at Jerusalem

20 And this is the copy of the letters that the Lacedæmonians sent, The rulers of the Lacedæmonians, with the city, unto Simon the high priest, and the elders, and priests, and residue of the people of the Jews, our brethren, send greeting

21 The ambassadors that were sent unto our people certified us of your glory and honour wherefore we were glad of their coming,

22 And did register the things that they spake in the council of the people in this manner, Numenius son of Antiochus, and Antipater son of Jason, the Jews' ambassadors, came unto us to renew the friendship they had with us

23 And it pleased the people to entertain the men honourably, and to put the copy of their embassy in publick records, to the end the people of the Lacedæmonians might have a memorial thereof furthermore we have written a copy thereof unto Simon the high priest

24 After this Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a great shield of gold of a thousand pound weight, to confirm the league with them

25 Whereof when the people heard, they said, What thanks shall we give to Simon and his sons?

25 — Then they wrote it in table of brass &c ] It is general sense of the priests and elders and all the people assembled at Jerusalem it was agreed by the unanimous consent of all present that the supreme government of the nation as well as the high priesthood should be conferred on Simon and settled both on him and on his posterity after him This had before been personally settled on Simon by the grant of Demetrius and the same was now granted by the whole nation of the Jews and it was put into the descendants. A publick act of a nation

26 For he and his brethren and the house of his father have established Israel, and chased away in fight their enemies from them, and confirmed their liberty.

27 So then they wrote it in tables of brass, which they set upon pillars in mount Sion and this is the copy of the writing, The eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the hundred threescore and twelfth year, being the third year of Simon the high priest,

28 At Samariam in the great congregation of the priests, and people, and rulers of the nation, and elders of the country, were these things notified unto us

29 Forasmuch as oftentimes there have been wars in the country, wherein for the maintenance of their sanctuary, and the law, Simon the son of Mattathias, of the posterity of Jarib, together with his brethren, put themselves in jeopardy, and resisting the enemies of their nation did their nation great honour:

30 (For after that Jonathan, having gathered his nation together, and been their high priest, was added to his people,

31 Their enemies purposed to invade their country, that they might destroy it, and lay hands on the sanctuary:

32 At which time Simon rose up, and fought for his nation, and spent much of his own substance, and armed the valiant men of his nation, and gave them wages,

33 And fortified the cities of Judæa, together with Bethsura, that lieth upon the borders of Judæa, where the armours of the enemies had been before, but he set a garrison of Jews there

34 Moreover he fortified Joppe, which lieth upon the sea, and Gazara, that bordereth upon Azotus, where the enemies had dwelt before but he placed Jews there, and furnished them with all things convenient for the reparation thereof)

35 The people therefore, seeing the acts was made of these things, reciting the good deeds of Simon and his family and constituting him their prince, as well as their high priest, in return a copy of which act they ordered to be engraven on tables of brass and hung up in the sanctuary and the original they laid up in the sacred archives belonging to the treasury of the temple From that time Simon took on him the state, title and authority of prince, as well as high priest, of the Jews and all public acts thenceforth went in his name And after him both these dignities descended together to his posterity, and continued among them thus united together for several descents, they began at the same time overleap pontiffs and sovereign princes of the Jewish nation. of Simon, and unto what glory he thought to bring his nation, made him their governor and chief priest, because he had done all these things, and for the justice and faith which he kept to his nation, and for that he sought by all means to exalt his people

36 For in his time things prospered in his hands, so that the heathen were taken but of their country, and they also that were in the city of David in Jerusalem, who had made themselves a tower, out of which they issued, and polluted all about the sanctuary, and did much hurt in the holy place

37 But he placed Jews therein, and fortified it for the safety of the country and the city, and raised up the walls of Jerusalem.

38 King Demetrius also confirmed him in the high priesthood according to those things, 39 And made him one of his friends, and honoured him with great honour.

40 For he had heard say, that the Romans had called the Jews their friends and confederates and brethren; and that they had entertained the ambassadors of Simon honourably;

41 Also that the Jews and priests were well pleased that Simon should be their governor and high priest for ever, until there should arise a faithful prophet.

42 Moreover that he should be their captain, and should take charge of the sanctuary, to set them over their works, and over the country, and over the armour, and over the fortresses, that, I say, he should take charge of the sanctuary,

43 Beside this, that he should be obeyed of every man, and that all the writings in the country should be made in his name, and that he should be clothed in purple, and wear gold

44 Also that it should be lawful for none of the people or priests to break any of these things, or to gainsay his words, or to gather an assembly in the country without him, or to be clothed in purple, or wear a buckle of gold

45 And whosoever should do otherwise, or break any of these things, he should be punished

46 Thus it liked all the people to deal with Simon, and to do as hath been said

47 Then Simon accepted hereof, and was well pleased to be high priest, and captain and governor of the Jews and priests, and to defend them all

48 So they commanded that this writing should be put in tables of brass, and that they should be set up within the compass of the sanctuary in a conspicuous place,

49 Also that the copies thereof should be laid up in the treasury, to the end that Simon and his sons might have them

34 Wherefore we, having opportunity, hold the inheritance of our fathers.

37 In the mean time fled Tryphon by ship unto Orthosias.

38 Then the king made Cendebeus captain of the sea coast, and gave him an host of footmen and horsemen,

39 And commanded him to remove his host toward Judea: also he commanded him to build up Cedion, and to fortify the gates, and to war against the people, but as for the king himself, he pursued Tryphon.

40 So Cendebeus came to Tinnia, and began to provoke the people, and to invade Judea, and to take the people prisoners and slay them.

41 And when he had built up Cedion, he set horsemen there, and an host of footmen, to the end that issuing out they might make outroads upon the ways of Judea, as the king had commanded him.

3 But now I am old, and ye, by God's mercy, are of a sufficient age: be ye instead of me and my brother, and go and fight for our nation, and the help from heaven be with you.

4 So he chose out of the country twenty thousand men of war with horsemen, who went out against Cendebeus, and rested that night at Modin.

5 And when as they rose in the morning, and went into the plain, behold, a mighty great host both of footmen and horsemen came against them: howbeit there was a water brook betwixt them.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE MACCABEES.

INTRODUCTION

THIS book contains a compilation of historical records extracted from different works, but especially an abridgment of a history of the persecutions of I piphanes and Eupator against the Jews, which had been written in Greek in five books by an Hellenist of Cyrene, named Jason, a descendant probably of those Jews who had been placed there by Ptolemy Soter; and which is no longer extant. The name of the compiler is not known. He was doubtless a different person from the author of the preceding book. He dates from an era six months later than that chosen by him, and he not only writes with less accuracy, and in a more florid style, but likewise relates some particulars in a manner inconsistent with the accounts of the first book, from which nevertheless he has in other instances borrowed both sentiments and facts. By whomsoever it was composed, it should seem to have been originally written in Greek, and the compiler, as well as the author, whose work he abridged follows the Syrian mode of computation, reckoning by the years of the Seleucids.

The two epistles which are contained in the first and second chapters, and which are there said to have been written by the Jews at Jerusalem to their brethren at Alexandria, exhorting them to observe the feast of tabernacles and that of the purification, are by Pridcaux considered as spurious, the second, indeed, is said to have been written by Judas, who was not living at the time of the date, and it contains many extravagant and fabulous particulars. It begins at the tenth verse of the first chapter, and terminates with the eighteenth of the second, from thence to the end of the chapter is a short preface of the compiler of the abridgment of Jason's history, which commences with the third chapter, and concludes with the thirty-seventh verse of the fifteenth chapter, the two last verses forming a kind of conclusion to the work.

The book contains an history of about fifteen years, from the enterprise of Heliodorus in the temple in the year of the world 3580, to the victory of Judas Maccabeus against Nicanor, 3843. The chapters are not however arranged exactly in chronological order. The book begins at a period somewhat earlier than that of the first book of the Maccabees. As the author appears at first to have intended only an epitome of the history of Judas Maccabeus and his brethren with some contemporary events, the account of the punishment of Heliodorus, which occurred under Seleucus, the predecessor of I piphanes, as well as the circumstances related in the two last chapters, which happened under Demetrius Soter, the successor of Eupator, have been sometimes represented as additions by some later writer. But since these events, as connected with the time of Judas, were not inclusive to the author's design, there is no reason except from a pretended difference of style, to dispute their authenticity as a part of Jason's history, or, if not a genuine addition affixed to the epitome by the compiler. The author has no title any more than the writer of the preceding book, to be considered as an inspired historian. He speaks indeed, of his own performance in the diffident style of one conscious of the fallibility of his own judgment and distrustful of his own powers. His work was never considered as strictly canonical till received into the sacred list by the Council of Trent, though examples are produced from it by many ancient writers. It must be allowed to be a valuable and instructive history, and affords an interesting description of a persecuted and afflicted people, furnishing in the relation of the conduct of Heliazar, and of the woman and her children who suffered for their attachment to their religion, an example of constancy that might have animated the martyrs of the Christian Church. The author industriously displays the confidence in a resurrection and future life which prevailed at the period of his history, and which was the encouragement that enabled those who were so severely tried to sustain their torture. He likewise, perhaps more particularly enforced the doctrine of a resurrection with a design to counteract the propagation of the Sadducean principles, which were then coming into notice.

The work, in the production of a fallible and unenlightened man contains a mixture of errors, and certainly should be read with that discretion which while it seeks instruction guards against the intrusion of false and pernicious opinions. If St Paul in his eulogium on some illustrious examples of faith should be thought to have extolled the truth or approved the example of this history, he by no means bears testimony to the inspiration of its author, or establishes its general authority in point of doctrine. The Apostles continued in the direction of the Christian Church the production of only those holy men who were moved by the Holy Ghost. The Fathers in general cite the book as an useful history, but not as of authority in point of doctrine.

There are two other books entitled the third and fourth books of the Maccabees, which were never received by any church. That which is improperly styled the third, and which in point of time should be considered as the first, describes the persecution of Ptolemy Philopator against the Jews in Egypt about the year of the world 3789, and the miraculous delivery of those who were exposed in the hippodrome of Alexandria to the fury of an elephant. This is a work entitled to much respect, it is in the most ancient manuscript of the Septuagint, and is cited by the Fathers, but never having been in the Vulgate, which version was universally used in the Western Church, and from which our translations of the Apocrypha were made, it never was admitted into our Bibles.

The book which is usually called the fourth book of the Maccabees, contains an history of the pontificate of John Hyrcanus. Dr Cragg

CHAP I

1 Letter of the Jews from Jerusalem to them of Egypt to thank God for the death of Antiochus 10 Of the feast that was held in the month of Casleu 14 The prayer of

Three brethren, the Jews that be at Jerusalem and in the land of Judea, wish unto the brethren, the Jews that are throughout Egypt, health and peace.

2 God be gracious unto you, and remember his covenant that he made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants,

3 And give you all in heart to serve him, and to do his will, with a good courage and a willing mind,

4 And open your hearts in his law and commandments, and send you peace,

5 And hear your prayers, and be at one with you, and never forsake you in time of trouble

6 And now we be here praying for you

7 What time as Demetrius reigned, in the hundred threescore and ninth year, we the Jews wrote unto you in the extremity of trouble that came upon us in those years, from the time that Jason and his company revolted from the holy land and kingdom,

8 And burned the porch, and shed innocent blood: then we prayed unto the Lord, and were heard, we offered also sacrifices and fine flour, and lighted the lamps, and set forth the loaves

9 And now see that ye keep the feast of tabernacles in the month Casleu

10 In the hundred fourscore and eighth year, the people that were at Jerusalem and in Judea, and the council, and Judas sent greeting and health unto Aristobulus, king Ptolemeus' master, who was of the stock of the anointed priests, and to the Jews that were in Egypt

11 Inasmuch as God hath delivered us from great perils, we thank him highly, as having been in battle against a king

12 For he cast them out that sought within the holy city.

13 For when the leader was come into Persia, and the army with him that seemed invincible, they were slain in the temple of Nanea by the deceit of Nanea's priests.

14 For Antiochus, as though he would marry her, came into the place, and his friends that were with him, to receive money in name of a dowry.

15 Which when the priests of Nanea had set forth, and he was entered with a small company into the compass of the temple, they shut the temple as soon as Antiochus was come in

16 And opening a privy door of the roof, they threw stones like thunderbolts, and struck down the captain, hewed them in pieces, smote off their heads, and cast them to those that were without

17 Blessed be our God in all things, who hath delivered up the ungodly

18 Therefore whereas we are now purposed to keep the purification of the temple upon the five and twentieth day of the month <sup>b Casleu</sup>, we thought it necessary to certify you thereof, that ye also might keep <sup>b I Cas</sup> it, as the <sup>N and</sup> feast of the tabernacles, and of the fire, which was given us when Nehemias offered sacrifice, after that he had builded the temple and the altar

19 For when our fathers were led into Persia, the priests that were then devout took the fire of the altar privily, and hid it in a hollow place of a pit without water, where they kept it sure, so that the place was unknown to all men

20 Now after many years, when it pleased God, Nehemias, being sent from the king of Persia, did send of the posterity of those priests that had hid it to the fire: but when they told us they found no fire, but thick water,

21 Then commanded he them to draw it up, and to bring it, and when the sacri chap I ver 1 The brethren the Jews &c] From hence to the end of the sixth verse is nothing more than a preliminary salutation. The epistle begins at the seventh verse and ends with the ninth. The purport of it is to exhort the Jews of Alexandria and Egypt to observe the feast of the dedication of the new altar erected by Judas when he purified the temple. I Mac iv 50 Casleu Dean Prideaux

What is meant is the feast of the dedication, during which solemly when they might carry some winter green in their hands to expose them rejoicing, yet they could not make much booth in the tent of tabernacle, because the month Casleu fell in the winter. Dean Prideaux

10 In the hundred fourscore and eighth year &c] The second epistle begins here and ends with the eighth verse of the cond chapter. It is not only written in the name of Judas Maccabeus, who was slain six and thirty years before the date which bears, but its contents also are so fabulous and absurd that it never could have been written by the great council of Jews assembled at Jerusalem for the whole nation, as it pretend to be. Dean Prideaux, Stuckhouse

11 — against a king] Antiochus Epiphanes

14 In like manner also Judas gathered together all those things that were lost by reason of the war we had, and they remain with us.

15 Wherefore if ye have need thereof, send some to fetch them unto you,

At Wharfedale we then are about to celebrate the purification we have written in to you, and ye shall do well if ye keep the same day.

17. We hope also that the God that delivered all his people, and gave them all an heritage, and the kingdom, and the priesthood, and the sanctuary,

18 As he promised in the law, will shortly have mercy upon us, and gather us together out of every land under heaven into the holy place: for he hath delivered us out of great trouble, and hath purified the place

16 Now is concerning Judas Maccabeus, and his brethren, and the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the feast.

20 And the wars against Antiochus, I pri phonic and Iupator his son,

21 And the manifest signs that came from heaven unto those that behaved themselves manfully to their honour for Judgment, so that being but a few, they overcame the whole country and chased barbarous multitudes,

12 And recovered again the temple renewed all the world over, and freed the city and upheld the laws which were going down, the Lord being gracious unto them with all favour.

¶ All these things I say, being declared by Iason of Cyrene in five books we will assay to abridge in one volume.

1. For considering the infinite number and the difficulty which they find that desire to look into the mutations of the story for the variety of the matter,

¶ We have been careful that they that will read may have delight and that they that are desirous to commit to memory may have ease and that all into whose hand it come might have profit.

So the foreman that have taken upon in the painful labour of doing it was not a <sup>man</sup> but a matter of wear and watch ing.

2. Even if it is necessary that I am that prepareth a banquet, and seeketh the benefit of others: yet if for the pleasuring of many we will undertake gladly this great pains,

28 Leaving to the author the exact handling of every particular, and labouring to follow the rules of an abridgment

20 For as the master builder of a new house must care for the whole building, but he that undertaketh to set it out and paint it, must seek out fit things for the adorning thereof: even so I think it is with us.

30 To stand upon every point, and go over things at large, and to be curious in particulars, belongeth to the first author of the story.

31 But to use brevity, and avoid much labouring of the work, is to be granted to him that will make an abridgment.

32 Here then will we begin the story, only adding thus much to that which hath been said, that it is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.

NOW when the holy city was inhabited with all peace, and the Jews were kept very well, because of the godliness of Onias the high priest, and his hatred of wickedness,

2 It came to pass that even the kings themselves did honour the place, and magnify the temple with their best gifts,

Insomuch that Seleucus king of Asia of his own revenues bore all the costs belonging to the service of the sacrifices

1 But one Sinner of the tribe of Benjamin, who was made governor of the temple, fell out with the high priest about disorders in the city.

Ones he got him to Apollonius the son of Tharsus, who then was governor of Cilicia and Phœnicia,

(C) And told him that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of infinite sums of money, so that the multitude of their riches, which great train and with all his guard into the said treasury, they carried out, being unable to help himself with his weapons: and manifestly they acknowledged the power of God.

29 For he by the hand of God was cast down, and lay speechless without all hope of life.

30 But they praised the Lord, that had miraculously honoured his own place: for the temple, which a little afore was full of fear and trouble, when the Almighty Lord appeared, was filled with joy and gladness.

31 Then straightways certun of Heliodorus' friends prayd Onias, that he would call upon the most High to grant him his life, who lay ready to give up the ghost.

32 So the high priest, suspecting lest the king should misconceive that some treachery had been done to Heliodorus by the Jews, offered a sacrifice for the health of the man.

33 Now as the high priest was making an atonement, the same young men in the same clothing appeared and stood beside Heliodorus, saying, Give Onias the high priest great thanks, insomuch as for his sake the Lord hath granted thee life.

34 And seeing that thou hast been scourged from heaven, declare unto all men the mighty power of God. And when they had spoken these words, they appeared no more.

35 So Heliodorus, after he had offered sacrifice unto the Lord, and made great vows unto him that had saved his life, and saluted Onias, returned with his host to the king.

36 Then testified he to all men the words of the great God, which he had seen with his eyes.

37 And when the king asked Heliodorus, who might be a fit man to be sent yet once again to Jerusalem he said,

38 If thou hast any enemy or traitor, send him thither, and thou shalt receive him well scourged, if he escape with his life: for in that place, no doubt, there is an especial power of God.

39 For he that dwelleth in heaven hath his eye on that place, and defendeth it, and he beatech and destroyeth them that come to hurt it.

40 And the things concerning Heliodorus, and the keeping of the treasury, fall out on this sort.

1 Simon slandereth Onias. 7 Jason by corrupting the king, obtaineth the office of the high priest. 24 Menelaus getteth the same from Jason by the like corruption. 34 Andronicus traitorously murdereth Onias. 36 The king being informed thereof causeth Andronicus to be put to death. 39 The wickedness of Iysmachus, by the instigation of Menelaus.

THIS Simon now, of whom we spake afore, having been a bewrayer of the money, and of his country, slandered Onias, as if he had terrified Heliodorus, and been the worker of these evils.

2 Thus was he bold to call him a traitor, that had deserved well of the city, and tendered his own nation, and was so zealous of the laws.

3 But when their hatred went so far, that by one of Simon's faction murders were committed,

4 Onias seeing the danger of this contention, and that Apollonius, as being the governor of Celosyria and Phenice, did rage, and increase Simon's malice,

5 He went to the king, not to be an accuser of his countrymen, but seeking the good of all, both publick and private.

6 For he saw that it was impossible that the state should continue quiet, and Simon leave his folly, unless the king did look thereunto.

7 But after the death of Seleucus, about 137 when Antiochus, called Epiphanes, took the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias laboured underhand to be high priest,

8 Promising unto the king by intercession three hundred and threescore talents of silver, and of another revenue eighty talents.

9 Beside this, he promised to assign an hundred and fifty more, if he might have licence to set him up a place for exercise, and for the training up of youth in the fashions of the heathen, and to write them of Jerusalem by the name of Antiochiens.

10 Which when the king had granted, and he had gotten into his hand the rule, he forthwith brought his own nation to the Greekish fashion.

<sup>Before</sup> <sup>CHRIST</sup> <sup>about 100</sup> special favour to the Jews by the means of John the father of Eupolemus, who went ambassador to Rome for amity and aid, he took away, and putting down the governments which were according to the law, he brought up new customs against the law.

12 For he built gladly a place of exercise under the tower itself, and brought the chief young men under his subjection, and made them wear a hat.

13 Now such was the height of Greek fashions, and increase of heathenish manners, through the exceeding profaneness of Jason, that ungodly wretch, and no high priest.

14 That the priests had no courage to serve any more at the altar, but despising the temple, and neglecting the sacrifices, listened to be partakers of the unlawful allowance in the place of exercise, after the game of Discus called them forth.

15 Not setting by the honours of their fathers, but liking the glory of the Grecians best of all.

16 By reason whereof sore calamity came upon them for they had them to be their enemies and avengers, whose custom they followed so earnestly, and unto whom they desired to be like in all things.

17 For it is not a light thing to do wickedly against the laws of God but the time following shall declare these things.

11 — John the father of Eupolemus, who went ambassador to Rome. He designates the father by means of the son, who on account of the embassy to Rome in which he was afterwards engaged became a well known character. Crotius.

12 — and made them wear a hat. On papyrus such a hat was worn by the Grecian youths. Crotius.

13 — through the exceeding profaneness of Jason. It appears from Josephus that his original name was Jesus but when he went over to the ways of the Greeks he took also a Greek name, and called himself Jason and having thus given him self up to the heathen superstition, he laid hold of all opportunities of distinguishing himself by expressions of his zeal for it. Dean Prideaux.

14 — the game of Discus. Casting the Discus or quoit, which was a round stone or iron with a hole in the middle was a game much in use amongst the Greeks. Badwell.

16 By reason whereof sore calamity came upon them. Hence was propagated among the Jews that iniquity which drew after it for its punishment one of the greatest calamities next to the two terrible destructions executed upon their temple and country, by Nebuchadnezzar and Titus that ever befell that nation. Of all which we must find the ambition of this wicked man Jason was the original cause for sacrificing to it his religion and his country he betrayed both to procure his own advancement. Dean Prideaux.

17 — the time following. That is the history of the times which followed the things. Crotius.

18 — the game that was used every fifth year. Among the Greeks the most celebrated games were the Olympic called quadrennial, because they were held every fourth year. In imitation of these games, others were instituted at different places.

18 Now when the game that was used every fifth year was kept at Tyrus, the king being present.

19 This ungracious Jason sent special messengers from Jerusalem, who were Antiochians, to carry three hundred drachms of silver to the sacrifice of Hercules, which even the heathens thereof thought fit not to bestow upon the sacrifice, because it was not convenient, but to be reserved for other charges.

20 This money then, in regard of the sender, was appointed to Hercules' sacrifice, but because of the buyers thereof, it was employed to the making of gallus.

21 Now when Apollonius the son of Menestheus was sent into Egypt for the coronation of king Ptolemy Philometor, Antiochus, understanding him not to be well affected to his affairs, provided for his own safety whereupon he came to Ioppe, and from thence to Jerusalem.

22 Where he was honourably received of Jason, and of the city, and was brought in with torch light, and with great shoutings and so afterward went with his host unto Phenice.

23 Three years afterward Jason sent Menelaus, the aforesaid Simon's brother, to bear the money unto the king, and to put him in mind of certain necessary matters.

at Alexandria and at Athens and amongst them, these of Tyre Crotius. Dean Prideaux.

19 — to the sacrifice of Hercules. So called according to the style of the Greeks. His name among the Tyrians was Melcarthus signifying king or lord of the city. The Greek, from some similitude between the worship of the god at Tyre and that of Hercules in Greece called the Tyrian god Hercules. This seems to be the same with the Lord of the Holy Scripture who carried up Szechel brought from Tyre into the land of Israel. Dean Prideaux.

— because it was not convenient. Being afraid of involving themselves in the guilt of the idolatry. Dean Prideaux.

21 Now when Apollonius &c. Antiochus sent Apollonius one of his principal nobles into Egypt with the pretence of congratulating the young king on his being enthroned but really in order to discover the intentions of the Egyptian court with respect to Judea Syria and Palestine. Finding these intentions to be hostile he came by sea to Ioppe in order to take a view of the frontiers towards Egypt and to put them in a state of defence. In this progress he came to Jerusalem. Dean Prideaux.

22 — Menelaus the aforesaid Simon's brother. That is, Simon the Benjamite chap. iii. 1. But he could not be for none but such as were of the family of Aaron were capable of the high priesthood. Josephus therefore is more to be credited who tells us that he was the brother of Onias and Jason and the son of Simon the second of that name high priest of the Jews and that he was the third of Simon's sons who held the office. His name at first was Onias and was that of his gladder brother. At the coronation of Jason he also took a Greek name and called himself Menelaus. His father and his eldest brother were both of them good men but he chose rather to imitate the 24 But he being brought to the presence of the king, when he had magnified him for the glorious appearance of his power, got the priesthood to himself, offering more than Iason by three hundred talents of silver.

25 So he came with the king's mandate, bringing nothing worthy the high priesthood, but having the fury of a cruel tyrant, and the rage of a savage beast

26) Then Jason, who had undermined his own brother, being undermined by another, was compelled to flee into the country of the Ammonites.

27 So Menclaus got the principality but as for the money that he had promised unto the king, he took no good order for it, albeit Sosstratus the ruler of the castle required it

28 For unto him appertained the gathering of the customs. Wherefore they were both called before the king.

29 Now Menelaus left his brother Lysimachus in his stead in the priesthood, and Sostrius left Clæus, who was governor of the Cyprus.

50 While those things were in doing, they of Iustus and Mallos made insurrection, because they were given to the king's concubine, called Antiochus.

51 Then came the king in all haste to appease matters, leaving Andronicus, a man in authority, for his deputy.

32 Now Menelaus, supposing that he had gotten a convenient time, stole certain vessels of gold out of the temple, and gave some of them to Andronicus, and some he sold into Tyrus and the cities round about 35 Which when Onias knew of a surety, he reproved him, and withdrew himself into a sanctuary at Daphne, that lieth by Antiochia.

31 Wherefore Menelaus, taking Andronicus apart, prayed him to get Onias into his hands, who being persuaded thereto, and coming to Onias in deceit gave him his right hand with oaths, and though he were suspected by him, yet persuaded he him to come forth of the sanctuary whom forthwith he shut up without regard of justice.

35 For the which cause not only the Jews, but many also of other nations, took great indignation, and were much grieved for the unjust murder of the man

36 And when the king was come again from the places about Cilicia, the Jews that were in the city, and certain of the Greeks that abhorred the fact also, complained because Onias was slain without cause.

37 Therefore Antiochus was heartily sorry, and moved to pity, and wept, because of the sober and modest behaviour of him that was dead

38 And being kindled with anger, forthwith he took away Andronicus his purple, and rent off his clothes, and leading him through the whole city unto that very place, where he had committed impiety against Omas, there slew he the cursed murderer. Thus the Lord rewarded him his punishment, as he had deserved.

39 Now when many sacrileges had been committed in the city by Lysimachus with the consent of Menelaus, and the bruit thereof was spread abroad, the multitude gathered themselves together against Lysimachus, many vessels of gold being already carried away

10 Whereupon the common people rising, and being filled with rage, Iysimachus armed about three thousand men, and began first to offer violence, one Autarus being the leader, a man far gone in years, and no less in folly

11 They then seeing the attempt of Lysimachus, some of them caught stones, some clubs, others taking handfuls of dust, that was next in hand, cast them all together upon Lysimachus, and those that set upon them

13 Of these matters therefore there was an accusation laid against Menelaus

14 Now when the king came to Tyre, three men that were sent from the senate pleaded the cause before him

15 But Menelaus, being now convicted, promised Ptolemee the son of Dorymenes, to give him much money, if he would pacify the king toward him

16 Whereupon Ptolemee taking the king aside into a certain gallery, as it were to take the air, brought him to be of another mind

17 Inasmuch that he discharged Menelaus from the accusations, who notwithstanding was cause of all the mischief and those poor men, who, if they had told their cause, yea, before the Scythians, should have been judged innocent, them he condemned to death.

18 Thus they that followed the matter for the city, and for the people, and for the holy vessels, did soon suffer unjust punishment

19 Wherefore even they of Tyre, moved with hatred of that wicked deed, caused them to be honourably buried

20 And so through the covetousness of them that were of power Menelaus remained still in authority, increasing in malice, and being a great torment to the citizens

ABOUT the same time Antiochus prepared his second voyage into Egypt

2 And then it happened, that through all the city, for the space almost of forty days, there were seen horsemen running in the air, in cloth of gold, and armed with lances, like a band of soldiers, countering and running one against another, with shaking of shields, and multitude of pikes, and drawing of swords and casting of darts, and glittering of golden ornaments, and harness of all sorts

4 Wherefore every man prayed that that apparition might turn to good

5 Now when there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had been dead, Jason took at the least a thousand men, and suddenly made an assault upon the city, and they that were upon the walls being put back, and the city at length taken, Menelaus fled into the castle

6 But Jason slew his own citizens without mercy, not considering that to get the day of them of his own nation would be a most unhappy day for him, but thinking they had been his enemies, and not his countrymen, whom he conquered

7 Howbeit for all this he obtained not the principality, but at the last received shame for the reward of his treason, and fled again into the country of the Ammonites

8 In the end therefore he had an unhappy return, being accused before Arias the king of the Arabians, fleeing from city to city, pursued of all men, hated as a forsaker of the laws, and being had in abomination as an open enemy of his country and countrymen, he was cast out into Egypt

9 Thus he that had driven many out of their country perished in a strange land, returning to the Macedonians, and thinking there to find succour by reason of his kindred

10 And he that had cast out many unbaptized had none to mourn for him, nor any solemn funerals at all, nor sepulchre with his fathers

11 Now when this that was done came to the king's ear, he thought that Judaea had revolted whereupon removing out of Egypt in a furious mind, he took the city by force of arms,

13 Thus there was killing of young and old making away of men, women, and children, slaying of virgins and infants.

14 And there were destroyed within the space of three whole days fourscore thousand, whereof forty thousand were slain in the conflict, and no fewer sold than slain.

15 Yet was he not content with this, but presumed to go into the most holy temple of all the world, Menelaus, that traitor to the laws, and to his own country, being his guide.

16 And taking the holy vessels with polluted hands, and with profane hands pulling down the things that were dedicated by other kings to the augmentation and glory and honour of the place, he gave them away.

17 And so haughty was Antiochus in mind, that he considered not that the Lord was angry for a while for the sins of them that dwelt in the city, and therefore his eye was not upon the place.

18 For had they not been formerly wrapped in many sins, this man, as soon as he had come, had forthwith been scourged, and put back from his presumption, as Heliodorus was, whom Seleucus the king sent to view the treasury.

19 Nevertheless God did not choose the people for the place's sake, but the place for the people's sake.

20 And therefore the place itself, that was partaker with them of the adversity that happened to the nation, did afterward communicate in the benefits sent from the Lord: and as it was forsaken in the wrath of the Almighty, so again, the great Lord being reconciled, it was set up with all glory.

21 So when Antiochus had carried out of the temple a thousand and eight hundred talents, he departed in all haste unto Antiochia, weening in his pride to make the land navigable, and the sea passable by foot: such was the haughtiness of his mind.

22 And he left governors to vex the nation at Jerusalem, Philip, for his country a Phrygian, and for manners more barbarous than he that set him there.

23 And at Gazim, Andronicus, and besides, Menelaus, who worse than all the rest bare an heavy hand over the citizens, having a malicious mind against his countrymen the Jews.

24 He sent also that detestable ring leader Apollonius with an army of two and twenty thousand, commanding him to slay all those that were in their best age, and to sell the women and the younger sort.

25 Who coming to Jerusalem, and pretending peace, did forbear till the holy day of the sabbath, when taking the Jews keeping holy day, he commanded his men to slay themselves.

26 And so he slew all them that were gone to the celebrating of the sabbath, and running through the city with weapons slew great multitudes.

27 But Judas Maccabeus with nine others, or thereabout, withdrew himself into the wilderness, and lived in the mountains after the manner of beasts, with his company, who fed on herbs continually, lest they should be partakers of the pollution.

NOI long after this the king sent an old man of Athens to compel the Jews to depart from the laws of their fathers, and not to live after the laws of God.

2 And to pollute also the temple in Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius, and that in Gazim, of Jupiter the Defender of strangers, as they did desire that dwelt in the place.

3 The coming in of this mischief was sore and grievous to the people.

4 For the temple was filled with riot and revelling by the Gentiles, who dined with harlots, and had to do with women within the circuit of the holy places, and besides that brought in things that were not lawful.

6 Neither was it lawful for a man to keep sabbath days or ancient feasts, or to profess himself at all to be a Jew

8 Moreover there went out a decree to the neighbour cities of the Thracians, by the suggestion of Ptolemee, against the Jews, that they should observe the same fashions, and be partakers of their sacrifices

9 And whoso would not conform themselves to the manners of the Gentiles should be put to death. Then might a man have seen the present misery

10 For there were two women brought, who had circumcised their children; whom when they had openly led round about the city, the babes hanging at their breasts, they cast them down headlong from the wall

11 And others, that had run together into caves near by, to keep the sabbath day secretly, being discovered to Philip, were all burnt together, because they made a conscience to help themselves for the honour of the most sacred day

12 Now I beseech those that read this book, that they be not discouraged for these calamities, but that they judge those punishments not to be for destruction, but for a chastening of our nation

13 For it is a token of his great goodness, when wicked doers are not suffered any long time, but forthwith punished

14 For not as with other nations, whom the Lord patiently forbeareth to punish, till they be come to the fulness of their sins, so dealeth he with us,

15 Lest that, being come to the height of sin, afterwards he should take vengeance of us

16 And therefore he never withdraweth his mercy from us: and though he punish with adversity, yet doth he never forsake his people

18 Eleazar, one of the principal scribe, an aged man, and of a well favoured countenance, was constrained to open his mouth, and to eat swine's flesh

19 But he, choosing rather to die gloriously, than to live stained with such abomination, spit it to the ground of his own accord to the torment,

20 As it behoved them to come, that are resolute to stand out against such things, as are not lawful for love of life to be tasted

21 But they that had the charge of that wicked feast, for the old acquaintance they had with the man, taking him aside, besought him to bring flesh of his own provision, such as was lawful for him to use, and make as if he did eat of the flesh taken from the sacrifice commanded by the king,

22 That in so doing he might be delivered from death, and for the old friendship with them find favour

23 But he began to consider discreetly, and as became his age, and the excellency of his ancient years, and the honour of his gray head, whereunto he was come, and his most honest education from a child, or rather the holy law made and given by God: therefore he answered accordingly, and willed them straightways to send him to the grave.

24 For it becometh not our age, said he, in any wise to dissemble, whereby many young persons might think that Eleazar, being fourscore years old and ten, were now gone to a strange religion,

25 And so they through mine hypocrisy, and desire to live a little time and a moment longer, should be deceived by me, and I get a stain to mine old age, and make it abominable

26 For though for the present time I should be delivered from the punishment of men, yet should I not escape the hand of the Almighty, neither alive nor dead

27 Wherefore now, manfully changing this life, I will shew myself such an one as mine age requirith,

11 constancy and cruel death of seven brethren and their mother in one day because they would not eat swine's flesh at the king's commandment

IF came to pass also, that seven brethren with their mother were taken, and compelled by the king against the law to taste swine's flesh, and were tormented with scourges and whips

2 But one of them that spake first said thus, What wouldest thou ask or learn of us? we are ready to die, rather than to transgress the laws of our fathers

3 Then the king, being in rage, commanded pins and caldrons to be made hot

4 Which forthwith being heated, he commanded to cut out the tongue of him that spake first, and to cut off the utmost parts of his body, the rest of his brethren and his mother looking on

5 Now when he was thus injured in all his member, he commanded him being yet alive to be brought to the fire, and to be tried in the pin and as the vapour of the pin was for a good space dispersed, they exhorted one another with the mother to die manfully, saying thus,

6 The Lord God looketh upon us, and in truth hath comfort in us, as Moses in his song, which witnessed to their faces, declared, saying, And he shall be comforted in his servants

7 So when the first was dead after this manner, they brought the second to make him a mocking stock and when they had pulled off the skin of his head with the hair, they asked him, Wilt thou eat, before thou be punished throughout every member of thy body?

8 But he answered in his own language, and said, No Wherefore he also received the next torment in order, as the former did

9 And when he was at the last gasp, he said, I thou like a fury takest us out of this present life, but the King of the world shall raise us up, who have died for his laws, unto everlasting life

10 After him was the third made a mocking stock and when he was required, he put out his tongue, and that night soon, holding forth his hands manfully,

11 And said courageously, These I had from heaven, and for his laws I despise them, and from him I hope to receive them again

12 Insomuch that the king, and they that were with him, marvelled at the young man's courage, for that he nothing regarded the pains

13 Now when this man was dead also, they tormented and mangled the fourth in like manner

14 So when he was ready to die he said thus, It is good, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God to be raised up again by him as for thee, thou shalt have no resurrection to life

15 Afterward they brought the fifth also, and mangled him

16 Then looked he unto the king, and said, Thou hast power over men, thou art corruptible, thou doest what thou wilt, yet think not that our nation is forsaken of God,

17 But abide a while, and behold his great power, how he will torment thee and thy seed

18 After him also they brought the sixth, who being ready to die said, Be not deceived without cause for we suffer these things for ourselves, having sinned against our God therefore marvellous things are done unto us

19 But think not thou, that takest in hand to strive against God, that thou shalt escape unpunished

20 But the mother was marvellous above all, and worthy of honourable memory for when she saw her seven sons slain within the space of one day, she bare it with a good courage, because of the hope that she had in the Lord

21 Yet, she exhorted every one of them in her own language, filled with courageous spirits, and stirring up her womanish thoughts with a manly stomach, she said unto them,

22 I cannot tell how ye came into my womb, for I neither gave you breath nor life, neither was it I that formed the members of every one of you,

23 But doubtless the Creator of the world, who formed the generation of man, and found out the beginning of all things, will also of his own mercy give you breath and life again, as ye now regard not your own selves for his laws' sake

24 Now Antiochus, thinking himself despised, and suspecting it to be a reproachful speech, whilst the youngest was yet alive, did not only exhort him by words, but also assured him with oaths, that he would make him both a rich and a happy man, if he would turn from the laws of his fathers, and that also he would take him for his friend, and trust him with affairs

25 But when the young man would in no case hearken unto him, the king called his mother, and exhorted her that she would counsel the young man to save his life

26 And when he had exhorted her with many words, she promised him that she would counsel her son

27 But she bowing herself toward him, laughing the cruel tyrant to scorn, spake in her country language on this manner, O my son, have pity upon me that bare thee nine months in my womb, and gave thee suck three years, and nourished thee, and brought thee up unto this age, and endured the troubles of education

28 I beseech thee, my son, look upon the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, and consider that God made them of things that were not, and so was man kind made likewise

29 Fear not this tormentor, but, being worthy of thy brethren, take thy death, that I may receive thee again in mercy with thy brethren

30 Whiles she was yet speaking these words, the young man said, Whom wait ye for? I will not obey the king's commandment but I will obey the commandment of the law that was given unto our father by Moses

31 And thou, that hast been the author of all mischief against the Hebrews shalt not escape the hands of God

32 For we suffer because of our sins

33 And though the living Lord be angry with us a little while for our chiddening and correction, yet shall he be at one again with his servants

34 But thou, O godless man, and of all other most wicked, be not lifted up without a cause, nor puffed up with uncertain hopes, lifting up thy hand against the servants of God

35 For thou hast not yet escaped the judgment of Almighty God, who seeth all things

36 For our brethren, who now have suffered a short pain, are dead under God's covenant of everlasting life but thou, through the judgment of God, shalt receive just punishment for thy pride

37 But I, as my brethren, offer up my body and life for the laws of our fathers, beseeching God that he would speedily be merciful unto our nation, and that thou by torments and plagues mayest confess, that he alone is God,

38 And that in me and my brethren the wrath of the Almighty, which is justly brought upon all our nation, may cease

39 Then the king, being in a rage, humbled him worse than all the rest, and took it grievously that he was mocked

40 So this man died undebled, and put his whole trust in the Lord

41 Last of all after the sons the mother died

THEN Judas Maccabeus, and they that were with him, went privily into the towns, and called their kinsfolks together, and took unto them all such as continued in the Jews' religion, and assembled about six thousand men.

2 And they called upon the Lord, that he would look upon the people that was trodden down of all, and also pity the temple profaned of ungodly men,

3 And that he would have compassion upon the city, sore desecrated, and ready to be made even with the ground; and hear the blood that cried unto him,

4 And remember the wicked slaughter of harmless infants, and the blasphemies committed against his name, and that he would shew his hatred against the wicked.

5 Now when Maccabeus had his company about him, he could not be withstood by the heathen for the wrath of the Lord was turned into mercy.

6 Therefore he came at unawares, and burnt up towns and cities, and got into his hands the most commodious places, and overcame and put to flight no small number of his enemies.

7 But specially took he advantage of the night for such privy attempts, inasmuch that the bruit of his manliness was spread every where.

8 So when Philip saw that this man increased by little and little, and that things prospered with him still more and more, he wrote unto Ptolemeus, the governor of Celosyria and Phenice, to yield more aid to the king's affairs.

9 Then forthwith choosing Nicanor the son of Patroclus, one of his special friends, he sent him with no fewer than twenty thousand of all nations under him, to root out the whole generation of the Jews, and with him he joined also Gorgias a captain, who in matters of war had great experience.

10 So Nicanor undertook to make so much money of the captive Jews, as should defray the tribute of two thousand talents, which the king was to pay to the Romans.

11 Wherefore immediately he sent to the cities upon the sea coast, proclaiming a sale of the captive Jews, and promising that they should have fourscore and ten bodies for one talent, not expecting the vengeance that was to follow upon him from the Almighty God.

12 Now when word was brought unto Judas of Nicanor's coming, and he had imparted unto those that were with him that the army was at hand, 13 They that were fearful, and distrusted the justice of God, fled, and conveyed themselves away.

14 Others sold all that they had left, and withal besought the Lord to deliver them, being sold by the wicked Nicanor before they met together.

15 And if not for their own sakes, yet for the covenants he had made with their fathers, and for his holy and glorious name's sake, by which they were called.

16 So Maccabeus called his men together unto the number of six thousand, and exhorted them not to be stricken with terror of the enemy, nor to fear the great multitude of the heathen, who came wrongfully against them, but to fight manfully.

17 And to set before their eyes the injury that they had unjustly done to the holy place, and the cruel handling of the city, whereof they made a mockery, and also the taking away of the government of their forefathers.

18 For they, said he, trust in their weapons and boldness, but our confidence is in the Almighty God, who at a beck can cast down both them that come against us, and also all the world.

19 Moreover he recounted unto them what helps their forefathers had found, and how they were delivered, when under Sennacherib in hundred fourscore and five thousand perished.

20 And he told them of the battle that they had in Babylon with the Chaldeans, how they came but eight thousand in all to the business, with four thousand Macedonians, and that the Macedonians being perplexed, the eight thousand destroyed in hundred and twenty thousand because of the help that they had from heaven, and so received a great booty

21 Thus when he had made them bold with these words, and ready to die for the laws and the country, he divided his army into four parts.

22 And joined with himself his own brethren, leaders of each band, to wit, Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathan, giving each one fifteen hundred men.

23 Also he appointed Eleazar to read the holy book, and when he had given them this watchword, The help of God, himself leading the first band, he joined battle with Nicanor.

24 And by the help of the Almighty they slew above nine thousand of their enemies, and wounded and maimed the most part of Nicanor's host, and so put all to flight,

25 And took their money that came to buy them, and pursued them far, but lacking time they returned.

26 For it was the day before the sabbath, and therefore they would no longer pursue them.

27 So when they had gathered them all together, and spoiled their enemies, they occupied themselves about the sabbath, yielding exceeding praise and thanks to the Lord, who had preserved them unto that day, which was the beginning of mercy distilling upon them.

28 And after the sabbath, when they had given part of the spoils to the maimed, and the widows, and orphans, the residue they divided among themselves and their servants.

29 When this was done, and they had made a common supplication, they besought the merciful Lord to be reconciled with his servants for ever.

30 Moreover of those that were with Timotheus and Bacchides, who fought against them, they slew above twenty thousand, and very easily got high and strong holds, and divided among themselves many spoils more, and made the maimed, orphans, widows, yea, and the aged also, equal in spoils with themselves.

31 And when they had gathered their armour together, they laid them up all carefully in convenient places, and the remnant of the spoils they brought to Jerusalem.

32 They slew also Philarches, that wicked person, who was with Timotheus, and had annoyed the Jews many ways.

33 Furthermore at such time, as they kept the feast for the victory in their country, they burnt Callisthenes, that had set fire upon the holy gates, who had fled into a little house, and so he received a reward meet for his wickedness.

34 As for that most ungracious Nicanor, who had brought a thousand merchants to buy the Jews,

35 He was through the help of the Lord brought down by them, of whom he made least account, and putting off his glorious apparel, and discharging his company, he came like a fugitive servant through the midland unto Antioch, having very great dishonour, for that his host was destroyed.

36 Thus he, that took upon him to make good to the Romans their tribute by means of the captives in Jerusalem, told abroad, that the Jews had God to fight for them, and therefore they could not be hurt, because they followed the laws that he gave them.

CHAP. IX.

1 Antiochus is chased from Persopolis. He is stricken with a sore disease. 14 and promiseth to become a Jew.
28 He dieth miserably.

ABOUT that time came Antiochus with dishonour out of the country of Persia.

2 For he had entered the city called Persopolis, and went about to rob the temple, and to hold the city, whereupon the multitude running to defend themselves with their weapons put them to flight, and so it happened, that Antiochus being put to flight of the inhabitants returned with shame.

3 Now when he came to Ecbatane, news was brought him what had happened unto Nicanor and Timotheus.

4 Then swelling with anger, he thought to revenge upon the Jews the disgrace done unto him by those that made him flee. Therefore commanded he his chariotmen to drive without ceasing, and to dispatch the journey, the judgment of God now following him. For he had spoken proudly in this sort, That he would come to Jerusalem, and make it a common buryingplace of the Jews.

chap. IX. ver. 2. — Persopolis.] This city is called Elymas.
Ecc. vi. 1. probably it is here called Persopolis, as having been formerly the capital of Persia. Or Persopolis is properly so called, and Elymas were very diverse cities.

5 But the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, smote him with an incurable and invincible plague for as soon as he had spoken these words, a pain of the bowels that was remediless came upon him, and sore torments of the inner parts,

6 And that most justly for he had tormented other men's bowels with many and strange torments.

7 Howbeit he nothing at all ceased from his bragging, but still was filled with pride, breathing out fire in his rage against the Jews, and commanding to haste the journey but it came to pass that he fell down from his chariot, carried violently, so that having a sore fall, all the members of his body were much pained.

8 And thus he that a little afore thought he might command the waves of the sea, (so proud was he beyond the condition of man) and weigh the high mountains in a balance, was now cast on the ground, and carried in an horse-litter, shewing forth unto all the manifest power of God.

9 So that the worms rose up out of the body of this wicked man, and whiles he lived in sorrow and pain, his flesh fell away, and the filthiness of his smell was noisome to all his army.

10 And the man, that thought a little afore he could reach to the stars of heaven, no man could endure to carry for his intolerable stink.

11 Here therefore, being plagued, he began to leave off his great pride, and to come to the knowledge of himself by the scourge of God, his pain increasing every moment.

12 And when he himself could not abide his own smell, he said these words, It is meet to be subject unto God, and that a man that is mortal should not proudly think of himself as if he were God.

13 This wicked person vowed also unto the Lord, who now no more would have mercy upon him saying thus,

14 But the holy city (to the which he was going in haste, to lay it even with the ground, and to make it a common burying-place,) he would set at liberty.

15 And as touching the Jews whom he had judged not worthy so much as to be killed, but to be cast out with their children to be devoured of the fowls and wild beasts, he would make them all equals to the citizens of Athens.

16 And the holy temple, which before he had spoiled, he would garnish with goodly gifts, and restore all the holy vessel with many more, and out of his own revenue defray the charges belonging to the sacrifices.

17 Yea, and that also he would become a Jew himself; and go through all the world that was inhabited, and declare the power of God.

18 But for all this his pains would not cease for the just judgment of God was come upon him therefore despairing of his health, he wrote unto the Jews the letters underwritten, containing the form of a supplication, after this manner.

19 Antiochus, king and governor, to the good Jews his citizens wisheth much joy, health, and prosperity.

20 If ye and your children fare well, and your affairs be to your contentment, I give very great thanks to God, having my hope in heaven.

21 As for me, I was weak, or else I would have remembered kindly your honour and good will. Returning out of Persia, and being taken with a grievous disease, I thought it necessary to care for the common safety of all.

22 Not distrusting mine health, but having great hope to escape this sickness.

23 But considering that even my father, at what time he led an army into the high countries, appointed a successor,

24 To the end that, if any thing fell out contrary to expectation, or if any tidings were brought that were grievous, they of the land knowing to whom the state was left, might not be troubled.

25 Again, considering how that the princes that are borders and neighbours unto my kingdom wait for opportunities, and expect what shall be the event I have appointed my son Antiochus king, whom I often committed and commended unto many of you, when I went up into the high provinces, to whom I have written as followeth.

26 Therefore I pray and request you, to remember the benefits that I have done the freedom of the city of Jerusalem. And thus Antiochus speaks of the freedom of the city of Jerusalem, and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the benefits that he has done unto them.

the freedom of the city. And thus Antiochus speaks of the freedom of the city of Jerusalem, and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the benefits that he has done unto them.

6 - now about the benefits that I have done unto you] unto you generally, and in special, and that every man will be still faithful to me and my son

27 For I am persuaded that he understanding my mind will favourably and graciously yield to your desires

28 Thus the murderer and blasphemer having suffered most grievously, as he entreated other men, so died he a miserable death in a strange country in the mountains

29 And Philip, that was brought up with him, carried away his body, who also fearing the son of Antiochus went into Egypt to Ptolemeus Philometor

CHAP X

1 Judas recovereth the city, and purgeth the temple 14 Gorgias weareth the Jews 16 Judas winneth their holds 29 Timotheus and his men are discomfited 30 Canaan is taken, and Timotheus slain

NOW Maccabeus and his company, the Lord guiding them, recovered the temple and the city

2 But the altars which the heathen had built in the open street, and also the chapels, they pulled down.

3 And having cleansed the temple they made another altar, and striking stones they took fire out of them, and offered a sacrifice after two years, and set forth incense, and lights, and shewbread

4 When that was done, they fell flat down, and besought the Lord that they might come no more into such troubles, but if they sinned any more against him, that he himself would chasten them with mercy, and that they might not be delivered unto the blasphemous and brutish nations

5 Now upon the same day that the strangers profaned the temple, on the very same day it was cleansed again, even the five and twentieth day of the same month, which is Casleu

6 And they kept eight days with gladness, as in the feast of the tabernacles, remembering that not long afore they had held the feast of the tabernacles, when as they wandered in the mountains and dens like beasts

7 Therefore they bare branches, and fennel boughs, and palms also, and sang psalms unto him that had given them good success in cleansing his place

8 They ordained also by a common statute and decree, That every year those days should be kept of the whole nation of the Jews

9 And thus was the end of Antiochus, called Epiphanes

10 Now will we declare the acts of Antiochus Eupator, who was the son of this wicked man, gathering briefly the calamities of the wars

11 So when he was come to the crown, he set out Lysias over the affairs of his realm, and appointed him chief governor of Celosyria and Phenice

12 For Ptolemeus, that was called Macion, choosing rather to do justice unto the Jews for the wrongs that had been done unto them, endeavoured to continue peace with them

13 Whereupon being accused of the king's friends before Eupator, and called traitor at every word, because he had left Cyprus, that Philometor had committed unto him, and departed to Antiochus Epiphanes, and seeing that he was in no honourable place, he was so discouraged, that he poisoned himself and died

14 But when Gorgias was governor of the holds, he hired soldiers, and nourished war continually with the Jews

15 And therewithal the Idumeans, having gotten into their hands the most commodious holds, kept the Jews occupied, and receiving those that were banished from Jerusalem, they went about to nourish war

16 Then they that were with Maccabeus made supplication, and besought God that he would be their helper, and so they ran with violence upon the strong hold of the Idumeans,

17 And assaulting them strongly they won the holds, and kept off all that fought

How? The Jews were the victims of the dying tyrant. But Polybius tells us that his distemper produced a constant union of state of mind. We may suppose that the Jews came from him in that condition. For we know nothing of his kindness, but many of his cruelty, to the people of Judaea. See Strabo.

18 And because certain, who were no less than nine thousand, were fled together into two very strong castles, having all manner of things convenient to sustain the siege,

19 Maccabeus left Simon and Joseph, and Zacharias also, and them that were with him, who were enough to besiege them, and deputed himself unto those places which more needed his help

On 20 Now ¶ they that were with Simon, being led with covetousness, were persuaded for money through certain of those that were in the castle, and took seventy thousand drachms, and let some of them escape

21 But when it was told Maccabeus what was done, he called the governors of the people together, and accused those men, that they had sold their brethren for money, and set their enemies free to fight against them

22 So he slew those that were found traitors, and immediately took the two castles

23 And having good success with his weapons in all things he took in hand, he slew in the two holds more than twenty thousand

24 Now Timotheus, whom the Jews had overcome before, when he had gathered a great multitude of foreign forces, and horses out of Asia not a few, came as though he would take Jewry by force of arms

*On

27 So after the prayer they took their weapons, and went on further from the city: and when they drew near to their enemies, they kept by themselves

*On
or army* 28 Now the sun being newly risen they joined both together, the one part having together with their virtue their refuge also unto the Lord for a pledge of their success and victory: the other side making their rage leader of their battle

29 But when the battle waxed strong, there appeared unto the enemies some five comely men upon horses, with bridles of gold, and two of them led the Jews,

30 And took Maccabeus between them, and covered him on every side with their weapons, and kept him safe, but shot arrows and lightnings against the enemies so that being confounded with blindness, and full of trouble, they were killed

31 And there were slain of footmen twenty thousand and five hundred, and six hundred horsemen

32 As for Timotheus himself, he fled into a very strong hold, called Gazara, where Cherias was governor

33 But they that were with Maccabeus laid siege against the fortress courageously four days

34 And they that were within, trusting to the strength of the place, blasphemed exceedingly, and uttered wicked words

35 Nevertheless upon the fifth day early twenty young men of Maccabeus' company, inflamed with anger because of the blasphemies, assaulted the wall manly, and with a fierce courage killed all that they met withal

36 Others likewise ascending after them, whiles they were busied with them that were within, burnt the towers, and kindling fires burnt the blasphemers alive, and others broke open the gates, and, having received in the rest of the army, took the city,

37 And killed Timotheus, that was hid in a certain pit, and Cherias his brother, with Apollophanes

38 When this was done, they praised the Lord with psalms and thanksgiving, who had done so great things for Israel, and given them the victory

CHAP. XI

It is as that 22 to 24 of Jeremiah 8 is put to 11 16 The letters of Iysus to the Jews 2 of the king unto Iysus 2 and to the Jews 31 of the letter to the Jews

NOT long after this, Iysus the king's protector and cousin, who also managed the affairs, took sore displeasure for the things that were done

2 And when he had gathered about fourscore thousand with all the horsemen, he came against the Jews, thinking to make the city an habitation of the Gentiles,

3 And to make a gun of the temple, as of the other chapels of the heathen, and to set the high priesthood to sale every year

4 Not at all considering the power of God, but puffed up with his ten thousands of footmen, and his thousands of horsemen, and his fourscore elephants.

5 So he came to Judea, and drew near to Bethsura, which was a strong town, but distant from Jerusalem about five furlongs, and he laid siege unto it.

6 Now when they that were with Maccabeus heard that he besieged the holds, they and all the people with lamentation and tears besought the Lord that he would send a good angel to deliver Israel.

7 Then Maccabeus himself first of all took weapons, exhorting the other that they would jeopard themselves together with him to help their brethren: so they went forth together with a willing mind.

8 And as they were at Jerusalem, there appeared before them on horseback one in white clothing, shaking his armour of gold.

9 Then they praised the merciful God all together, and took heart, insomuch that they were ready not only to fight with men, but with most cruel beasts, and to pierce through walls of iron.

10 Thus they marched forward in their armour, having an helper from heaven: for the Lord was merciful unto them.

11 And giving charge upon their enemies like lions, they slew eleven thousand footmen, and sixteen hundred horsemen, and put all the other to flight.

12 Many of them also being wounded escaped naked, and Lysias himself fled away shamefully, and so escaped.

13 Who as he was a man of understanding, casting with himself what loss he had had, and considering that the Hebrews could not be overcome, because the Almighty God helped them, he sent unto them,

14 And persuaded them to agree to all reasonable conditions, and promised that he would persuade the king that he must needs be a friend unto them.

15 Then Maccabeus consented to all that Lysias desired, being careful of the common good, and whatsoever Maccabeus wrote unto Lysias concerning the Jews, the king granted it.

16 For there were letters written unto the Jews from Lysias to this effect: Lysias unto the people of the Jews sendeth greet-

17 John and Absalon, who were sent from you, delivered me the petition subscribed, and made request for the performance of the contents thereof.

18 Therefore what things soever were meet to be reported to the king, I have declared them, and he hath granted as much as might be.

19 If then ye will keep yourselves loyal to the state, hereafter also will I endeavour to be a means of your good.

20 But of the particulars I have given order both to these, and the other that came from me, to commune with you.

21 Fare ye well. The hundred and eight and fortieth year, the four and twentieth day of the month Dioscorithius.

22 Now the king's letter contained these words: King Antiochus unto his brother Lysias sendeth greeting.

23 Since our father is translated unto the gods, our will is, that they that are in our realm live quietly, that every one may attend upon his own affairs.

24 We understand also that the Jews would not consent to our father, for to be brought unto the custom of the Gentiles, but had rather keep their own manner of living: for the which cause they require of us, that we should suffer them to live after their own laws.

25 Wherefore our mind is, that this nation shall be in rest, and we have determined to restore them their temple, that they may live according to the customs of their forefathers.

26 Thou shalt do well therefore to send unto them, and grant them peace, that when they are certified of our mind, they may be of good comfort, and ever go cheerfully about their own affairs.

27 And the letter of the king unto the nation of the Jews was after this manner: King Antiochus sendeth greeting unto the council, and the rest of the Jews.

28 If ye fare well, we have our desire: we are also in good health.
